37 Fairgoers Injured

Platform Topples Killing 3 Persons

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — A wood and steel platform high atop the state fair grandstand gave way Saturday, carried two photographers to their deaths and killed a third man on the ground about 100 feet below. At least 37 others were injured.

The platform tore loose during the trials for the 100-mile big car auto race at the Illinois State Fair. The race went on as scheduled.

A tow truck had been tightening a rope attached to the platform moments before it pulled free.

Killed were Dale R. Mueller 45, Overland, Mo.; Glen R. Lockwood, 37, San Bernardino, Calif. and Ralph Heger, 63, Springfield.

Authorities said Mueller, president of the St. Louis Auto Racing Fans Club, was taking color pictures of the time trials. He plunged down with the platform, they said.

Lockwood, a photographer for Dick Wallin Productions, Arcadia, Calif., fell moments later, they said.

CRUSHED

Heger, stage manager at the grandstand, was crushed by the platform, hospital officials said.

All three were dead on arrival at St. John's Hospital.

Ronald W. Drewett, Springfield, was reported in critical condition at the hospital with a broken back, head injuries and arm and leg injuries.

Four persons were treated and released from St. John's and another 133 were treated at the fairgrounds hospital.

The platform crashed down in the reviewing stand area where about 50 persons were watching the time trials. It landed with such force that it sheared off part of the reviewing stand.

Sangamon Countz Coroner W. C. Telford said the tow truck was being used to tighten a rope used by a "Green Beret" unit for its daily performance at the fair. The truck pulled on the line until it appeared to have the proper tension and stopped, Telford said.

About a minute later the section fell away, he said.

In the performance, a "Green Beret" leaps from the roof and slides down the rope to the reviewing stand below to demonstrate how to get down from an inaccessible peak.

Man Foresaw Falling Tower

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI)— "My only thought was to get out of there."

Dominic C. Jiacamini, 32, Springfield, was shaken from the experience but he told how he felt when he saw a portion of the state fair grandstand collapsing over him, his father and 6-year-old son.

"I saw the tow truck pulling this rope taut, and I remarked to dad, 'they're pulling that pretty snug. I hope something doesn't fall,'" he said.

The trucks, using heavy rope, were preparing the light standards for a performance of a unit of the Green Berets as about 10,000 persons watched time trials for the 100-mile Tony Bettenhausen Memorial Race.

"We looked up and I could see that section pulling loose from the roof," Jiacamini said. "My only thought was to get out of there, and I had the illusion it was coming right down on top of us."

"I said let's get out of here and I shoved Pat (his son) onto the seat ahead of me," he said. "I heard this thud and there was this poor guy laying there with his head split open, covered with blood."

"I saw we were all okay and I started to go back to see what I could do," Jiacamini said, "but police were all there and I couldn't get past them."

4 Senators Wary Of Ills By Inflation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four senators campaigning for reelection agreed Saturday that inflation is getting out of hand and ought to be dealt with quickly by the administration and Congress.

Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., said that much as he hesitates to advocate such a policy, "I would much rather see price regulation than for the government to discover suddenly that the inflationary wave had run away from us and that it was too late to control it."

CONTROLS

Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., predicted that the Democratic administration will ask for standby price-wage controls "immediately after the election is over."

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., said the administration's spending policies are the chief culprit in price rises. He called inflation "the most critical domestic issue facing the nation today."

Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex., claimed part of the credit for what he called "the first sizable anti-inflation step taken by the Senate since we curtailed foreign aid funds a month ago"—a reduction of $75 million a year in mass transit funds.

Case said on a taped television program that the political effect of soaring prices "will be very hard on incumbents, and particularly on the administration's side incumbents—and I think it should be."

"This is a matter on which the people have the right to expect sound leadership," he said, "and if they don't get it, then they should take the alternative. And the alternative is this case will be the Republicans."

He said he is "very unhappy about the secretary of agriculture, suggesting almost cynically that you don't have to pay much attention to the consumer—just worry about the farmer, he tells the Democratic politicians and candidates for office."

U.S. Needs Discipline, LBJ Claims

WITH PRESIDENT JOHNSON (UPI) — President Johnson wrapped up a jet-speed swing through New England Saturday by prescribing "a strong dose of self-discipline" for Americans to meet the crises of these times.

"We need to carry on in Viet Nam," he told an applauding open-air crowd of more than 20,000 in Lewiston, Maine.

"We need it to bring racial peace and social justice to all our citizens. And we need it to maintain the strong economy that is the underpinning of our material strength."

Lewiston was Johnson's fourth stop in Saturday's tour that took him to Kingston, R.I.; Manchester, N.H., and Burlington, Vt. He talked in those places about the need for restraint to curb racial strife, for perseverance in carrying forward the Viet Nam war, and for good sense and determination in solving problems at home.

DECLARATION

Summing up at Lewiston, Johnson sternly declared:

"On every front the dangers of excess are real: in our cities, excess decay; in our streets, excess violence; in our economy, excess indifference to the public interest.

"In each, the answer is voluntary self - discipline. And that is the duty of every citizen."

Wherever he went, Johnson encountered the hearty acclaim of thousands of New Englanders. He replied in kind by

It was like his campaigning days of 1965. But standing in a bunting-bedecked bandstand in the John F. Kennedy Park in Lewiston, Johnson noted after being introduced by Republican Gov. John Reed and traveling all day with Maine's GOP Sen. Margaret Chase Smith as well as other lawmakers of both parties that: "We haven't been talking party matters. We've been talking people matters—the problems of people."

In solemn tones, Johnson warned of the perils of inflation and told the Maine audience:

"Unless there is restraint now, unless there is voluntary self-discipline by management and labor, your government will be compelled by sheer necessity to act in order to protect all of the people."

Johnson's Lewiston speech was his fourth in a day which also included:

—A warning, at Manchester, N.H., that the Communists will escalate their tactics of "intimidation and terror" in an effort to disrupt the South Viet Nam election of a constituent assembly next month.

Lunar Lens On 'Blink'

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI)— Engineers tried to coax a faulty camera lens aboard the Lunar Orbiter spacecraft back into shape by giving it a rest Friday but the effort failed as new pictures were taken of the moon.

Three frames were snapped on the spacecraft's camera and pictures transmitted to earth but, as in the past, photos taken by the high resolution lens were of poor quality.

The moderate resolution lens continued to transmit pictures "of better quality than expected" but this lens does not pinpoint topographical features.

The project's major objective —to find a suitable landing spot for astronauts—was endangered by the trouble with the high resolution film.

The camera was given a rest of 75 seconds between snapshots Friday morning in the hope that this would correct the trouble. Two frames were used with the normal interval of 2.2 seconds but before the third was shot the 75-second gap was allowed without apparent effect.

Scientists trying to diagnose the trouble at Jet Propulsion Laboratory theorized that the film had been moving while the shutter was taking pictures, causing a fuzziness and poor quality.

It would be several hours, a federal space agency spokesman said, before results of the therapeutic tests could be determined.

The trouble was in the high resolution lens designed to get closeup photos to help find a safe landing spot for Apollo astronauts on the moon.

The other lens—of moderate resolution—was operating satisfactorily, scientists said, but it was not capable of pin-pointing high and low spots on the moon.

New Tremors Jolt Turkey, Deaths May Exceed 3,000 In One Of Worst 'Quakes

Seems that the Gemini-10 crews were not much for talking. Astronauts Neil Armstrong, and William Anders, far right, are the backup crew for Gemini-11. Earth Shocks Roll Across Eastern Area

ISTANBUL, Turkey (UPI) — New tremors Saturday triggered terror among stunned survivors of the massive earthquake Friday in which the Turkish radio said the death toll is expected to exceed 3,000. It would make it one of the worst earthquake disasters in the past 20 years.

The five-minute earthquake wiped about a score of mountain villages off the map and laid waste to four provinces in eastern Turkey.

RESCUE OPERATIONS

Government officials directing relief and rescue operations in the hilly regions near the Soviet frontier said they believed the radio estimate would be about right.

The officials said the latest figures showed at least 1,487 dead and more than 1,500 injured. But the government-controlled radio predicted at least that many more bodies would be found.

Estimates of casualties mounted into the thousands as the United States joined Turkey in speeding medical help, food and other supplies into the stricken area.

Officials in the dazed and fear-filled city of Erzurum said the quake Friday may have claimed more than 1,500 lives. Late reports trickling from Varto, 50 miles to the south, said 816 persons were killed and 659 injured there along.

Turkey's chief of national security announced that 798 persons were known dead and 792 more were injured. But the toll was expected to mount as communications were restored to villages cut off by the shock.

Turkish newspapers put the death toll at around 2,000. The British Broadcasting Corp. (BBC) quoted a Turkish official as reporting 3,000 dead and 6,000 injured. The Finnish Radio in a report from Ankara said there were 5,000 dead and nearly 30,000 injured.

All of the casualties were believed to be Turkish. There were no reports of Americans or other foreigners among known victims.

UPI photographer Mehmet Yilmaz toured the battered town of Hinis, 35 miles from Erzurum, with Premier Suleyman Demirel making an on-the-spot inspection of earthquake damages. Official reports said 127 persons died in Hinis.

Military and civilian rescue workers were digging through mounds of rubble which were once homes for possible survivors. Grim-faced men appealed to Demirel for government help to rebuild their homes while grief-stricken women and children wept loudly in the background, Yilmaz reported.

Some of the survivors told Yilmaz how the quake hit the city Friday without any warning.

"I was working in my fields when suddenly the ground shot from under me," one old peasant said. Others told of fleeing in terror as walls buckled, roofs fell in and the earth split.

The new tremors during the day spread fresh panic among survivors. Villagers who had returned to their shattered homes to retrieve their dead and what was left of their belongings were forced to flee to open areas for the second time in 24 hours.

Task Delights Space Crews Of Gemini 11

MANNED SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP) — The Gemini II astronauts said Saturday they could not be happier with the task assigned them next month of catching a satellite in space, then using it to nearly double the world altitude record.

"We've endeavored to lay this flight plan out so we can accomplish everything," said Navy Lt. Comdr. Richard F. Gordon Jr., a rookie astronaut who will walk in space for nearly two hours.

Gordon and Navy Cmdr. Charles A. Conrad Jr., both 36, plan to set out on the three-day mission Sept. 9 and by the end of their first orbit catch and link up with an agena rocket launched 97 minutes before them.

RENDEZVOUS

The one-orbit rendezvous would be the fastest ever performed, and the first ever accomplished by using only information from the spacecraft's systems. Ground controllers, for the first time, will provide little or no data during the initial chase.

"It's a tough problem," Conrad told a news conference. "I think probably the biggest thing is that we're going to do it on our own."

"We couldn't be happier with the flight plan," Gordon noted. "And, I couldn't ask for a better flight."

Gordon plans a 28,000-mile walk in space the second day, and a 2½-hour space stand the third day during which he will stand in his seat to take scientific pictures.

The walk was extended during the week from 55 minutes to 108 minutes in order to give him time to accomplish all his assigned tasks.

Deep into the flight, the pilots will crank the powerful Agena engine to whip Gemini II into an orbit ranging upwards to 865 miles. The peak of the egg-shaped orbit will nearly double the 476-mile record set last month by Gemini 10.

No Measurable Rain Reported

No measurable rainfall was reported by FAA at Selman Field in Monroe Saturday although thundershowers accompanied by gusty winds did occur in some portions of the city and area.

The high reading for the day was 88 at noon. The low of 71 was recorded at 1 a.m. These were each four degrees below last year's high and low of 92 and 75.

The high predicted for today is 88 to 94 and the low expected is 72 to 78. Winds will be from a southerly direction at 5 to 15 miles an hour. There is a 30 per cent probability of scattered thundershowers this afternoon and a 10 per cent chance of rain at other times.

Rolls At 297,000

U.S. Viet Forces Continue To Grow

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The roll of U.S. armed forces in Viet Nam, expected to approximate 400,000 men by the end of the year, edged up to 297,000 Saturday. A battalion of 800 fresh troops arrived from Ft. Carson, Colo., and joined the 1st Air Cavalry Division.

South Korea's commitment also was rising. A spokesman said 700 men of the Korean White Horse Division were in the country to prepare for its arrival next month. The White Horse vanguard landed earlier this week, along with 2,900 replacements for the Tiger Division, which entered the war last fall.

DISGUISED REDS

War operations of the day included two Viet Cong attacks:

—Two terrorists exploded three hand grenades at the entrance of a U.S. noncommissioned officers club in Da Nang. Metal fragments and flying glass injured a dozen persons among men and women packing the spacious stucco building. The terrorists escaped.

— A Viet Cong company, disguised in the uniforms of government Rangers, attacked two Vietnamese platoons only 12 miles from Saigon. A government spokesman said the Viet Cong had inflicted moderate casualties. One guerrilla was reported killed.

Elsewhere, the Communists were largely on the receiving end in scattered ground operations and intensive air attacks.

Saucer Flying Rough Riding

CARRIZO SPRINGS, Tex. (UPI)—Henry Stockett who went for a short ride in a flying saucer last month was not so sure about going on any more such rides Friday.

"I'm getting financially embarrassed and too many broken bones, Stockett, 60, said.

He built a 28-foot saucer for $1,000, attached a 65-horsepower motor and took off.

It went up 75 feet in three seconds," Stockett recalled, "and once it left the ground I had no control over it at all."

It came down fast, breaking Stockett's arm and fracturing his pelvis.

He said Friday was the first day he had been able to get up and around since the short-lived flight.

"I'm going to take a vacation — and then I'll think about something else," the veteran pilot and aircraft mechanic allowed

Leather Strap Warden To Let 'Record Speak'

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Warden O. E. Bishop said Saturday that he will "just let the record speak" as to whether a convict at the state penitentiary was whipped as a result of poor eyesight.

The controversy over use of a five-foot leather strap to punish prisoners flared again Friday when a convict charged that he was strapped for not picking a crop he could not see.

The neatly printed, six-page petition was filed in U.S. District Court by William King Jackson, 27, a Gresham, S.C., man sentenced to five years in prison for burglary.

"We'll let the court decide," Bishop said. "The attorney general will handle the case for us and we'll probably have an answer to the suit on Tuesday or Wednesday."

The controversy over use of the strap has been dormant for six months since the state penitentiary board established a set of rules, under court order, governing its use.

A federal judge ruled last November that use of the strap constituted cruel and unusual punishment under the Constitution unless a set of explicit rules for its use was established.

Jackson's petition will mark the first court test of the new regulations.

Jackson charged that he was punished because he overlooked — because of his poor vision — "okra in the field."

He said the prison physician had prescribed medicine for his eyes and instructed that he be furnished with eyeglasses.

The new rules state that a convict may be whipped for not meeting his quota in the fields, if a two-man prison board so decides. Quotas, prison officials say, are based on a man's age and physical condition.

Bishop said each convict prepared a medical report on his physical condition upon entering the prison.

"His medical report did not indicate any eye trouble," said Bishop who replaced Dan Stephens as warden in January.

Stephens resigned in the wake of the controversy over use of the strap.

The trouble was in the high resolution lens designed to get closeup photos to help find a safe landing spot for Apolo astronauts on the moon.

The other lens—of moderate resolution—was operating satisfactorily, scientists said, but it was not capable of pin-pointing high and low spots on the moon.

New Tremors Jolt Turkey, Deaths May Exceed 3,000 In One Of Worst 'Quakes

THE PRIMARY AND backup crews of the upcoming Gemini-11 space flight as they reacted when asked if they planned to do much talking during their flight. Seems that the Gemini-10 crews were not much for talking. Astronauts Charles (Pete) Conrad, left, primary crew command pilot and Richard Gordon, 2nd left, his pilot, assured newsmen at the news conference that there would be much talking. Astronauts Neil Armstrong, and William Anders, far right, are the backup crew for Gemini-11. The four astronauts talked about the flight plan for the three day space flight that is scheduled for Sept. 9. (AP Wirephoto)

Earth Shocks Roll Across Eastern Area

ISTANBUL, Turkey (UPI) — New tremors Saturday triggered terror among stunned survivors of the massive earthquake Friday in which the Turkish radio said the death toll is expected to exceed 3,000. It would make it one of the worst earthquake disasters in the past 20 years.

The five-minute earthquake wiped about a score of mountain villages off the map and laid waste to four provinces in eastern Turkey.

RESCUE OPERATIONS

Government officials directing relief and rescue operations in the hilly regions near the Soviet frontier said they believed the radio estimate would be about right.

The officials said the latest figures showed at least 1,487 dead and more than 1,500 injured. But the government-controlled radio predicted at least that many more bodies would be found.

Estimates of casualties mounted into the thousands as the United States joined Turkey in speeding medical help, food and other supplies into the stricken area.

Officials in the dazed and fear-filled city of Erzurum said the quake Friday may have claimed more than 1,500 lives. Late reports trickling from Varto, 50 miles to the south, said 816 persons were killed and 659 injured there along.

Turkey's chief of national security announced that 798 persons were known dead and 792 more were injured. But the toll was expected to mount as communications were restored to villages cut off by the shock.

(Photos, Pages 12A, 5B)

Turkish newspapers put the death toll at around 2,000. The British Broadcasting Corp. (BBC) quoted a Turkish official as reporting 3,000 dead and 6,000 injured. The Finnish Radio in a report from Ankara said there were 5,000 dead and nearly 30,000 injured.

All of the casualties were believed to be Turkish. There were no reports of Americans or other foreigners among known victims.

UPI photographer Mehmet Yilmaz toured the battered town of Hinis, 35 miles from Erzurum, with Premier Suleyman Demirel making an on-the-spot inspection of earthquake damages. Official reports said 127 persons died in Hinis.

Military and civilian rescue workers were digging through mounds of rubble which were once homes for possible survivors. Grim-faced men appealed to Demirel for government help to rebuild their homes while grief-stricken women and children wept loudly in the background, Yilmaz reported.

Some of the survivors told Yilmaz how the quake hit the city Friday without any warning.

"I was working in my fields when suddenly the ground shot from under me," one old peasant said. Others told of fleeing in terror as walls buckled, roofs fell in and the earth split.

The new tremors during the day spread fresh panic among survivors. Villagers who had returned to their shattered homes to retrieve their dead and what was left of their belongings were forced to flee to open areas for the second time in 24 hours.

Task Delights Space Crews Of Gemini 11

MANNED SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP) — The Gemini II astronauts said Saturday they could not be happier with the task assigned them next month of catching a satellite in space, then using it to nearly double the world altitude record.

"We've endeavored to lay this flight plan out so we can accomplish everything," said Navy Lt. Comdr. Richard F Gordon Jr., a rookie astronaut who will walk in space for nearly two hours.

Gordon and Navy Cmdr. Charles A. Conrad Jr., both 36, plan to set out on the three-day mission Sept. 9 and by the end of their first orbit catch and link up with an agena rocket launched 97 minutes before them.

RENDEZVOUS

The one-orbit rendezvous would be the fastest ever performed, and the first ever accomplished by using only information from the spacecraft's systems. Ground controllers, for the first time, will provide little or no data during the initial chase.

"It's a tough problem," Conrad told a news conference. "I think probably the biggest thing is that we're going to do it on our own."

"We couldn't be happier with the flight plan," Gordon noted. "And, I couldn't ask for a better flight."

Gordon plans a 28,000-mile walk in space the second day, and a 2½-hour space stand the third day during which he will stand in his seat to take scientific pictures.

The walk was extended during the week from 55 minutes to 108 minutes in order to give him time to accomplish all his assigned tasks.

Deep into the flight, the pilots will crank the powerful Agena engine to whip Gemini II into an orbit ranging upwards to 865 miles. The peak of the egg-shaped orbit will nearly double the 476-mile record set last month by Gemini 10.

No Measurable Rain Reported

No measurable rainfall was reported by FAA at Selman Field in Monroe Saturday although thundershowers accompanied by gusty winds did occur in some portions of the city and area.

The high reading for the day was 88 at noon. The low of 71 was recorded at 1 a.m. These were each four degrees below last year's high and low of 92 and 75.

The high predicted for today is 88 to 94 and the low expected is 72 to 78. Winds will be from a southerly direction at 5 to 15 miles an hour. There is a 30 per cent probability of scattered thundershowers this afternoon and a 10 per cent chance of rain at other times.

Rolls At 297,000

U.S. Viet Forces Continue To Grow

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The roll of U.S. armed forces in Viet Nam, expected to approximate 400,000 men by the end of the year, edged up to 297,000 Saturday. A battalion of 800 fresh troops arrived from Ft. Carson, Colo., and joined the 1st Air Cavalry Division.

South Korea's commitment also was rising. A spokesman said 700 men of the Korean White Horse Division were in the country to prepare for its arrival next month. The White Horse vanguard landed earlier this week, along with 2,900 replacements for the Tiger Division, which entered the war last fall.

DISGUISED REDS

War operations of the day included two Viet Cong attacks:

—Two terrorists exploded three hand grenades at the entrance of a U.S. noncommissioned officers club in Da Nang. Metal fragments and flying glass injured a dozen persons among men and women packing the spacious stucco building. The terrorists escaped.

— A Viet Cong company, disguised in the uniforms of government Rangers, attacked two Vietnamese platoons only 12 miles from Saigon. A government spokesman said the Viet Cong had inflicted moderate casualties. One guerrilla was reported killed.

Elsewhere, the Communists were largely on the receiving end in scattered ground operations and intensive air attacks.

Saucer Flying Rough Riding

CARRIZO SPRINGS, Tex. (UPI)—Henry Stockett who went for a short ride in a flying saucer last month was not so sure about going on any more such rides Friday.

"I'm getting financially embarrassed and too many broken bones, Stockett, 60, said.

He built a 28-foot saucer for $1,000, attached a 65-horsepower motor and took off.

It went up 75 feet in three seconds," Stockett recalled, "and once it left the ground I had no control over it at all."

It came down fast, breaking Stockett's arm and fracturing his pelvis.

He said Friday was the first day he had been able to get up and around since the short-lived flight.

"I'm going to take a vacation — and then I'll think about something else," the veteran pilot and aircraft mechanic allowed.

Leather Strap Warden To Let 'Record Speak'

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Warden O. E. Bishop said Saturday that he will "just let the record speak" as to whether a convict at the state penitentiary was whipped as a result of poor eyesight.

The controversy over use of a five-foot leather strap to punish prisoners flared again Friday when a convict charged that he was strapped for not picking a crop he could not see.

The neatly printed, six-page petition was filed in U.S. District Court by William King Jackson, 27, a Gresham, S.C., man sentenced to five years in prison for burglary.

"We'll let the court decide," Bishop said. "The attorney general will handle the case for us and we'll probably have an answer to the suit on Tuesday or Wednesday."

The controversy over use of the strap has been dormant for six months since the state penitentiary board established a set of rules, under court order, governing its use.

A federal judge ruled last November that use of the strap constituted cruel and unusual punishment under the Constitution unless a set of explicit rules for its use was established.

Jackson's petition will mark the first court test of the new regulations.

Jackson charged that he was punished because he overlooked — because of his poor vision — "okra in the field."

He said the prison physician had prescribed medicine for his eyes and instructed that he be furnished with eyeglasses.

The new rules state that a convict may be whipped for not meeting his quota in the fields, if a two-man prison board so decides. Quotas, prison officials say, are based on a man's age and physical condition.

Bishop said each convict prepared a medical report on his physical condition upon entering the prison.

"His medical report did not indicate any eye trouble," said Bishop who replaced Dan Stephens as warden in January.

Stephens resigned in the wake of the controversy over use of the strap.

Congress Receives Inflation Outline

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Defense Department outlind to Congress Saturday a 7-point program to curb war-caused inflation in South Viet Nam, specially in Saigon, the capitol.

With some of the measures already in effect, the program will check employment of Vietnamese civilians, expand U.S. military stores, and provide 250,000 out-of-country vacations a year for American GIs.

It also will "reduce or eliminate" civilian renting by U.S. military and government personnel, move troops away from Saigon and other urban areas when possible, and pay the GIs 10 per cent interest on money they save.

"Burgeoning demand generated by a rapid influx of U.S. personnel and facilities must not be allowed to outstrip Vietnamese resources," Assistant Defense Secretary Thomas D. Morris said in a letter transmitting the program to Congress.

The letter was addressed to Rep. John E. Mossi, D-Ore., chairman of the House subcommittee on foreign operations and government information.

"Price inflation and general disruption of the local way of life must not be allowed to undermine our combat successes through impaired Vietnamese government operations and popular discontent," Morris wrote.

The program came in the wake of an 18 per cent increase in the Vietnamese cost of living during the second three months of 1966. It is expected that the U.S. force in Viet Nam, now nearly 3000,000 men, will have reached 400,000 by next July 1.

A Pentagon summary released by the Moss committee said U.S. military post exchange stores will expand their stocks and services and become more numerous in an effort to drain buying away from the Vietnamese economy. The summary also made these points:

—The goal of providing 250,000 two-week rest and recuperation vacations for GIs will represent a four-fold expansion of that project. They are flown to such cities as Hong Kong, Tokyo and Honolulu.

—Military construction contractors have been told there must be "no new hiring of local nationals, except for critical replacements." About 51,000 are now employed.

—The stated goal is to "end private housing" in Viet Nam. Approximately 8,000 U.S. military and civilian employes are now renting Vietnamese quarters.

—Movement of troops away from cities will reduce GI spending "in inverse proportion to their separation from urban markets."

—U.S. agencies as well as contractors have been told to limit employment of Vietnamese nationals and purchases of Vietnamese products. Contractor purchases on the scene are now largely confined to sand and rork.

—Increased savings by GIs is expected to provide a tenth of the total reduction sought in American spending in Viet Nam.

The 10 per cent interest on savings is also available to U.S. servicemen in other overseas areas as a result of a bill signed last week by President Johnson.

U.S. Seeks Red Peace, HHH Says

PADUCAH, Ky. (AP) — The United States must try to seek peace with Red China just as it has eased the cold war with the Soviet Union in recent years, Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey said Saturday.

"We see no signs of moderation in the present Communist Chinese government," the vice president said. "Yet we do know that there are millions of people in China with reasons for friendship with us."

He said this nation must "try, try and try to find a way to build bridges for better understanding."

Speaking at the dedication of mammoth Barkley Lake and dam in wesetrn Kentucky, Humphrey said if this nation continues its efforts, "the time may come when Communist China may recognize that a policy of moderation is in its own interest."

The vice president invoked the name of another vice president, the late Alben W. Barkley, recalling Barkley's early proposals for a nuclear pact with the Soviet Union during the height of the cold war.

"Only a few of us stood with him then," Humphrey said. "The people who called themselves 'realists' said that it was useless to work toward any change with the Soviet Union."

But change came, he said, and the nuclear test-ban treaty was born. He said that Barkley's foresight of the Soviet Union might well be applied to Communist China today.

"I do not think we should be afraid today — as Alben Barkley was not afraid in the early 1950s — to take the extra step which might lead to peace," Humphrey said.

An stimated 5,000 to 6,000 attended the dedication of the $142-million Barkley project, which includes a canal connecting Kentucky and Barkley Lakes in western Kentucky.

3 Persons Injured In Auto Wrecks

RAYVILLE (Special) —Three persons were injured, none of them seriously, in two separate automobile accidents in Richland Parish Saturday, state police here reported.

Listed in "fair condition"' at St. Francis Hospital in Monroe with multiple lacerations late Saturday night were Mr. and Mrs. James Wolfe of Memphis, Tenn.

They were involved in a two-vehicle mishap about 20 miles southwest of here on La. Hwy. 135 at 3:30 p.m. Reports show that a northbound car driven by Wolfe collided with a southbound log truck driven by Waner Haynes, Monroe, who was apparently un-injured.

Thomas Fitzsimmons of West Monroe was treated for head lacerations and released from E. A. Conway Memorial Hospital after the truck he was driving left La. Hwy. 561, three miles north of Hebert around 6:30 p.m., police said.

He was reported to have been traveling south on the road.

Investigation into both mishaps was continuing, according to the state police.

Monroe Man Is Hospitalized

A 51-year-old Monroe man, George W. Reaves, 2702 Shannon St., Apt. 136, was in undetermined condition at St. Francis Hospital late Saturday night after the car he was driving went into a ditch on Oliver Road around 12:30 p.m.

According to reports of the Monroe Police Department, Reaves was traveling west on Louisville when his car veered north, striking a car driven by Jennie L. Sullivan, 53, of 712 Drago St., West Monroe, which was parkd in front of the Picadilly Cafeteria attempting to back out.

Police said that Reaves continued on, turned north onto Oliver Road and went into a ditch.

No charges had been filed Saturday.

Neighbors, who heard the crash of the tree limb, approximately 75 feet in length, said that the Watsons were not at home at the time the limb was blown down. Rats Topic Of High-Level Meet

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The White House meeting was last Thursday afternoon in the cabinet room. Presiding was President Johnson. The topic: Rats.

The direct cause of such a high-level meeting on such a low-level rodent was Senate hearings that will resume Monday on the slum crisis in American cities and how to end it.

As a result of the meeting, Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., told newsmen: "I think we'll be having a federal rat eradication program."

This story illustrates only one aspect of what Ribicoff's subcommittee on executive reorganization is attempting to uncover. While spending $14 billion a year in direct aid to cities, does one part of the government know what the other is doing in this field?

The story began Tuesday with testimony by Secretary Robert C. Weaver of the Department of Housing and Urban development (HUD).

"There hasn't been a case of yellow fever in the United States since 1917," said Ribicoff. "Yet we're spending this year $45 million on eradication of the yellow fever mosquito.

"But last year, there were 14,000 reported cases of death, injury and infection to children and adults because of rat bites. What are we doing about the rats?"

"This mainly a local problem," said Weaver who spent most of the day on a hotseat. After consulting with an aide, he said $27,500 was available for rat control—through the Interior Department's Bureau of Wildlife.

Secretary John W. Gardner of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) had little to add to Weaver's remarks. He said no, there wasn't any federal plan for rat control in cities.

"I'll be happy to pull one together for the subcommittee," Gardner added.

At the White House meeting that afternoon, Gardner found out he was wrong. The government did, in fact, have a massive plan for eliminating urban ghetto rates over a six-year period.

It was proposed by the Public Health Service—a part of HEW — in March, 1965. It would cost $300 million and provide jobs for 90,000 persons who lived with the rats in slums.

The rat plan was made not for HUD, not for HEW, but for OEO. And when Director Sargent Shriver of the Office of Economic Opportunity appeared before the subcommittee, no one asked him about rats.

Even though the hearing was recessed, Shriver asked: "Did you want a plan to get rid of the rats."

"Yes," said Ribicoff, smiling.

Shriver flung a thick volume across the table.

Its title: Operation Rat.

Axe-Slinger Hits Woman On Cheek

NEW YORK (UPI) — Miss Mary McGee, 27, Saturday was hit a glancing blow on the left cheekbone by an axe wielded by George Lynn, 29, police said.

Lynn was seized and charged with two counts of felonious assault and possession of a dangerous weapon.

Police said Lynn had no motive for the attack.

They said Miss McGee, a secretary, rose early Saturday for a trip out of town with a girl friend.

As Miss McGee got out of her car, Police said, Lynn left another car and hit her with the axe.

Police seized Lynn nearby.

Criminal court Judge Michael Gagliano ordered Lynn held in $35,000 bail for a hearing next Thursday.

Miss McGee was treated at a hospital for abrasions and contusions of the face and lacerations of both knees. She later was released.

Strike Extended

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — A seven-day strike by pilots of Greece's national airline, Olympic Airways, was extended indefinitely Saturday.

A spokesman for the pilots' union said the strike had been extended because of the company's failure to meet their demands for salay increases.

The strike has brought Olympic Airways domestic and international flights to a standstill.

Encephalitis Claims Fourth Life In Dallas

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The current epidemic of encephalitis apparently claimed a fourth life Saturday while a public health official defended use of an insecticide to combat spread of the disease.

Dr. Hal J. Dewlett, Dallas city health director, said a suggestion that the insecticide Malathion may cause blood diseases "is speculation and not supported by laboratory proof."

Three Air Force planes began spraying the city with Malathion on Friday. Low clouds and high temperatures halted Saturday's resumption of spraying.

"We need to control this epidemic by any means available," Dr. Dewlett said at a news conference. "When we decided to spray we weighed all the evidence and found that mosquito eradication the best method. Anything we do carries a certain amount of risk."

The number of suspected encephalitis cases rose to 78 Saturday, including two confirmed deaths from the virus and one suspected.

The fourth apparent victim was a 71-year-old woman who resided in South Oak Cliff, the area hardest hit by the St. Louis strain of the disease.

Parkland Hospital said it was likely that it was encephalitis which finally overcame the ailing woman. She also had leukemia and other ailments, the hospital said.

The question that Malathion could cause blood diseases was raised by Dr. E. Richard Halden, blood specialist and medical director of the Carter Blood Center in Fort Worth.

He said he feared the spraying would cause serious and perhaps fatal illnesses among persons allergic to Malathion.

He advocated a more selective spraying method.

Dr. Dewltet said Dr. Halden was giving his "clinic opinion. It is not supported by laboratory proof and is speculation."

He said, "We do not anticipate any blood disease here and this has not developed in other areas (where Malathion has been used)."

The disease is carried by the culex mosquito. The aerial spraying, which is to be reseumed today if weather permits, is being done to kill it.

Five Persons Are Injured In Collision

Five persons were injured in a two-vehicle headon collision five miles south of Calhoun on the Indian Village Road around 10 p.m. Saturday.

Admitted to Glenwood Hospital were:

W. L. Spiller, 23, Rt. 2, Box 254, West Monroe, with a broken left leg and multiple lacerations; his wife, Nell Spillers, 21, multiple lacerations (condition serious); their four-year-old son with lacerations of the head; and Kathy Spillers, 11, of Rt. 2 Choudrant, with a broken right leg. Another of the Spillers' children, Lisa, 2, was apparently uninjured.

Details of the accident were not available late Saturday night. Ambulances from Kilpatrick and Mulhearn Funeral Homes transported the injured to Glenwood Hospital.

"This mainly a local problem," said Weaver who spent most of the day on a hotseat. After consulting with an aide, he said $27,500 was available for rat control—through the Interior Department's Bureau of Wildlife.

Secretary John W. Gardner of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) had little to add to Weaver's remarks. He said no, there wasn't any federal plan for rat control in cities.

"I'll be happy to pull one together for the subcommittee," Gardner added.

At the White House meeting that afternoon, Gardner found out he was wrong. The government did, in fact, have a massive plan for eliminating urban ghetto rates over a six-year period.

It was proposed by the Public Health Service—a part of HEW — in March, 1965. It would cost $300 million and provide jobs for 90,000 persons who lived with the rats in slums.

The rat plan was made not for HUD, not for HEW, but for OEO. And when Director Sargent Shriver of the Office of Economic Opportunity appeared before the subcommittee, no one asked him about rats.

Even though the hearing was recessed, Shriver asked: "Did you want a plan to get rid of the rats."

"Yes," said Ribicoff, smiling.

Shriver flung a thick volume across the table.

Its title: Operation Rat.

Axe-Slinger Hits Woman On Cheek

NEW YORK (UPI) — Miss Mary McGee, 27, Saturday was hit a glancing blow on the left cheekbone by an axe wielded by George Lynn, 29, police said.

Lynn was seized and charged with two counts of felonious assault and possession of a dangerous weapon.

Police said Lynn had no motive for the attack.

They said Miss McGee, a secretary, rose early Saturday for a trip out of town with a girl friend.

As Miss McGee got out of her car, Police said, Lynn left another car and hit her with the axe.

Police seized Lynn nearby.

Criminal court Judge Michael Gagliano ordered Lynn held in $35,000 bail for a hearing next Thursday.

Miss McGee was treated at a hospital for abrasions and contusions of the face and lacerations of both knees. She later was released.

Strike Extended

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — A seven-day strike by pilots of Greece's national airline, Olympic Airways, was extended indefinitely Saturday.

A spokesman for the pilots' union said the strike had been extended because of the company's failure to meet their demands for salay increases.

The strike has brought Olympic Airways domestic and international flights to a standstill.

Encephalitis Claims Fourth Life In Dallas

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The current epidemic of encephalitis apparently claimed a fourth life Saturday while a public health official defended use of an insecticide to combat spread of the disease.

Dr. Hal J. Dewlett, Dallas city health director, said a suggestion that the insecticide Malathion may cause blood diseases "is speculation and not supported by laboratory proof."

Three Air Force planes began spraying the city with Malathion on Friday. Low clouds and high temperatures halted Saturday's resumption of spraying.

"We need to control this epidemic by any means available," Dr. Dewlett said at a news conference. "When we decided to spray we weighed all the evidence and found that mosquito eradication the best method. Anything we do carries a certain amount of risk."

The number of suspected encephalitis cases rose to 78 Saturday, including two confirmed deaths from the virus and one suspected.

The fourth apparent victim was a 71-year-old woman who resided in South Oak Cliff, the area hardest hit by the St. Louis-strain of the disease.

Parkland Hospital said it was likely that it was encephalitis which finally overcame the ailing woman. She also had leukemia and other ailments, the hospital said.

The question that Malathion could cause blood diseases was raised by Dr. E. Richard Halden, blood specialist and medical director of the Carter Blood Center in Fort Worth.

He said he feared the spraying would cause serious and perhaps fatal illnesses among persons allergic to Malathion.

He advocated a more selective spraying method.

Dr. Dewltet said Dr. Halden was giving his "clinic opinion. It is not supported by laboratory proof and is speculation."

He said, "We do not anticipate any blood disease here and this has not developed in other areas (where Malathion has been used)."

The disease is carried by the culex mosquito. The aerial spraying, which is to be reseumed today if weather permits, is being done to kill it.

Firearms Act Violation

Minuteman Chief Taken In Custody

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Robert Bolivar Depugh, leader of the Minutemen, an anti-Communist organization, was taken into custody Saturday on a federal grand jury indictment charing him with violations of the U.S. Firearms Act.

A spokesman for the U.S. district attorney for Western Missouri said the indictment was secret until Depugh's arrest.

Depugh was charged with transferring firearms without paying the required tax; with making firearms without paying the required tax and receiving and possessing firearms which have not been registered.

It was explained that the federal tax applies to certain types of firearms.

Also named as defendants in the three-count indictment were Walter Patrick Peyson, 23, Northborne, Mo.; James Tollerton, 21, Linneus, Mo.; Troy Haughton, San Diego, and John E. Blumer, Manchester, Mo.

Raithby R. Husted was named as coconspirator, but not as a defendant.

The indictment said the alleged offenses had been taking place from about May 31, 1963, up to and including the date of the filing of the inductment.

It listed 35 overt acts under one count, such as the possession of machine guns; possession of parts to convert M1 rifles into machine guns and the employment of a gunsmith to design and manufacture machine guns.

Another count accused Peyson, Tollerton and Husted of possessing machine guns.

The third count charged that Depugh, Tollerton and Peyson had unlawfully bought automatic weapons that had not been registered.

Depugh and Haughton were said in the first count to have had machine guns in their possession in June 1965 and that on Aug. 29, 1965, in San Diego County, Haughton disseminated information about silencers and machine guns.

Depugh was arraigned before Commissioner Lee Cisel and his bond set at $7,500.

Arraigned at the same time on a charge of assaulting an agent of the federal government was Cyndra Melville, 21, who was arrested with Depugh. Her bond was set at $5,000.

They were held in the U.S. marshal's office, awaiting a bondsman.

Miss Melville, who said she is divorced, described herself as a secretary of the Patriotic party, an ultraright-wing organization formed recently by Depugh. She listed her local address as the Minutemen headquarters.

Internal Revenue Service agents had been keeping Depugh under surveillance. F. M. Wilson, the U.S. marshal and some of his deputies joined them after the federal grand jury returned the indictment.

Depugh and Miss Melville were driving along Interstate 70, within the Kansas City limits, when they were stopped.

Wilson said that when handcuffs were put on Depugh, Miss Melville jumped from the car and attacked Frank I. Belecky, one of the IRS men. Wilson said the deputies managed to get one handcuff on her and she swung at them with that.

The marshal said a sawed-off shotgun was found in the back seat of the Depugh car and a pistol was in a briefcase. The car carried luggage but Depugh declined to say where they were going.

Insurrection Charge Draws SNCC Protests

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee protested Saturday as "scandalous" and "illegal" charges of insurrection against a Negro teen - ager arrested while picketing an Army induction center.

William Ware, a SNCC spokesman, told a news conference that pickets would continue to march at the headquarters of the 12th Army Corps as a further expression of SNCC's displeasure.

Ware's comments, read from a prepared statement, were the first public reaction from SNCC since 10-year-old Johnny W. Wilson and other antiwar pickets were arrested two days ago.

About 12 pickets, some of them shouting, "black power," tried to storm the Army building Thursday. They grappled with police, knocking one officer to the pavement, before they were arrested.

The pickets, most of whom are connected with SNCC, were sentenced Friday by City Court Judge T. C. Little to jail terms ranging from 120 to 30 days.

Little, who said he has a son in Viet Nam, then invoked against Wilson an 1870 insurrection statute which carries a maximum penalty of death.

Ware's statement, read on a street corner in the predominantly Negro section called Vine City, said the pickets were on federal property where city police had no jurisdiction.

"Hence all of their absurd charges," said Ware," . . .were clearly a violation of the principle of separation of state and federal jurisdiction."

He labeled the insurrection charge "outrageous, shocking, scandalous" and "illegal" and said an around-the-clock "vigil" would be staged in Vine City until it is dropped.

"During the vigil," said Ware, "we will call on the black people in Atlanta to make donations from pennies to dollars to help cover the heavy bail and legal expenditures."

An attorney for Wilson and the other pickets said the insurrection statute has been ruled unconstitutional in its application by the U.S. Supreme Court

The lawyer, Howard Moore of Atlanta, said he probably wo appeal the sentences imposed on all the pickets. They were found guilty of various charges including resisting arrest and creating a disturbance.

During court proceedings, an Army sergeant said he saw Wilson tear the shirt of police Capt. G. M. Redding and hit him across the face.

Redding said Wilson was "like a wild person."

Wilson's bond was set at $4,000.

Heart Pump Patient Takes Breakfast

HOUSTON (UPI) — Mrs. Esperenza del Valle Vasquez, who has lived longer than any other person who has had a heart pump inserted and removed, walked eight feet from her hospital bed Saturday to eat breakfast.

"Her appetite is excellent,' a spokesman at Methodist Hospital said.

Mrs. Vasquez may leave the hospital in about two weeks if her condition continues to improve.

The 37-year-old Mexico City beauty operation underwent surgery Aug. 8 by Dr. Michael DeBakey, who replaced much of her heart's functions with a left ventricular bypass.

The device, which allowed her heart to rest and heal after surgery, was removed Thursday.

It has been performing more than 40 per cent of the load of her heart, weakened in childhood by rheumatic fever.

"Miss Vasquez continues to make progress and to recuperate," the hospital said. "She spent a very restful night."

DeBakey performed two other such operations, but both patients died within days.

A patient of Dr. Adrian Kantrowitz of Maimodes Hospital in New York lived 12 days after similar surgery.

A hospital spokesman asid Mrs. Vasquez walked with assistance to a chair. She sat in the chair while she ate the breakfast.

Mayors To Testify Before Senate Body

WASHINGTON (AP)— Confident the White House is listening, a Senate panel turns Monday to the nation's mayors in its search for answers to the explosive questions of ghetto-pocked American cities.

Before the week is out, eight mayors—four of them from cities which have experienced ghetto rioting—will testify in a Senate inquiry into the federal role in urban affairs.

After hearing—and often criticizing—top officials in charge of federal programs aimed at the cities, Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., said he wants to know what local governments are doing to help themselves.

"I'm not putting everything on the federal government's back," said Ribicoff, chairman of a Government Operations submayors have got a grave responsibility, too."

Ribicoff's inquiry began with a stormy round of questions for Secretary of Housing Robert C. Weaver.

The Connecticut senator and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., joined in accusing him of reciting old programs instead of suggesting new answers to the problems presented by big city slums.

Ribicofff also told Secretary of Welfare John W. Gardner that two hours of testimony had produced not one answer to the crisis of the cities.

But after a week of hearings, Ribicoff said the government's attitude toward city problems seems to be changing.

"It was a very fruitful week," he said in an interview. "I would say as of now, the reaction of the White House is plus—favorable toward these hearings."

These are the mayors due to testify this week: Monday, John V. Lindsay of New York; Tuesday, Jerome Cavanaugh, of Detroit, Samuel Yorty of Los Angeles; Wednesday, John Reading of Oakland, Calif.; Thursday, Richad Lee of New Haven, Conn., Ivan Allen of Atlanta, Ga.; Friday, A. W. Sorensen of Omaha, Neb.; Ralph S. Locher of Cleveland, Ohio.

Ribicoff would not say whether he discussed the inquiry with President Johnson.

But he said the administration has a positive reaction toward the inquiry — designed to assess the size and nature of all the afflictions facing urban centers.

Johnson's top advisers on urban problems — housing, poverty employment, justice, welfare, housing, education — unanimously urged congressional approval of the demonstration cities bill, designed to rehabilitate entire neighborhoods in the slums.

It passed the Senate on Friday.

"I see a new atmosphere toward the cities developing," said Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y. And Javits said he sensed new vigor at the White House.

Underscoring it, Johnson, in a Syracuse, N.Y., speech on Friday, outlined a new drive to deal with city ills.

He ordered steps to help slum dwellers obtain safe and decent housing, and announced that Cabinet officers dealing with city problems would meet every week at the White House, "to keep our cities program moving."

Ribicofff welcomed the Johnson speech, and said the new programs the President outlined should enable the government to act more promptly to deal with some big city ills.

New Yorkers Javits and Kennedy rushed from the Capitol to Syracuse in response to Johnson's invitation to be on hand when he gave the speech.

State Views Game Bid In Election

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Legal gambling intensified as a Nevada election issue during the week with the assertion that Las Vegas casinos contritubted to the governor's campaign.

Gov. Grant Sawyer, 47, a Democrat seeking a third term, got $100,000 from big Las Vegas resorts in the 1962 campaign, said Charles Springer, a Reno attorney and a Sawyer opponent in the Sept. 6 primary.

Sawyer declined to comment but his chief aide, Richard Ham, said the allegation was "patently false."

The governor received a "modest" sum from members of the Nevada Resort Association on the Las Vegas strip, as did all major candidates four years ago, said Ham. He divulged no figures.

Nevada has no law requiring state candidates to declare the sources of their campaign funds, nor is it illegal or uncommon for gambling casinos to contribute to election war chests. Legal gambling is a $300-million-a-year business in Nevada and a major taxpayer.

Springer, a former attorney general under Sawyer, said his assertion was "not an indictment. But I'm passing judgment on the fact that Sawyer is scampering around with his replies."

The exchange came as the Nevada Gaming Commission wound up the second phase of its unprecedented closed-door investigative hearings into alleged underworld ties ot Las Vegas casinos.

Sawyer called the inevestigation July 15 after the FBI admitted in federal court it had installed electronic eavesdropping devices in at least one Las Vegas casino. The FBI said the purpose was to gain evidence of "criminal and unlawful activity."

The other acknowledged reason was a series of newspaper articles reiterating frequent allegations that the underworld was raking off millions in untaxed casino profits from the strip.

West Monroe Parade Set Next Month

A parade through downtown West Monroe and Monroe will kick off the three-day West Monroe rodeo, sponsored by the West Monroe Jaycees, and West Monroe Riding Club, on Friday, Sept. 2 at 2 p.m. Parade marshal Shuman Nolan said that this year's parade, expected to be approximately two miles long, will be the largest rodeo parade ever held in this area.

The parade will feature area riding clubs and a large number of floats sponsored by area high schools, civic clubs and other organizations. First, second and third place awards will be presented to the riding clubs judged best dressed.

After proceeding through downtown West Monroe into downtown Monroe, the parade will disperse at DeSiard and 6th St.

Dates for the R.C. A approved rodeo are Sept. 2, 3, and 5. There will be no activities on Sunday, Sept. 4. According to Bobby Albritton, president of the West Monroe Riding Club, all indications point to this being the "largest, most well organized and best West Monroe rodeo ever."

Events of the rodeo will begin at 8 o'clock each night at the West Monroe Riding Club Arena on Harrell Road in West Monroe, and will include bareback riding, saddle broncos, bull riding, calf roping, steer wrestling, and ladies clover-leaf barrel racing.

Tom Hadley, well known announcer on the southern rodeo circuit, will return this year to report events. Albritton said Hadley "always keeps things moving at a rapid pace, describing each event in colorful terms."

France, Russia Study Hot Line

MOSCOW (AP) — France and the Soviet Union have taken no steps toward setting up a hot line, French sources said Saturday, despite agreement to do so nearly two months ago.

The two governments decided on establishing a direct communications link between the Kremlin and the Elysee Palace during French President Charles de Gaulle's visit here, June 20-July 1.

A French Embassy spokesman said Saturday that the line had not been yet installed and no target date had been set for its establishment.

To Fight Limiting Injunction

Negro Demonstrators Plan Marches Into Cicero

CHICAGO (AP) — Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. said Saturday civil rights demonstrators would march into suburban Cicero next weekend and that they would make a court fight against an injunction limiting their marches.

King also said he would lead a march into the Southwest Side South Deering district Sunday to protest alleged housing discrimination.

An earlier march into Cicero, a suburb where intense rioting erupted in 1951 when a Negro family moved in, was postponed earlier this month.

King said the demonstrators would abide by the terms of an injunction issued Friday until next week.

But, he added, if negotiations now in progress do not move forward at the next full meeting of civic leaders Friday and if the injunction is not altered in the courts, the civil rights groups will "have no alternative but to break the injunction."

King said he would lead the march into the South Deering district Sunday.

Speaking of the Aug. 28 march into Cicero, King said the open-housing campaign must extend into Chicago suburbs.

King made the announcements after a meeting with other leaders of the Chicago Freedom Movement.

He met with Albert Raby, convener of the Coordinating Council of Community Organizations, the field general; the Rev. Andrew Young, Southern Christian Leadership Conference executive director; the Rev. Jesse Jackson, a King aide; and Edwin Berry, executive director of the Chicago Urban League.

The topic of the meeting was an injunction asked by Mayor Richard J. Daley and granted on a temporary basis Friday by Judge Cornelius J. Harrington in Circuit Court to set official ground rules for civil rights marches. The marches have touched off wild disorders in white neighborhoods.

The court order curbs multiple mass demonstrations which were part of the King strategy. Specifically, it prescribes a limit of 500 marchers, permits only one march a day, and that in nonrush daylight hours and only after police are given 24 hours notice.

King's immediate reaction Friday termed the court action "unjust, illegal and unconstitutional" and promised "Sunday will be a big day in Chicago." He added: "We are prepared to put thousands in the street if necessary."

The injunction was based on a request by Police Supt. O. W. Wilson to curb the strain the demonstrations had exerted on the city's 10,000-member police force.

Mayor Daley took to television Friday night to explain the reasons for the City's Court action.

"This lawsuit does not in any way seek to inhibit or interfere with the constitutional rights of all citizens to petition for redress of grievances and to conduct reasonable demonstrations," he said.

"The only purpose of this suit is to end that kind of demonstration which has adversely affected the rights of all people by making it impossible for the Police Department to adequately protect the lives and property of every citizen," he said.

The mayor's office said Saturday that City Hall telephones had been jammed with calls from people commenting on Daley's television talk.

Earl Bush, Daley's press secretary, said the calls were "overwhelmingly commendatory."

"I can't quote the phone calls," Bush said, "but of 35 telegrams on my desk, 30 are endorsements of the mayor's action, 2 say his stand should be stronger, and 3 are opposed. Several use the terms, 'statesmanlike,' and 'courage' or 'courageous'."

One anonymous phone caller threatened to kill Daley.

The marching demonstration series which began July 24 were blamed in the city's suit for several millions of dollars in property damage, 27 deaths and injury to 374 persons including 61 police officers.

The basis for these assertions was not explained. No one has been killed during civil rights marches, although many were injured.

Mayors To Testify Before Senate Body

WASHINGTON (AP)— Confident the White House is listening, a Senate panel turns Monday to the nation's mayors in its search for answers to the explosive questions of ghetto-pocked American cities.

Before the week is out, eight mayors—four of them from cities which have experienced ghetto rioting—will testify in a Senate inquiry into the federal role in urban affairs.

After hearing—and often criticizing—top officials in charge of federal programs aimed at the cities, Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., said he wants to know what local governments are doing to help themselves.

"I'm not putting everything on the federal government's back," said Ribicoff, chairman of a Government Operations submayors have got a grave responsibility, too."

Ribicoff's inquiry began with a stormy round of questions for Secretary of Housing Robert C. Weaver.

The Connecticut senator and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., joined in accusing him of reciting old programs instead of suggesting new answers to the problems presented by big city slums.

Ribicofff also told Secretary of Welfare John W. Gardner that two hours of testimony had produced not one answer to the crisis of the cities.

But after a week of hearings, Ribicoff said the government's attitude toward city problems seems to be changing.

"It was a very fruitful week," he said in an interview. "I would say as of now, the reaction of the White House is plus—favorable toward these hearings."

These are the mayors due to testify this week: Monday, John V. Lindsay of New York; Tuesday, Jerome Cavanaugh, of Detroit, Samuel Yorty of Los Angeles; Wednesday, John Reading of Oakland, Calif.; Thursday, Richad Lee of New Haven,-Conn., Ivan Allen of Atlanta, Ga.; Friday, A. W. Sorensen of Omaha, Neb.; Ralph S. Locher of Cleveland, Ohio.

Ribicoff would not say whether he discussed the inquiry with President Johnson.

But he said the administration has a positive reaction toward the inquiry — designed to assess the size and nature of all the afflictions facing urban centers.

Johnson's top advisers on urban problems — housing, poverty employment, justice, welfare, housing, education — unanimously urged congressional approval of the demonstration cities bill, designed to rehabilitate entire neighborhoods in the slums.

It passed the Senate on Friday.

"I see a new atmosphere toward the cities developing," said Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y. And Javits said he sensed new vigor at the White House.

Underscoring it, Johnson, in a Syracuse, N.Y., speech on Friday, outlined a new drive to deal with city ills.

He ordered steps to help slum dwellers obtain safe and decent housing, and announced that Cabinet officers dealing with city problems would meet every week at the White House, "to keep our cities program moving."

Ribicofff welcomed the Johnson speech, and said the new programs the President outlined should enable the government to act more promptly to deal with some big city ills.

New Yorkers Javits and Kennedy rushed from the Capitol to Syracuse in response to Johnson's invitation to be on hand when he gave the speech.

State Views Game Bid In Election

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Legal gambling intensified as a Nevada election issue during the week with the assertion that Las Vegas casinos contritubted to the governor's campaign.

Gov. Grant Sawyer, 47, a Democrat seeking a third term, got $100,000 from big Las Vegas resorts in the 1962 campaign, said Charles Springer, a Reno attorney and a Sawyer opponent in the Sept. 6 primary.

Sawyer declined to comment but his chief aide, Richard Ham, said the allegation was "patently false."

The governor received a "modest" sum from members of the Nevada Resort Association on the Las Vegas strip, as did all major candidates four years ago, said Ham. He divulged no figures.

Nevada has no law requiring state candidates to declare the sources of their campaign funds, nor is it illegal or uncommon for gambling casinos to contribute to election war chests. Legal gambling is a $300-million-a-year business in Nevada and a major taxpayer.

Springer, a former attorney general under Sawyer, said his assertion was "not an indictment. But I'm passing judgment on the fact that Sawyer is scampering around with his replies."

The exchange came as the Nevada Gaming Commission wound up the second phase of its unprecedented closed-door investigative hearings into alleged underworld ties ot Las Vegas casinos.

Sawyer called the inevestigation July 15 after the FBI admitted in federal court it had installed electronic eavesdropping devices in at least one Las Vegas casino. The FBI said the purpose was to gain evidence of "criminal and unlawful activity."

The other acknowledged reason was a series of newspaper articles reiterating frequent allegations that the underworld was raking off millions in untaxed casino profits from the strip.

West Monroe Parade Set Next Month

A parade through downtown West Monroe and Monroe will kick off the three-day West Monroe rodeo, sponsored by the West Monroe Jaycees, and West Monroe Riding Club, on Friday, Sept. 2 at 2 p.m. Parade marshal Shuman Nolan said that this year's parade, expected to be approximately two miles long, will be the largest rodeo parade ever held in this area.

The parade will feature area riding clubs and a large number of floats sponsored by area high schools, civic clubs and other organizations. First, second and third place awards will be presented to the riding clubs judged best dressed.

After proceeding through downtown West Monroe into downtown Monroe, the parade will disperse at DeSiard and 6th St.

Dates for the R.C. A approved rodeo are Sept. 2, 3, and 5. There will be no activities on Sunday, Sept. 4. According to Bobby Albritton, president of the West Monroe Riding Club, all indications point to this being the "largest, most well organized and best West Monroe rodeo ever."

Events of the rodeo will begin at 8 o'clock each night at the West Monroe Riding Club Arena on Harrell Road in West Monroe, and will include bareback riding, saddle broncos, bull riding, calf roping, steer wrestling, and ladies clover-leaf barrel racing.

Tom Hadley, well known announcer on the southern rodeo circuit, will return this year to report events. Albritton said Hadley "always keeps things moving at a rapid pace, describing each event in colorful terms."

Ellender Cites Vote On Funds

World Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., said Saturday he voted to cut funds under the Urban Mass Transportation Act because he believes the affected cities should foot more of the bill.

Ellender also said he was in favor of calling up army reservists and national guardmen as allowed under the $58 million Defense Appropriations Bill, passed unanimously by the Senate last week.

Citing the grants and loans available to cities under the mass transport legislation, the senator said, "I have had strong reservations about the advisability of this federal assistance program, for I felt it would encourage our great cities to rely more and more upon the federal government for solutions to their problems, and less and less upon their own resources."

He said that the suburbs of these cities were the areas most benefitted by the mass transportation systems and that they should bear a "fair share" of the resulting cost for development.

"In my view," Ellender said, "the proper role of the federal government should be toward the encouragement of regional governments which could then make use of revenues derived from the entire service area."

During the course of floor debate on the bill, an amendment sponsored by Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex., to cut the funds in the bill from $225 million to $150 million was adopted, with Ellender's support.

The senator also reported that he had voted for an amendment to the defense bill that gave the President power to call up individual members of the ready reserve, many of whom have not yet served on active duty, for a period of 24 months.

Ellender admitted that this decision, if acted upon by President Johnson, would cause many individual hardships but said, "the high monthly draft that is now necessary also causes much hardships, and the fact is that many of our reserves have not been called to active duty at all, or have served actively for only a few months.

He said that if the current war trend continues, "it seems to me that before long the President will have to consider calling upon our reserve forces."

He said the draft is already biting deep into the supply of manpower, and "unless we call home some of our thousands of men stationed in Western Europe, as I have long advocated, it looks to me like the President will have to turn to the reserve forces which have already received their basic training."

Phone Installers Vote For Strike

NEW YORK (AP) — Telephone installers across the country Saturday night overwhelmingly authorized a strike against the Western Electric Co.

But their union, the Communication Workers of America, pointed to what it called "signs of life at the bargaining table," and said renewed efforts to halt a strike will be resumed today.

Joseph A. Beirne, president of the union representing 22,000 telephone installers, said the 7-1 vote in favor of authorizing the executive board to call a strike "loudly and clearly rejected the 8- to 14-cents-per-hour offer" which Western Electric made public Friday.

A state would halt installation of heavy telephone equipment such as switchboards. The union has said 300,000 other union members would respect picket lines.

While this could hamper a considerable part of the nation's telephone service, automated equipment would be expected to get most telephone calls through.

Beirne said ballots mailed from around the country totaled 14,529 in favor of a walkout, and 1,924 against. All that remains, he said, is a poll of the executive board, a step which he urged be held off pending further negotiations.

A spokesman for the union Friday termed the company's 8-to-14-cent offer, made in the midst of the strike vote, "not anywhere near what it would have to be for our members."

Setting "a substantial wage increase," as one of its demands, the CWA has said it hopes to "shatter the 3.2 guidelines" and base its settlement on that in the just-ended airline strike, where machinists got an estimated six per cent wage boost per year.

It referred to President Johnson's guidelines that sought to limit wage hikes to 3.2 per cent, a figure the President felt was the maximum allowable without inflation.

Installers now make an average of $3.21 an hour. Installers have been working on a day-to-day basis since their contract expired July 28.

A spokesman for Western Electric said the company "expects bargaining to continue." He said "progress has been made," but added, "Our latest wage offer was for increases ranging from 8 to 14 cents an hour."

Greek-Arabic Agreements

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Greece and the United Arab Republic initialled an agreement Friday night for payment of compensation for Greek property nationalized in Egypt.

A Greek Foreign Ministry statement issued Friday at the end of the two-year-old negotiations said the U.A.R. had agreed to pay Greece $19 million as compensation to Greeks who's properties had been nationalized by the Egyptian government.

The sum will be paid in goods through the Greek -Egyptian clearing agreement. The final agreement will be signed in Cairo next month.

LBJ Studies Water Plans Via 'Copter

BURLINGTON, Vt. (AP) — President Johnson took a helicopter flight over Lake Champlain on Saturday and had a look at the spot where a $2,835,000 rural water supply project will start construction Monday.

With Democratic Gov. Philip H. Hoff and Vermont's two Republican senators — George D. Aiken and Winston Prouty — aboard, Johnson inspected the site of the new water system which is expected to help revitalize the area dairy industry in Addison County.

It's a three-town system for Addison, Bridport and Shoreham which will take water from the lake, treat it, and pump it out into a storage tank where it can be used to feed 93 miles of mains.

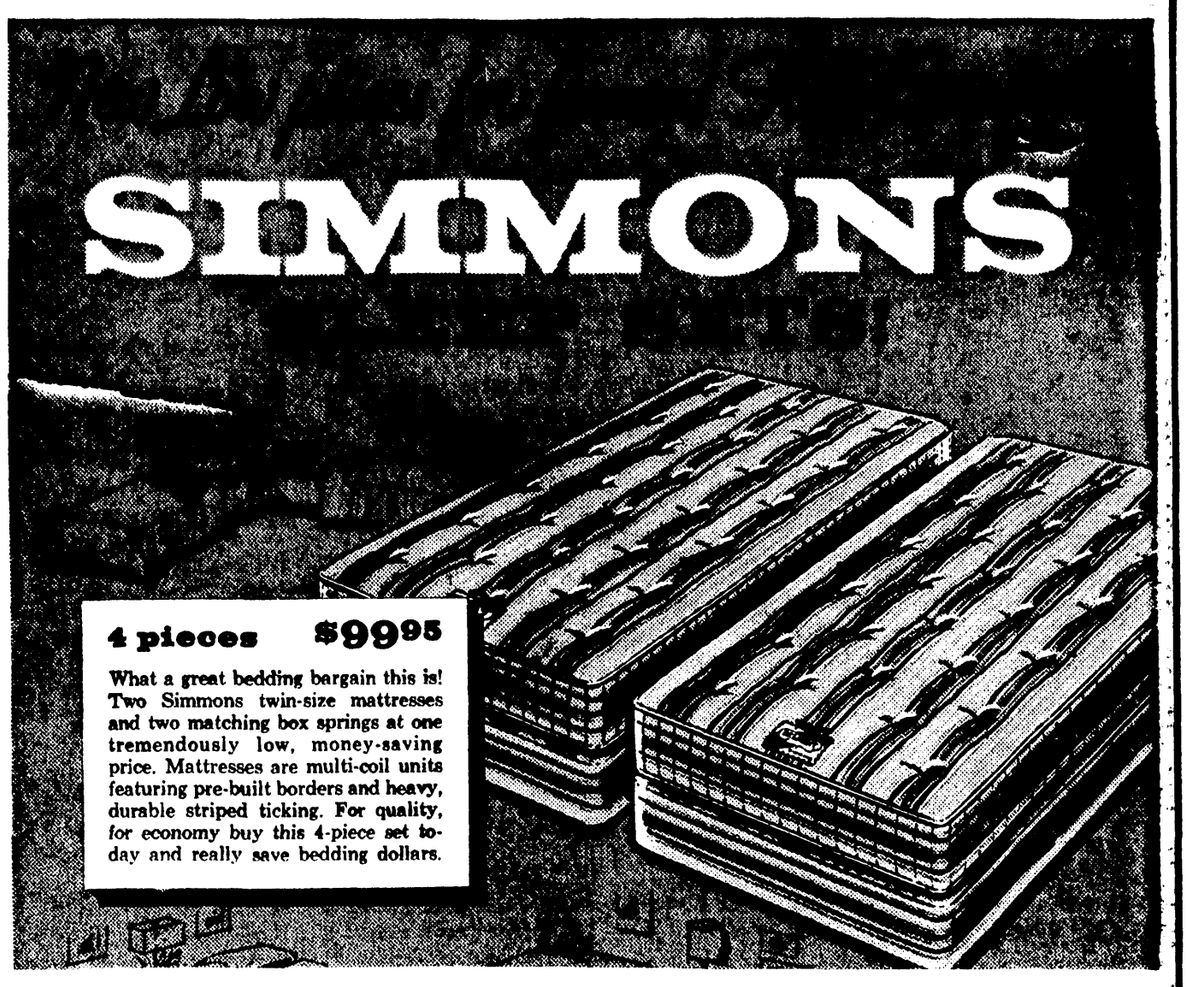

The federal government is providing $2,129,000 in loans and grants to finance the cost and Vermont is supplying a $706,000 grant.

On the flight, Johnson kept up a fast round of consultations and chatter with William Collins, county superintendent of the Federal Farmers Home Administration.

The trip began at Burlington Airport and ended at the Burlington High School athletic field, where Johnson motored to Battery Park on the shore of Lake Champlain to make a speech on conservation.

A crowd of thousands stood under the elm trees in Battery Park and applauded. Lt. Gov. John J. Daley, the first Democrat to hold the office in more than a century, warmed the crowd up before the presidential arrival.

It's a three-town system for Addison, Bridport and Shoreham which will take water from the lake, treat it, and pump it out into a storage tank where it can be used to feed 93 miles of mains.

The federal government is providing $2,129,000 in loans and grants to finance the cost and Vermont is supplying a $706,000 grant.

On the flight, Johnson kept up a fast round of consultations and chatter with William Collins, county superintendent of the Federal Farmers Home Administration.

The trip began at Burlington Airport and ended at the Burlington High School athletic field, where Johnson motored to Battery Park on the shore of Lake Champlain to make a speech on conservation.

A crowd of thousands stood under the elm trees in Battery Park and applauded. Lt. Gov. John J. Daley, the first Democrat to hold the office in more than a century, warmed the crowd up before the presidential arrival.

Ellender Cites Vote On Funds

World Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., said Saturday he voted to cut funds under the Urban Mass Transportation Act because he believes the affected cities should foot more of the bill.

Ellender also said he was in favor of calling up army reservists and national guardmen as allowed under the $58 million Defense Appropriations Bill, passed unanimously by the Senate last week.

Citing the grants and loans available to cities under the mass transport legislation, the senator said, "I have had strong reservations about the advisability of this federal assistance program, for I felt it would encourage our great cities to rely more and more upon the federal government for solutions to their problems, and less and less upon their own resources."

He said that the suburbs of these cities were the areas most benefitted by the mass transportation systems and that they should bear a "fair share" of the resulting cost for development.

"In my view," Ellender said, "the proper role of the federal government should be toward the encouragement of regional governments which could then make use of revenues derived from the entire service area."

During the course of floor debate on the bill, an amendment sponsored by Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex., to cut the funds in the bill from $225 million to $150 million was adopted, with Ellender's support.

The senator also reported that he had voted for an amendment to the defense bill that gave the President power to call up individual members of the ready reserve, many of whom have not yet served on active duty, for a period of 24 months.

Ellender admitted that this decision, if acted upon by President Johnson, would cause many individual hardships but said, "the high monthly draft that is now necessary also causes much hardships, and the fact is that many of our reserves have not been called to active duty at all, or have served actively for only a few months.

He said that if the current war trend continues, "it seems to me that before long the President will have to consider calling upon our reserve forces."

He said the draft is already biting deep into the supply of manpower, and "unless we call home some of our thousands of men stationed in Western Europe, as I have long advocated, it looks to me like the President will have to turn to the reserve forces which have already received their basic training."

Japanese Aids Ailing Drummer

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—Joe Watkins, one of the great Dixieland drummers, has found out that the old cliche "hands across the sea" is more than an idle phrase.

The 66-year-old Watkins, 95 pounds lighter than he was four years ago, is confined to his bed with a heart ailment.

Yoichi Kimura, a drummer Watkins met while touring Japan, is staying in New Orleans to help nurse Watkins.

Kimura, a Watkins fan for years, is a member of a Japanese Dixieland group called the New Orleans Rascals. Kimura and the group recently came to the United States and when Kimura learned his idol was ill he stayed on to help take care of him.

Kimura visited Watkins' tiny apartment Saturday and prepared a Japanese noodle feast for the ailing musician.

Joe's friends want to put him in a nursing home. Watkins doesn't care where he goes "just as long as somebody there can help me get back on my feet."

"See, some drummers get around my age and they give up because of weak legs," said Watkins. 'But I want to get back on my legs.

"A bass drum is a funny thing," he continued. "If you don't have a solid beat, you don't have a thing. I want to get out there and beat like I want."

Testimony By 3 Area Men Slated

J. P. Brown of Lake Providence, Paul Ransom of Monroe and Duke Shackleford of Bonita are among the Louisiana cotton growers expected to testify at a public hearing in Memphis, Tenn., Monday in support of a proposed order to establish a new research and promotion program.

The order was authorized by Congress this year in the Cotton Research and Promotion Act. Cotton producer leadership in Louisiana worked for passage of the legislation which is designed to enable farmers to engage in a self-help voluntary program to expand the markets for cotton.

The hearing was requested by the National Cotton Council and will be held at four locations across the Cotton Belt. The purpose is to determine grower sentiment on establishing a uniform collection of $1 per bale for expanded research and promotion.

Courthouse Bids Slated On Monday

The Ouachita Parish Police Jury Monday will receive bids for the second time on courthouse renovation and expansion.

Bids taken earlier came in over the $1.7 million bond issue for the project.

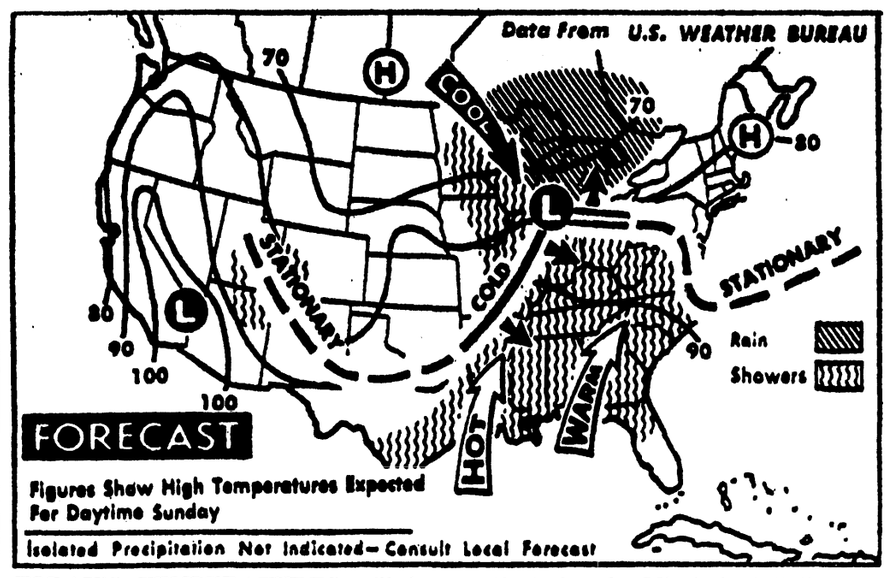

Ward 10 juror Robert Downing, chairman of the courthouse plans to bring the bids "within the money" still left a good building.

The shaving of the plans "will not effect the structure nor deter the appearance. We substituted some things and eliminated others we didn't need," he said.

Homebuilders Meeting Set

The 1966 annual convention of the Louisiana State Home Builders Association to be held in New Orleans in the fall will be combined with a Gulf South Builders Conference. The conference will begin on Thursday, October 13 and run through Friday, October 14, while the convention part of the program will start at noon on Friday, October 14 and close Saturday evening, October 15.

Frank P. Boimare, State HBA president, and a past president of the New Orleans host HBA, in making the announcement said that the conference is expected to draw builders from surrounding southern states in addition to the Louisiana members, especially in view of the current conditions in the home building industry.

TODAY'S TEMPERATURES will be cooler in the Upper Mississippi Valley and the upper Lakes. Rain is forecast for the lower Lakes and the southern Rockies. Scattered showers are the outlook for the Mississippi Valley, the Ohio and Tennessee valleys, the south Atlantic coast and the Gulf coast. (AP Wirephoto Map)

Boston Strangler Wants To Pay Debt

BOSTON (AP) — Life in a mental institution under study of outstanding psychiatrists to pay his "debt to society" is reportedly the hope of the man who says he is the Boston strangler.

The man is already in Bridgewater State Hospital and police say he admits to killing 13 women in three eastern Masssachusetts counties between June 14, 1962 and Jan. 4, 1964.

The Sunday Advertiser and the Record American has conducted an exhaustive investigation and, starting in Sunday's Advertiser and continuing daily in the Record American, will publish a copyright series on the fantastic story.

The papers' team of three reporters interviewed hundreds of persons and studied thousands of official documents seeking the facts.

The paper says the man "stepped almost impteuously out of a forest of suspects" to make his alleged confession, and adds: "'In all respects, almost nothing is certain — not even what the public has been prayerfully trying to believe — that there is, or was, only one Boston strangler, that he is presently in the psychiatric ward of a state institution and that he is, therefore, safely segregated from society."

The man says he strangled 10 women, fatally beat another, stabbed another, and counts as a victim a 72-year-old Boston woman who died in his arms as he was about to strangle her, the paper says.

The advertiser says a tape recording of over 50 hours of questioning of the man is in a bank vault. Also under strict security is a recital of damaging disclosures made while the man was under hypnosis.

The questioning was conducted by former Asst. Attty. Gen. John S. Bottomly, who headed a special strangler bureau established Jan. 17, 1964, by Attty. Gen. Edward W. Brooke.

The paper says the man's lawyer was present during all the questioning.

The records were made with the understanding by defense counsel they would not be used to bring him to trial, the paper says.

He has two lawyers, F. Lee Bailey of Boston and Jon A. Asgeirsson of Stoneham. And the paper says both are anxious to have their client brought to trial.

His lawyers say they are ready to plead their client is innocent by reason of insanity.

The man in Bridgewater, the Advertiser says, is mild-mannered, neat, clear-eyed and "rather ordinary looking." He reportedly takes offense when obscenity is used in his presence.

When questioned why he stabbed two of his victims, the man is said to have replied that he had his reasons.

"Each of them, he explains — and he weeps as he remembers the incidents — had said something which had affronted him," the Advertiser says.

He recalled that one woman called him an "animal" and the other "made some similarly unflattering reference to him."

The vicitms in the bizarre series of sadistic killings ranged in age from 19 to 76. "Age made no difference," the paper quotes him.

The Advertiser says the man is reported "to entertain no hope of ever gaining his freedom. He is content to be confined to the best mental institution in the country, to be studied by the ablest pychiatrists — to pay his 'debt to society.'"

The self-styled Boston strangler, the paper says, contends he is "the one and absolutely the only strangler, though he refers to himself as the S-man, or Mr. S, because there is something about that other word (strangler), ironically, that sticks in his craw."

Several police officials, who worked tirelessly seeking a solution of the multiple killings, are convinced the man is telling the truth.

There are doubts among other officials. The paper says, "'At least one prosecutor expresses grave doubt that all the crimes can be attributed to one killer."

Bangkok Economy Aided By Nearby Viet War

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP)—Thanks to the war in nearby Viet Nam, Bangkok is hustling, bustling and booming as never before.

American GIs, officials and tourists are dropping a shower of dollar into eager Thai palms, thus financing unprecedented prosperity in this capital.

Inevitably, this is introducing a new, racy tempo that threatens to push into the background what some Thais regard as their elegant and romantic culture.

The best hotels still can call on the Fine Arts School for classical performers who demonstrate the graceful, hand-waving dances of old Siam for suitably appreciative American tourists.

But out on the streets, where the buck is chased with fervor by a new generation of Thais, neon signs light the way to hundreds of bars, honky-tonks and what are known here as "steam baths and massage parlors."

Exocit Siam? Not at all. It's "Miss Tomoko, exotic dancer from Japan, " or Anita Barce, "torch singer."

Anita and scores iike her are belting out the latest hit tunes in places with names calculated to give a nostalgic beat to the toughest GI heart—San Francisco Bar, Duffy's Tavern, Playboy's Bar.

The bosom, once of no special erotic interest in Asia, is the central theme of movie and night-club advertising that promises an entertaining, if not relaxing, stay in Bangkok.

About 32,000 American servicemen stationed in Viet Nam hit Bangkok on rest and recuperation leaves in the first seven months of this year.

Thousands more from Viet Nam—or from among the 27,000 Americans stationed in Thailand, itself—also arrived on shorter leaves.

This means hundreds of thousands of dollars monthly for Bangkok, which hasn't seen that kind of quick money in all the years since Kublai Khan's hordes ran wild in China's Yangtze Valley in the 1200s and sent refugees fleeing southward to settle present-day Thailand.

By all accounts, the GI invasion of Bangkok, a city of two million, has been remarkably frictionless. Thai officials may object when GIs kiss their girls in public but U.S. officials go to considerable length to prevent anything more serious.

A briefing officer at Bangkok airport gives incoming GIs the once-over-lightly on Thai customs, religions—and where not to go if trouble is to be avoided.

While Bangkok's prosperity is based somewhat on "R and R," there are indications much of it is taking root.

Woman Cigar Smoker Sees Gains Wiped Out

BOSTON (UPI) — Rosemary O'Brien, a Chicago redhead who pioneered the integration of the previously segregationist Cigar Smokers of America, saw many of her gains wiped out Saturday.

As Rosemary lay sick in bed in Chicago with a virus, conventioning male members here rammed through a bylaw change which will make it virtually impossible for a female to be named a convention delegate for years to come.

Miss O'Brien broke the sex barrier two years ago when the cigar smokers agreed to allow women to be admitted to chapters, or humidors as they are called, as "associate members."

In the role of associate member, the women were allowed to attend meetings but had no voice or vote in the humidor affairs. In addition, each humidor was allowed to decide for itself whether to bestow membership on women.

Chicago was the only chapter to take on women members. It now has three.

Saturday the conventioners, meeting in an undoubtedly smoke-filled room at the Bradford Hotel, amended the bylaws to provide that no woman may be named a delegate until all 11 humidors agree to admit women.

Farm Bureau Urges More Registration

BATON ROUGE (AP) — The president of the Louisiana Farm Bureau Federation said Saturday more advocates of constitutional government must register and vote to offset "bloc voting" in the second primary and general election in Luisiana.

President James Graugnard said, "This is not the time for the blind bloc voting, but unfortunately many of our citizens have been merely led to the voting places like so many sheep."

"Whether the men we elect during the two elections are going to Washington or serving in our own local communities, we must be sure they are the kind of men who believe in preserving the free enterprise system against the encroachment of the federal government," he added.

Abandoning Fire Station Brings Order

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The unmanning of a fire station here earlier this week resulted Saturday in an order to "immediately discontinue" use of any fire department equipment in transporting firemen to look at proofs of photos for an album.

Thomas Heier Jr., the city's chief administrative officer, issued the order after the Fire Advisory Board recommended such use of equipment be stopped. The order was directed at Fire Chief Arthur Heyd.

The board met in an emergency session called by Heier after a story in the States-Item revealed an uptown fire station was vacated for more than an hour because the crew had left to look at proofs.

Girl Found By Searchers Under Rock

CAIRO, N.Y. (AP) — Debra Smith was found alive Saturday night by two searchers who discovered the 7-year-old girl crouched under a rock about five miles from the Catskill Game Farm, where her parents had reported her missing after a family outing Thursday.

State police said the girl apparently was in good condition.

The discovery climaxed a search that had gone on for nearly 48 hours through heavily wooded areas on and near the game farm, about 25 miles south of Albany. Several hundred volunteers joined state police and conservation department officials in the hunt.

Among the searchers was Debra's father, St. Sgt. John R. Smith, stationed at Andrews Air Force Base, Md.

He and Mrs. Smith, accompanied by Debra's sister and brother and paternal grandmother, had spent a day at the farm Thursday. As the family was packing to leave the farm, Smith noticed his daughter missing. She apparently had gone to look at the bed of a dried-up stream, he said.

As the search went on, state police called in a helicopter and bloodhounds. Hundreds of area residents volunteered to help out, as did Boy Scouts and their troop leaders and, finally, fellow Air Forcemen from Stewart Air Force Base at Newburgh, and from Maryland.

The searchers marched shoulder to shoulder through the rocky, densely wooded area Friday and Saturday, while Mrs. Smith maintained a vigil at the game farm.

Debra was the first child reported lost overnight at the 30-year-old game farm, which comprises 136 acres.

Italian Red Wants Move For Anti-War

ROME (AP) — An Italian Communist party leader said Saturday night his party should not put pressure on Moscow for a "counterescalation" of the war in Viet Nam.

But Giorgio Amendola said communism must do what it can to establish a powerful mass antiwar movement in the capitalist countries. Amendola is a member of the party directorate and a deputy in Parliament.

His views were carried in today's edition of L'Unita, the Italian Communist party organ, in an article marking the second anniversary of the death of Palmiro Togliatti, who led the party for 40 years.

"There are those in Western Europe who invite us to put pressure on the Socialist (Communist) states, especially the Soviet Union, to have them respond blow for blow to the American war escalation with a counterescalation," Amendola said.

"I think this invitation must be rejected. Our task is to do much more ourselves so that a powerful mass movement capable of stopping the war race can originate within the capitalist countries."

ADDITION TO THE existing offices of Ford, Bacon & Davis Construction Corporation, 3901 Jackson St., Monroe, was announced Saturday by George O. Phillips, president. The new structure immediately south of the present building, will house the engineering facilities in its 18,000 square feet. Cost of the structure is approximately $250,000. The present building will house the administrative and service functions of the company.

Engineering Annex Will Be Built

George O. Phillips, president of Ford, Bacon & Davis Construction Corporation announced Saturday the authorization of construction of an engineering annex to the existing facilities at 3901 Jackson St., Monroe.

Authorization of the new project was approved by the board of directors recently.

The new structure will be directly south of the existing office building, facing Jackson St. It will have approximately 18,000 square feet of usable space. All engineering facilities will be moved from the existing building into the new building, which is scheduled for completion in December. Cost of the new structure, its furniture and fixtures is approximately $250,000.

The existing building will be renovated to house the administrative and service functions of the company, including executive, purchasing, expediting and accounting. The reception area and communications center will remain in the existing building.

On April 30, 1944, the first Permanent office of the construction corporation was located in the Ouachita National Bank Building in Monroe. Since that time, the firm has constantly expanded its operations in Monroe. In late 1945, it moved its base of operations from the Ouachita Bank Building to 805 South Grand Street were more commodious quarters could be provided and parking space for their employees was available. By 1957, these quarters had become too small, and the new office building was designed and built to house the permanent staff of the corporation at 3901 Jackson Street. The new quarters were officialy opened December 1, 1957.

Northeast will add a building construction curriculum and a graduate program in pharmacy to its academic offerings this fall. Both programs will be the only ones of their kinds in Louisiana.

Solon Sees Drawbacks To Vote Plan

GULFPORT, Miss. (AP) — A Harrison County member of the Mississippi House-Senate Reapportionment Study Committee said Saturday he does not believe a recommended plan meets the "one man, one vote" test of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Rep. Sherman Muths of Gulfport said it "was with a great deal of reluctance that I opposed these plans in the committee and voted against recommending them to the governor and to the legislature."

Muths asserted too many deviations from a population norm for the various districts exist in the recommended plan.

He said his reapportionment plan, "whereby no district was more than 20 per cent above or below the norm," was turned down by the committee.

But, he added, "I intend to submit this plan to the full House of Representatives when the special session is ordered by the governor."

Muths said he feared that if the legislature "does not properly reapportion itself" it will be ordered by the federal court to hold "at large" elections "Which would be lengthy, confusing and costly, and in general a chaotic condition."

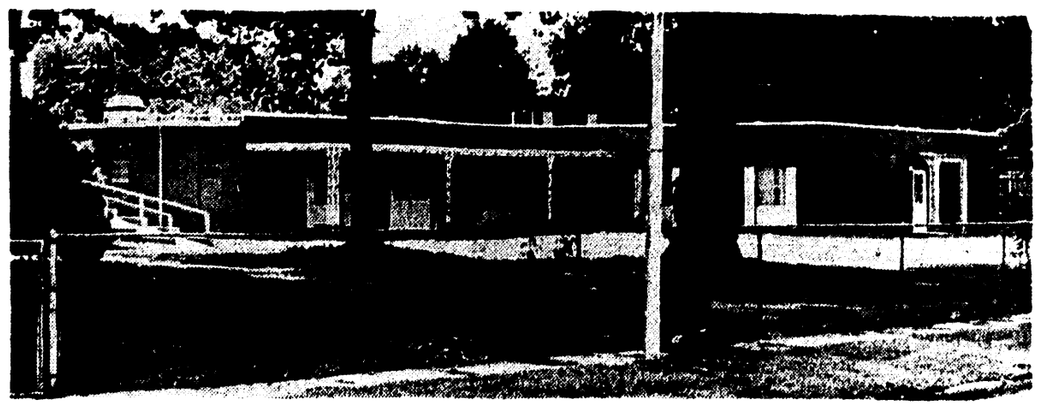

At large elections would force all candidates to enter into state wide campaigns, instead of having legislators chosen by small districts.

Farm Bureau Urges More Registration

BATON ROUGE (AP) — The president of the Louisiana Farm Bureau Federation said Saturday more advocates of constitutional government must register and vote to offset "bloc voting" in the second primary and general election in Louisiana.

President James Graugnard said, "This is not the time for the blind bloc voting, but unfortunately many of our citizens have been merely led to the voting places like so many sheep."

"Whether the men we elect during the two elections are going to Washington or serving in our own local communities, we must be sure they are the kind of men who believe in preserving the free enterprise system against the encroachment of the federal government," he added.

Abandoning Fire Station Brings Order

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The unmanning of a fire station here earlier this week resulted Saturday in an order to "immediately discontinue" use of any fire department equipment in transporting firemen to look at proofs of photos for an album.

Thomas Heier Jr., the city's chief administrative officer, issued the order after the Fire Advisory Board recommended such use of equipment be stopped. The order was directed at Fire Chief Arthur Heyd.

The board met in an emergency session called by Heier after a story in the States-Item revealed an uptown fire station was vacated for more than an hour because the crew had left to look at proofs.

Girl Found By Searchers Under Rock

CAIRO, N.Y. (AP) — Debra Smith was found alive Saturday night by two searchers who discovered the 7-year-old girl crouched under a rock about five miles from the Catskill Game Farm, where her parents had reported her missing after a family outing Thursday.

State police said the girl apparently was in good condition.

The discovery climaxed a search that had gone on for nearly 48 hours through heavily wooded areas on and near the game farm, about 25 miles south of Albany. Several hundred volunteers joined state police and conservation department officials in the hunt.

Among the searchers was Debra's father, St. Sgt. John R. Smith, stationed at Andrews Air Force Base, Md.

He and Mrs. Smith, accompanied by Debra's sister and brother and paternal grandmother, had spent a day at the farm Thursday. As the family was packing to leave the farm. Smith noticed his daughter missing. She apparently had gone to look at the bed of a dried-up stream, he said.

As the search went on, state police called in a helicopter and bloodhounds. Hundreds of area residents volunteered to help out, as did Boy Scouts and their troop leaders and, finally, fellow Air Forcemen from Stewart Air Force Base at Newburgh, and from Maryland.

The searchers marched shoulder to shoulder through the rocky, densely wooded area Friday and Saturday, while Mrs. Smith maintained a vigil at the game farm.

Debra was the first child reported lost overnight at the 30-year-old game farm, which comprises 136 acres.

Italian Red Wants Move For Anti-War

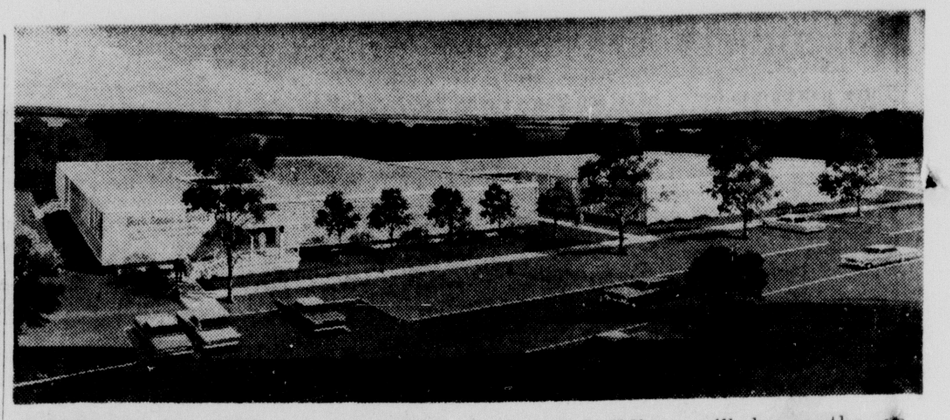

ROME (AP) — An Italian Communist party leader said Saturday night his party should not put pressure on Moscow for a "counterescalation" of the war in Viet Nam.

But Giorgio Amendola said communism must do what it can to establish a powerful mass antiwar movement in the capitalist countries. Amendola is a member of the party directorate and a deputy in Parliament.

His views were carried in today's edition of L'Unita, the Italian Communist party organ, in an article marking the second anniversary of the death of Palmiro Togliatti, who led the party for 40 years.

"There are those in Western Europe who invite us to put pressure on the Socialist (Communist) states, especially the Soviet Union, to have them respond blow for blow to the American war escalation with a counterescalation," Amendola said.

"I think this invitation must be rejected. Our task is to do much more ourselves so that a powerful mass movement capable of stopping the war race can originate within the capitalist countries."

ADDITION TO THE existing offices of Ford, Bacon & Davis Construction Corporation, 3901 Jackson St., Monroe, was announced Saturday by George O. Phillips, president. The new structure immediately south of the present building, will house the engineering facilities in its 18,000 square feet. Cost of the structure is approximately $250,000. The present building will house the administrative and service functions of the company.

Engineering Annex Will Be Built

George O. Phillips, president of Ford, Bacon & Davis Construction Corporation announced Saturday the authorization of construction of an engineering annex to the existing facilities at 3901 Jackson St., Monroe.

Authorization of the new project was approved by the board of directors recently.

The new structure will be directly south of the existing office building, facing Jackson St. It will have approximately 18,000 square feet of usable space. All engineering facilities will be moved from the existing building into the new building, which is scheduled for completion in December. Cost of the new structure, its furniture and fixtures is approximately $250,000.

The existing building will be renovated to house the administrative and service functions of the company, including executive, purchasing, expediting and accounting. The reception area and communications center will remain in the existing building.

On April 30, 1944, the first Permanent office of the construction corporation was located in the Ouachita National Bank Building in Monroe. Since that time, the firm has constantly expanded its operations in Monroe. In late 1945, it moved its base of operations from the Ouachita Bank Building to 805 South Grand Street were more commodious quarters could be provided and parking space for their employees was available. By 1957, these quarters had become too small, and the new office building was designed and built to house the permanent staff of the corporation at 3901 Jackson Street. The new quarters were officialy opened December 1, 1957.

Enrollment Hike At Northeast Seen

The 1966-67 academic year will begin at Northeast Louisiana State College Sept. 14 with an increase in enrollment expected, five new facilities to be ready for use, and instruction to begin in two new programs.

Registration will be held at the College Sept. 14-15, Wednesday and Thursday, with classes to begin Friday, Sept. 16.

Prior to registration, dormitories and eating facilities will open for freshmen students Sunday, Sept. 11, and freshman orientation will be held Sept. 12-13.

Dormitories will open for upperclassmen at 1 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 13.

Registration for Saturday, late afternoon and evening classes will be held Saturday, Sept. 10, and Monday, Sept. 12 at Northeast.

Registration for Saturday, late afternoon and evening classes will be held Saturday, Sept. 10, and Monday,y Sept. 12 at Northeast.

Last year 5,140 students registered for the fall semester at Northeast and a large increase over that figure is expected this year, according to Dr. Lake Oxford, registrar.

New facilities that will open this fall include the new science center, a cafeteria, two dormitories and a traffic bridge across Bayou DeSaird.

The $1.5-million science center on College Avenue will house the Departments of Mathematics, Physics, Geology and Building Construction, along with a modern foreign languages laboratory.

To be Northeast's fourth dining facility, the $286,617 cafeteria is located on Bayou Drive.

The two new dormitories will house a total of 836 students, 432 in the $1,119,400 men's dormitory on Bon Aire Drive and 404 in the $1,131,000 women's dormitory at the corner of Hippolite Street and College Avenue.

The traffic bridge will be an extension of Hippolite Street, which will intersect Bon Aire Drive.

Northeast will add a building construction curriculum and a graduate program in pharmacy to its academic offerings this fall. Both programs will be the only ones of their kinds in Louisiana.

Solon Sees Drawbacks To Vote Plan

GULFPORT, Miss. (AP) — A Harrison County member of the Mississippi House-Senate Reapportionment Study Committee said Saturday he does not believe a recommended plan meets the "one man, one vote" test of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Rep. Sherman Muths of Gulfport said it "was with a great deal of reluctance that I opposed these plans in the committee and voted against recommending them to the governor and to the legislature."

Muths asserted too many deviations from a population norm for the various districts exist in the recommended plan.

He said his reapportionment plan, "whereby no district was more than 20 per cent above or below the norm," was turned down by the committee.

But, he added, "I intend to submit this plan to the full House of Representatives when the special session is ordered by the governor."

Muths said he feared that if the legislature "does not properly reapportion itself" it will be ordered by the federal court to hold "at large" elections "Which would be lengthy, confusing and costly, and in general a chaotic condition."

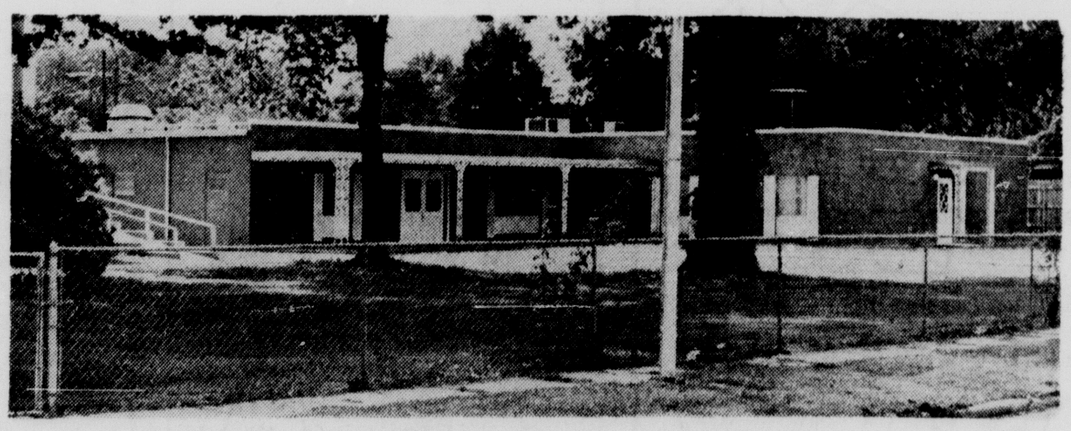

At large elections would force all candidates to enter into state wide campaigns, instead of having legislators chosen by small districts.

Biggest Since Reconstruction

Texas GOP Hopeful Of Election Gains

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Texas Republicans — pushed into a deep, dark cellar in the 1964 elections — could make more gains in November than anytime since reconstruction days.

But, it is expected to come on an all or nothing basis.

The Republicans, who had only state Rep. Frank Cahoon of Midland and U.S. Sen. John Tower to call their own after President Johnson's sweep in 1964, have picked their spots for November, and many observers believe they picked them well.

"It will be feast or famine," one top-ranking Republican official said. "If Tower runs strong in Dallas and Houston we could have 18 to 20 representatives in the House."

That would be a feast. The GOP has never had more than eight representatives in the statehouse this century.

And, observers feel the Republicans could place at least three members in the Senate. State Rep. Hank Grover of Houston and Ike Harris and Thomas Crouch in Dallas are all given a good chance to win the voters' favor.

A victory by any one of the candidates would strengthen the party position, since there has not been a GOP member of the Senate since the 1800s.

It is a far different picture from that painted by GOP officials early this year.

They indicated, at least statewide, that they were going to put all their eggs in one basket and push Tower to victory in his fight against Attty. Gen. Waggoner Carr.

But, five of their six congressional candidates are considered 50-50 to better odds to win, and even three statewide hopefuls have decided they don't like the "token candidate" label.

Albert Fay of Houston, Republican National Commmitteeman who made the race for land commissioner in 1962, definitely plans to try and unseat Democrat Jerry Sadler.

Fay, who received 34 per cent of the vote in that run, has been living up support, and plans to start an intensive campaign in early September. High officials in the party said Fay has already made his brochure, and is expected to get some boosts from the Latin-American oriented "Democrats for Tower" groups in San Antonio and Corpus Christi.

It also gave him a big boost down the line when the state AFL-CIO endorsed the Republican, the first time in state history a GOP hopeful has drawn the labor stamp of approval.

Rudy Garza of Corpus Christi, the GOP candidate for comptroller, has also made it known to close associates that he plans to shake loose and stage a strong campaign against Robert S. Calvert. The "Democrats for Tower" groups in Garza's city and San Antonio are ready to unroll the banners and help both Fay and Garza in such a move.

Richardson attorney Robb Stewart, making the attorney general's race against Democratic nominee Crawford Martin, shook loose last month to announce he would stage a strong battle.

But, on the whole, the GOP eyes are on the Tower-Carr race, and the benefits they expect to derive from it.

The GOP has 42 state representative candidates, 10 senatorial hopefuls and six in congressional races who hope Tower will run strong enough to give them a "feast" instead of another 1964 "famine."

Bohemian Engages In Artistic Pursuit

By TRAVIS MAYO
World Staff Writer

To be a beatnik in Monroe is an impossibility. If the theory of Paul Tillich is valid, those here who claim such a distinction are wistful thinkers.

Use of the term "local beatnik" in connection with the John Lennon - inspired rebelliousness against the draft and religion calls for clarification of the concept.

The beatnik is the 20th century version of the 19th century bohemian and bohemianism is a movement that is possible only in very large cities the size of New York, London and Paris. "The beatnik movement of the 1950s reflected many of the standard practices of bohemianism," University of North Carolina professor Harry Bergholz has explained.

If there is a beatnik in Monroe, he is an imported product and the others are only eager spirits who wish to enjoy the titillation of flounting convention but who do not desire to stray far from the secure social hearth.

Even in large cities many who claim the name meet only the surface reqquirement; they manage to live in a more or less unconventional manner. The true beatnik-bohemian is more than a vagabond with easy morals.

MODE OF LIFE

He is a "follower of art, literature, or other intellectual pursuits, who adopts a mode of life in protest against, or indifference to, the common conventions of society."

This definition automatically excludes Beatle John Lennon, along with many of his boosters, in spite of Lennon's antimilitaristic pronouncemnts.

If the aspiring beatnik wishes to go bohemian it will do well for him to discover what constitutes this mode of life. The bohemian traditionally has rebelled for constructive reasons.

Bohemianism goes back to the early decades of the 19th century when students, musicians, painters, dramatists, novelists and journalists began to model after the 15th century gypsies who had no roots in the settled order of things. The model also was the wandering scholars who in the Middle Ages roamed from university to university.

Traditionally the bohemian is a romanticist with his eyes raised to the higher truths of art and nature, a walking protest against social sham and all sorts of rules of behavior. He is a man in search of the truth even if he must find it only in the cold light of a studio garret. He is characterized by social revolt, eccentricity, soul-searching and defiance rather than conformity to the law. Some have even renounced their fatherland.

They have lived in the big cities in bohemian centers like Montmartre, Montparnasse, Grub Street, Soho, Bloomsbury and Greenwich Village. The bohemian-beatnik carried the romantic themes to their logical extremes, applying in practice the facets of the romantic movment of 1790 to 1850.

In bohemian society, conventions by their very nature are regarded with suspicion because they live by the role of their own morality and are unconcerned with the social ladder.

French novelist Louis Henri Murger first depicted bohemian life in his sketches titled "The Bohemians From the Latin Quarter" published between 1845 and 1849. He not only wrote about it; he lived it. His experiences gave verisilimitude to his books for he was often destitute.

HUMANE APPROACH

Thomas Masaryk, a Slovak professor of philosophy at the University of Prague in the 1880s, symbolized the concept of bohemianism. Masaryk gathered around him a group of young intellectuals and they tried to introduce a humane approach among the Czechs and to substitute the idea of self-help for their natural fatalism.

Masaryk's ideas made a deep impression and became the rallying cry of the younger generation who flocked to Prague. They reacted against the feudal idealism and led the realist revolution in Czech politics, literature and philosophy.

In like manner, the late theologian and transplanted academician Paul Tillich had a preference for the bohemian. With other writers and artists, he combined intellectual ferment with action to defy the Nazis.

In his autobiographical sketch, "On the Boundary," Tillich describes the bohemians of Europe and explains why they had to live in large cities. They needed to be where they could meet others of like mind at the cafes, workshops, studios and resorts. They had to be where they could follow international artistic and literary movements.

The cities supplied the substance out of which critical decisions were drawn. The struggle for truth could flourish in the big cities, freed from conventions. Only the cities could tolerate their skeptical, religiously radical and romantic notions.

But they were not simply idle dabblers in Nietzsche, expressionism and psychoanalysis. Their rebellious dispositions made them creators of new thought for the improvement of mankind.

Author Russell Lynes, however, does recognize a college town-type of intellectual — the Upper Bohemians — who may dwell in cities with an academic community which is within commuting distance of a metropolis.

Lynes' upper-middleclass bohemian likes "the pleasant breeze of intellectualism that blows off such an academic reservoir."

For them, the achievements and satisfactions of the mind have been put ahead of the satisfactions of the bank balance and the achievements of social status. Their vital function, Lynes believes, is rooted in their eagerness to flaunt convention in order to foster new ideas and destroy sham and affectation.

So perhaps we have some Upper Bohemians, but it is doubtful that we have any beatniks. If we do, they will make themselves distinguished by their works — their literature and art — and not by their kooky attire.

Biggest Since Reconstruction

Texas GOP Hopeful Of Election Gains

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Texas Republicans — pushed into a deep, dark cellar in the 1964 elections — could make more gains in November than anytime since reconstruction days.

But, it is expected to come on an all or nothing basis.

The Republicans, who had only state Rep. Frank Cahoon of Midland and U.S. Sen. John Tower to call their own after President Johnson's sweep in 1964, have picked their spots for November, and many observers believe they picked them well.

"It will be feast or famine," one top-ranking Republican official said. "If Tower runs strong in Dallas and Houston we could have 18 to 20 representatives in the House."

That would be a feast. The GOP has never had more than eight representatives in the statehouse this century.

And, observers feel the Republicans could place at least three members in the Senate. State Rep. Hank Grover of Houston and Ike Harris and Thomas Crouch in Dallas are all given a good chance to win the voters' favor.

A victory by any one of the candidates would strengthen the party position, since there has not been a GOP member of the Senate since the 1800s.

It is a far different picture from that painted by GOP officials early this year.

They indicated, at least statewide, that they were going to put all their eggs in one basket and push Tower to victory in his fight against Attty. Gen. Waggoner Carr.

But, five of their six congressional candidates are considered 50-50 to better odds to win, and even three statewide hopefuls have decided they don't like the "token candidate" label.

Albert Fay of Houston, Republican National Commmitteeman who made the race for land commissioner in 1962, definitely plans to try and unseat Democrat Jerry Sadler.

Fay, who received 34 per cent of the vote in that run, has been living up support, and plans to start an intensive campaign in early September. High officials in the party said Fay has already made his brochure, and is expected to get some boosts from the Latin-American oriented "Democrats for Tower" groups in San Antonio and Corpus Christi.

It also gave him a big boost down the line when the state AFL-CIO endorsed the Republican, the first time in state history a GOP hopeful has drawn the labor stamp of approval.

Rudy Garza of Corpus Christi, the GOP candidate for comptroller, has also made it known to close associates that he plans to shake loose and stage a strong campaign against Robert S. Calvert. The "Democrats for Tower" groups in Garza's city and San Antonio are ready to unroll the banners and help both Fay and Garza in such a move.

Richardson attorney Robb Stewart, making the attorney general's race against Democratic nominee Crawford Martin, shook loose last month to announce he would stage a strong battle.

But, on the whole, the GOP eyes are on the Tower-Carr race, and the benefits they expect to derive from it.

The GOP has 42 state representative candidates, 10 senatorial hopefuls and six in congressional races who hope Tower will run strong enough to give them a "feast" instead of another 1964 "famine."

Gallup Poll

Robert Kennedy's Popularity High

By GEORGE GALLUP

Sen. Robert Kennedy's rise in political appeal with the American people over the last several months has been spectacular. Last November, the Gallup Poll reported that Senator Kennedy posed a threat to Hubert Humphrey for re-nomination as Vice-President in 1968. Today it can be reported that he poses a threat to the President himself.

Just six months ago, President Johnson was given a high rating for his job performance by the public, and was a 2-to-1 favorite over Kennedy for the 1968 Presidential nomination among rank-and-file Democrats.

Today, after several months of non-stop activity, the 40-year-old Senator is riding high, and actually holds an edge over the President among Democratic voters. (Persons interviewed were asked to select from a list of 4 men, often mentioned as possible future contenders for the Presidency.

Senator Kennedy's gains in political appeal have come during a period of declining popularity for the President, whose rating today is 12 percentage points lower than it was at the beginning of the year.

Constantly On The Move

Since his victory over Senator Kenneth Keating in 1965, Senator Kennedy has been constantly on the move, making speeches, often critical of the Administration, on a wide range of issues. Kennedy's interests even took him on a tour of Africa.

Senator Kennedy has called for new approaches to settling the Viet Nam war, and his proposals have apparently appealed to a public looking for an early and honorable way out of the struggle.

President Johnson automatically is a victim of public frustration over Viet Nam whether he deserves to be criticized, or not. The President's popularity has suffered as much from general concern about the nation's increasing involvement in Viet Nam as from any disagreement over specific Viet Nam policies.

Gains Foreshadowed

Although Kennedy's gains in political support must surprise even Kennedy enthusiasts, his present position was at least in part foreshadowed by a Gallup survey last November.

At that time, Kennedy projected a generally good image; comments of a favorable nature outweighed unfavorable responses by nearly a 5-to-3 ratio. People spoke of his "intelligence," "aggressiveness," "dedication," and the "Kennedy name." His critics at that time thought him "pushy" and "power-hungry," and felt that he was capitalizing on his name.

In the earlier survey, an overwhelming majority believed that he wanted to become President, and a majority, although somewhat smaller, also thought that he actually would receive the Democratic nomination at some point.

Early 'Test Elections'

Kennedy demonstrates considerable appeal with the rank-and-file of his own party, but the question is — does this appeal extend to the total electorate?

Although the elections of 1968 and 1972 are still far off, Kennedy was matched in a recent "test election" contest against a top GOP front-runner, Gov. George Romney of Michigan, to gain some idea of his appeal to all voters:

"Suppose the Presidential election were being held today. If Robert Kennedy were the Democratic candidate and George Romney were the Republican candidate, which would you like to see win?"

Kennedy wins handily, with 55 per cent of the vote to 39 per cent undecided. In so doing, Kennedy gains the support of a majority of Independents, and at least one Republican in four.

Kennedy runs Romney a better race than does Vice President Hubert Humphrey, who comes out on the losing end of a "trial heat" with the Michigan governor: 48 per cent to 44 per cent with 8 per cent undecided.

Kennedy also does better against Romeny than the President. A mid-July Gallup report showed a close contest, with President Johnson edging out Governor Romney by a 48-to 44 vote, with 8 per cent undecided. It should be borne in mind, however, that this measurement was taken at a time when the President's popularity rating was lower than it is today.

Red Chinese Delete Name For Soviet

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — The street outside the Soviet Embassy in Peking had its name changed Saturday from "Street of Glory of Greatness" to "Street of Struggle Against Revisionism," the Yugoslav news agency reported from the Red Chinese capital.

The agency's Peking correspondent said the name change was performed by the so-called "Red Guard," which he described as "revolutionary groups of Peking students and school pupils formed recently to defend President Mao Tze-tung, the party and fatherland."

Tormenting Rectal Itch Stopped In Minutes

Science Finds New Healing Substance That Promptly Stops Itching and Pain of Piles

New York, N. Y. (Special) — One of the most common afflictions is a condition known as "itching piles." It is most embarrassing for the victim during the day and especially aggravating at night.

No matter what you've used without results — here's good news. For the first time, science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to promptly stop the burning itch and pain. It actually shrinks hemorrhoids — without surgery. Medical science has proved this substance produces a remarkably effective rate of healing. Its germ-killing properties also help prevent infection.

In one hemorrhoid case after another "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by a doctor's observations. This improvement was maintained in cases where a doctor's observations were continued over a period of months! Among these sufferers were a wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' duration.

The secret is this new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®) — discovery of a world-famous research institution. This substance is now obtainable in ointment or suppository form known as Preparation H®. Ask for Preparation H Suppositories (convenient to carry if away from home) or Preparation H Ointment with special applicator. Available at all drug counters.

Mountain Teams Race To Rescue

CHAMONIX, France (AP) — An American-led climbing team braving an icy mountain face Saturday heard two stranded German Alpinists pleading "hurry, hurry," as they raced against time to save them.

The Germans were going into their seventh freezing night crouched in a tiny niche 10,000 feet up on the sheer north face of the Dru Needle. Because they probably had little food and insufficiently warm garments, the rescuers feared they might not survive another night.

American Gary Hemming and his team earlier reported by radio that they were within 80 yards of the two Germans, but were handicapped by ice and snow. The Germans' names were not revealed.

At the same time, a fresh team of highly experienced winter climbers was flown by helicopter to the foot of the Needle. They planned to approach the stranded pair during the night. This team planned to get to within 25 yards of the stranded men, but would have to wait for daylight before climbing the last dangerous stretch.

Both teams carried quick energy foods and extra clothing.

Gallup Poll

Robert Kennedy's Popularity High

By GEORGE GALLUP

Sen. Robert Kennedy's rise in political appeal with the American people over the last several months has been spectacular. Last November, the Gallup Poll reported that Senator Kennedy posed a threat to Hubert Humphrey for re-nomination as Vice-President in 1968. Today it can be reported that he poses a threat to the President himself.

Just six months ago, President Johnson was given a high rating for his job performance by the public, and was a 2-to-1 favorite over Kennedy for the 1968 Presidential nomination among rank-and-file Democrats.

Today, after several months of non-stop activity, the 40-year-old Senator is riding high, and actually holds an edge over the President among Democratic voters. (Persons interviewed were asked to select from a list of 4 men, often mentioned as possible future contenders for the Presidency.

Senator Kennedy's gains in political appeal have come during a period of declining popularity for the President, whose rating today is 12 percentage points lower than it was at the beginning of the year.

Constantly On The Move

Since his victory over Senator Kenneth Keating in 1965, Senator Kennedy has been constantly on the move, making speeches, often critical of the Administration, on a wide range of issues. Kennedy's interests even took him on a tour of Africa.

Senator Kennedy has called for new approaches to settling the Viet Nam war, and his proposals have apparently appealed to a public looking for an early and honorable way out of the struggle.

President Johnson automatically is a victim of public frustration over Viet Nam whether he deserves to be criticized, or not. The President's popularity has suffered as much from general concern about the nation's increasing involvement in Viet Nam as from any disagreement over specific Viet Nam policies.

Gains Foreshadowed

Although Kennedy's gains in political support must surprise even Kennedy enthusiasts, his present position was at least in part foreshadowed by a Gallup survey last November.

At that time, Kennedy projected a generally good image; comments of a favorable nature outweighed unfavorable responses by nearly a 5-to-3 ratio. People spoke of his "intelligence," "aggressiveness," "dedication," and the "Kennedy name." His critics at that time thought him "pushy" and "power-hungry," and felt that he was capitalizing on his name.

In the earlier survey, an overwhelming majority believed that he wanted to become President, and a majority, although somewhat smaller, also thought that he actually would receive the Democratic nomination at some point.

Early 'Test Elections'

Kennedy demonstrates considerable appeal with the rank-and-file of his own party, but the question is — does this appeal extend to the total electorate?

Although the elections of 1968 and 1972 are still far off, Kennedy was matched in a recent "test election" contest against a top GOP front-runner, Gov. George Romney of Michigan, to gain some idea of his appeal to all voters:

"Suppose the Presidential election were being held today. If Robert Kennedy were the Democratic candidate and George Romney were the Republican candidate, which would you like to see win?"

Kennedy wins handily, with 55 per cent of the vote to 39 per cent undecided. In so doing, Kennedy gains the support of a majority of Independents, and at least one Republican in four.

Kennedy runs Romney a better race than does Vice President Hubert Humphrey, who comes out on the losing end of a "trial heat" with the Michigan governor: 48 per cent to 44 per cent with 8 per cent undecided.

Kennedy also does better against Romeny than the President. A mid-July Gallup report showed a close contest, with President Johnson edging out Governor Romney by a 48-to 44 vote, with 8 per cent undecided. It should be borne in mind, however, that this measurement was taken at a time when the President's popularity rating was lower than it is today.

Red Chinese Delete Name For Soviet

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — The street outside the Soviet Embassy in Peking had its name changed Saturday from "Street of Glory of Greatness" to "Street of Struggle Against Revisionism," the Yugoslav news agency reported from the Red Chinese capital.

The agency's Peking correspondent said the name change was performed by the so-called "Red Guard," which he described as "revolutionary groups of Peking students and school pupils formed recently to defend President Mao Tze-tung, the party and fatherland."

Tormenting Rectal Itch Stopped In Minutes

Science Finds New Healing Substance That Promptly Stops Itching and Pain of Piles

New York, N. Y. (Special) — One of the most common afflictions is a condition known as "itching piles." It is most embarrassing for the victim during the day and especially aggravating at night.

No matter what you've used without results — here's good news. For the first time, science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to promptly stop the burning itch and pain. It actually shrinks hemorrhoids — without surgery. Medical science has proved this substance produces a remarkably effective rate of healing. Its germ-killing properties also help prevent infection.

In one hemorrhoid case after another "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by a doctor's observations. This improvement was maintained in cases where a doctor's observations were continued over a period of months! Among these sufferers were a wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' duration.

The secret is this new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®) — discovery of a world-famous research institution. This substance is now obtainable in ointment or suppository form known as Preparation H®. Ask for Preparation H Suppositories (convenient to carry if away from home) or Preparation H Ointment with special applicator. Available at all drug counters.

Boycotters, Leaders Arrive At Stalemate

EDWARDS, Miss. (AP)—Negro boycotters and city leaders remained stalemated Friday with little hope of a settlement that might save dying downtown businesses.

The Negro forces ordered the boycott to back an 18-point list of demands and Mayor C. E. Robbins said the town lacked the power to grant many of them.

Boycott leader Irene Thompson, a young Negro woman, told The Associated Press, "We are not going to meet until they meet our 18 demands."

Edwards, a rural trading center of about 1,500, is in the rolling hills 25 miles west of Jackson. About 60 per cent of its population is Negro. Businesses were already feeling a pinch in recent years because U.S. 80 was relocated north of town.

Some white leaders conceded privately that Negroes provide the majority of the town trade as whites do most of their big shopping at Jackson.

"Ninety-nine per cent of the white merchants' trade was with Negroes," Miss Thompson said.

"We want jobs. Now they have a white girl to take our money and they throw the change back on the counter like we have nasty hands."

The Negro demands include upgraded jobs and pay, municipal improvements in Negro areas, an integrated city swimming pool, courtesy titles, low-cost housing, city maintenance of the Negro cemetery, integrated bus station facilities, polling places in Negro areas and removal of a chemical plant from the city.

"We can't tell businesses who to hire, what to pay and how to deal with the public," Robbins said. "We can't tell the county where to put precincts.

He said the town has added street lights in Negro areas but could do such work as paving only on petition of property owners and special assessments against them.

He said the city has no housing projects and keeps up the white cemetery because it owns it.

"We told them," he said, "we'd keep up the Negro cemetery if they deeded it to us. They wouldn't do that."

The city had operated a white swimming pool, but sold it after taking bids solicited through legal advertising.

Robbins said "a lot of businessmen are in serious trouble because of this boycott. The Negroes refuse to meet with us. Half our businessmen may be looking for outside jobs if it keeps up much longer."

The mayor charged outside agitators were behind the boycott and said the city had done everything it could to head off racial trouble. There had been no major racial problems in Edwards and no violence has been reported.

"They didn't discuss it beforehand," Robbins said. "They just hit us in the face with it. We've tried to avoid grounds for friction.

"We have had two Negro policemen for some time. We did that on our own. They didn't ask for it."

Miss Thompson said outsiders "had nothing to do with the boycott. The white people just won't give us the credit. The Freedom Democratic Party here organized it. We had a mass meeting and everybody spoke out on what they wanted."

Robbins said while literature bore the name of the Freedom Democrats "I think the Delta Ministry is behind it."

The FDP is a civil rights-oriented Negro political faction organized during the last days of the 1964 rights campaign in the state. The Delta Ministry is the social arm of the National Council of Churches.

Old River Lock To Shut Down

SIMMESPORT, La. (AP) — The Old River lock here will be closed to navigation on Sept. 1 between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m., it was announced Saturday.

L. W. Norton, acting district engineer of the Army Corps of Engineers, said adjustments of mechanism for placing of an emergency bulkhead prompted the closure.

The lock is part of the Old River closure project to prevent the Atchafalaya River from stealing the waters of the Mississippi.

Jamacians Calm Wave Of Violence

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — Police reinforcements appeared to have restored at least temporary peace Saturday in West Kingston after a five-day wave of violence left one dead and 21 wounded.

Police were combing the area for suspects and weapons.

So far, however, nothing apparently has been discovered to support a government minister's suggestions the firearms used in the violence were imported from neighboring Cuba.

Although the violence has been described as political in nature there are indications criminal elements—taking advantage of the turbulent situation—also have become involved.

Long a trouble spot, West Kingston had been seething with political unrest for the past six to seven weeks. Although elections are not generally expected until next year, some campaigning has been going on in the area between the rival People's National party—PNP—and the Jamaica Labor party—JLP—which is in control.

Unrest exploded into sharp violence last week and appears to have subsided only after police reinforcements were moved in Wednesday.

What troubled the authorities and distinguished this flareup from others was the extraordinarily large number of firearms in use. In a Wednesday television appearance, Edward Seaga, development and welfare minister, aserted there had been increases in the use of weapons every time opposition party members returned from Cuba.

Acting Police Commissioner John Middleton has declined to comment on the source of the weapons and there has been no official statement on this matter by the government, either backing or rejecting Seaga's hint.

Angered by Seaga's remarks, the PNP moved in the Senate on Friday to condemn the government-owned Jamaica Broadcasting Corp. as a "political lous" of the JLP for airing the minister's remarks, which it described as a "sinster, scurrilous and slanderous attack."

Albert Brown, 32, shot down Monday night, has been the only fatality in the violence. Police who were on the trail of three suspects in the shooting disclosed Brown himself was a fugitive from justice, having been convicted for possession of narcotics and sentenced to 18 months hard labor in 1961.

West Kingston has been a hotly contested constituency because it has swung from one major party to the other from one election to the next.

Minister Seaga is contesting a seat in West Kingston.

The rest of Kingston has been largely undisturbed and seemingly unconcerned about the West Kingston developments.

Anglo Clergy Hit By Freeze Of Pay Raise

LONDON (AP) — The government's pay-freeze policy reached Saturday to hundreds of Church of England clergymen who were told their previously agreed pay hike must wait.

Those left out in the cold are likely to be particularly unhappy because 10,000 of their colleagues — the majority of Church of England clergy — got the $140 to $280 a year increase a month ago. Administrative difficulties delayed the boost for the remainder. Now they must wait at least another six months.

Boilermaker Union Agent 'Roughed Up'

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — The international vice president of the Boilermakers Union, Charles W. Jones, of Jacksonville, Fla., was "roughed up" Saturday at a meeting of striking Boilermakers, union members reported.

Jones was involved in a scuffle with five or six men during a meeting to vote on a new contract offer, the union members said.

Police were summoned and Jones, his clothes disheveled, left the meeting hall.

The Boilermakers, with 2,600 members, went on strike Aug. 9 at Combustion Engineer Inc., along with 500 members of the machinists union.

They met Saturday to vote on the new company contract proposal, but union men interviewed by newsmen said the membership was angry that the international union had placed Local 656 under trusteeship and replaced the local's officers with new officials.

The men said no reason has been given for the international's action.

Representatives of the Teamsters Union and the United Mine Workers union reportedly circulated through the crowd which formed outside the site of the meeting, as Boilermakers lined up to cast votes on paper ballots.

After newsmen were asked to leave the building, men carrying placards entered a side door and loud booing was heard.

When a man whose head was bleeding came out, a janitor called police. All patrol cars then in service were dispatched to the scene.

The disturbance inside the building was calmed, and Jones left the hall.

Independence Day Speech

Indonesian Party Hits Sukarno Talk

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — The second-largest political party in President Sukarno's old government joined others Saturday in assailing his Independence Day speech, in which he appealed for popular support as the nation's only leader.

The Nahdatul ULAMA — Religious Teachers party, a Moslem group, criticized Sukarno for continuing to show unfriendliness toward Malaysia. The party's move into the anti-Sukarno camp left the figurehead president more and more isolated from the nation's political mainstream.

At the same time, the Indonesian Teachers Association accused Sukarno of continuing to assail "imperialism" while saying nothing about the Communist attempt to take over Indonesia last Oct. 1.

Sukarno's speech Wednesday was viewed as a last-ditch fight for his own political survival. He called on the Indonesian masses to support him and obey his orders.

Anti-Sukarno students, who support the government of strong man Gen. Suharto, promptly responded in the Sukarno stronghold of Bandung, calling for the president's ouster. Their campaign brought out 2,0000 Sukarno followers in Bandung on Friday and clashes broke out with army troops. One anti-Sukarno student was killed.

Students marched into the streets of Jakarta on Saturday, chanting, "Crush Sukarno." The march started with a rally in which the president came under fire once more for saying nothing about the Communist coup attempt. The crushing of the coup led to the rise to power of Suharto and other army leaders who succeeded in throwing out Sukarno's old leftist-leaning Cabinet last spring and making Sukarno nothing more than a figurehead.

The move of the Nahdatul Ulama into the opposition camp was a blow to Sukarno.

Their campaign brought out 2,0000 Sukarno followers in Bandung on Friday and clashes broke out with army troops. One anti-Sukarno student was killed.

Students marched into the streets of Jakarta on Saturday, chanting, "Crush Sukarno." The march started with a rally in which the president came under fire once more for saying nothing about the Communist coup attempt. The crushing of the coup led to the rise to power of Suharto and other army leaders who succeeded in throwing out Sukarno's old leftist-leaning Cabinet last spring and making Sukarno nothing more than a figurehead.

The move of the Nahdatul Ulama into the opposition camp was a blow to Sukarno.

New industry for Louisiana is constantly being sought by area development specialists of the Investor-Owned electric companies. Working with state and local development groups, they help create more jobs — better jobs — for the people of Louisiana.

Rural electrification in Louisiana was pioneered by the Investor-Owned electric companies. Today they serve two out of every three rural customers in the state. Over 99% of our rural homes now have electricity.

Louisiana schools and colleges are constantly improving facilities to accommodate more students. Much of their support comes from taxes of the taxpaying — Investor-Owned electric companies in Louisiana. These taxes amount to over $50,000,000 per year.

By working with more and more youth groups such as Junior Achievement, 4-H, and Future Farmers of America, employees of the Investor-Owned electric companies provide valuable instruction and help with program planning. The result is more profitable farms and businesses for Louisiana.

Capitol Plays Down Striker's Contract

By NEIL GILBRIDE
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House, worried lest the airline strike settlement inspire a rash of inflationary wage demands, insisted Saturday the Machinists' new contract wasn't as good as advertised.

President Johnson's chief economic adviser, Gardner Ackley, said the Machinists on five major airlines had won only 4.9 per cent a year in higher wages and fringe benefits, not the 6 to 8 per cent claimed by the union.

Organized labor had claimed it a victory in "shattering" White House guidelines that sought to hold wage hikes to 3.2 per cent a year as a curb against inflation.

At best, if the cost-of-living clause in the contract paid the maximum six cents an hour in the final year of the contract, the total still would come up to no more than 5.1 per cent, other administration sources said.

Still, Ackley called the settlement "excessive."

But high government officials appeared split on the degree of inflationary threat in the airlines' contract ratified by 35,400 Machinists Friday night, putting jetliners of the five airlines back in the air for the first time in six weeks.

The chief fear appeared to be the psychological effect on other unions in pressing for fatter contract gains.

It was clear also that the Johnson administration had withheld its lower esitmate of the airlines contract until Saturday because, as one source put it, releasing it before the vote "would have killed" the contract.

The Machinists had rejected an earlier contract proposal negotiated at the White House.

Ackley, chairman of Johnson's Council of Economic Advisers, said in a statement: "The council greatly regrets that this settlement so substantially exceeds its guideposts for noninflationary wage behavior. It regrets the unwillingness of the Machinists' union to accept the reasonable and responsible settlement of the dispute recommended by the President's Emergency Board, or even the somewhat higher: (White House) settlement which the union's representatives negotiated July 29."

But other government sources pointed out that the airlines workers in the past four years had gained only 3.6 per cent in wages and fringe benefits while the value of airlines stocks had soared 100 per cent a year.

Despite the administration's outcery, officials not only didn't argue the Machinists' contract would result in higher ticket prices on the airlines but indicated good chances that fares would be cut.

"Fortunately, in this particular case, the excessive settlement will not require higher prices to air passengers or shippers, Ackley said.

"The high rate of productivity advance which has characterized the airline industry, and is expected to continue, means that airline fares can continue to trend downward, despite this excessive settlement," Ackley said.

But other administration sources saw the airlines settlement as restoring flexibility to the wage-price guidelines, as suggested by Johnson's Advisory Committee on Labor Management Policy the day before the airlines strike ended.

The original guideline concept, formulated in 1962, appeared to leave room for such flexibility in industries where productivity increased faster or slower than the estimated national average of 3.2 per cent.

Productivity is the amount of goods or services per man-hour, and the guideline theory is that wages can be hiked in line with increased productivity with no price boost, and that prices can be cut where producitivity is especially high.

But in the past two years the administration had appeared to harden on the 3.2 per cent figure in all major labor negotiations, outraging labor leaders who argued there was no guideline limit on record high profit levels or executives' pay.

One thing organized labor seems to have demonstrated in the airlines contract is that workers can win a bigger share of profits without forcing up prices.

But the White House is obviously worried that higher wage demands could spur already sharply rising prices in industries where profits are not so high and producitity is not increasing at the 11 per cent rate in the airlines industry achieved last year.

The White House advisory group restated the original guideline concept that the government simply was trying to prevent every wage increase from being passed on directly to consumers through a price hike.

"There is nothing immutable in fact or in justice about the distribution of the total product between labor and nonlabor incomes," the Advisory Committee said.

To labor, this could signal a major drive to win workers a bigger share of profits that now go to stockholders.

Whether big business would stand still for that idea is doubtful and promises to give the government increasing headaches in trying to hold down prices.

Government sources said the total value of the three-year airlines contract increases is $83,671,000 — not the $90-million estimate widely reported during negotiations.

The cost-of-living escalator clause could add a maximum of $2.7 million to the total of living costs as measured by the government climb more sharply than the 1.7 per cent so far this year.

But the 3.2 per cent as a hard-and-fast guideline appears as outdated as last year's calendar.

Airlines, Businesses Resume Operations After Settlement

NEW YORK (AP) — The air-travel industry and businesses dependent on it moved quickly toward normal operations Saturday in the wake of an agreement ending the biggest airlines strike in history.

Mixed with the long-absent roar of jets in many cities were sighs of relief from businessmen weary of rows of empty restaurant tables half filled hotels, slowed deliveries and transportation bottlenecks.

The five major airlinew shut down for 43 days by a Machinists union strike resumed service smoothly during the morning hours. Little crowding was reported, although reservations were heavier than usual for a Saturday.

Some flights took off with empty seats. One airline representative in New York noted that the obvious delight on the faces of the first-arriving passengers was replaced quickly by casual looks, as if "there had never been a strike."

The agreement approved by 35,400 striking workers Friday at better than a 2-1 majority shattered White House guidelines designed to limit wage hikes to 3.2 per cent a year.

Benefits in the new three-year contract include an estimated 6 per cent or more annual wage increase totaling 15 per cent over three years, plus a cost-of-living guarantee against sharply rising prices that could be worth up to six cents more per hour in the final year.

As top-rated mechanics, whose average $3.52 an hour will jump to at least $4.08 within three years, counted their benefits, businessmen across the country, particularly those in or directly affected by the tourist industry, began to add up their losses.

Hardest hit appeared to be the cities that count heavily on summer tourist trade or summer conventions. The New York Convention and Visitors Bureau estimated a half-million-dollar loss to the city each day during the strike's first week, and three-quarters of a million each day thereafter.

Hotels were hit with 25 per cent of the loss, the bureau estimated, retail stores absorbed another 25 per cent, 20 per cent was restaurant losses, 20 per cent in the sightseeing industry, and the rest was spread among theaters, nightclubs, transportation and other pleasure-oriented services.

The Hawaii Visitors Bureau estimated the island state's losses at a minimum of $13 million and said there was a loss of 22,000 visitors in August alone.

Miami, which was looking forward to a best-ever summer tourist season, estimated losses in the metropolitan area alone at $? million a day.

Other seriously affected cities included Chicago at $900,000 lost each day, Minneapolis at $165,000; Kansas City at $1 million, including payroll losses from the struck airlines, and Columbus, Ohio, which reported an estimated $1-million daily loss due largely to grounded executives and slowed freight deliveries.

Similar reports came from Detroit, where the auto industry views air travel as a convenience rather than a necessity; and Los Angeles, where one of the largest chunks of its $617,000 daily loss resulted from blocked shipments of perishable goods, principally foods and flowers.

Several odd effects were reported as some businesses found it easier than others to substitute ground for air travel.

The tourist trade in Los Angeles presented a mixed picture because so many travelers come in automobiles. Hotels were hit hard by the strike, but not the drive-in motels.

Minneapolis florists, their airlifted shipments of fresh flowers shut off, turned to local producers. But customers were reported unhappy with the quality. When they tried trucking in flowers, the blossoms arrived wilted.

Many airline-connected services, like car-rental agencies, reported business down as much as 60 per cent. But not all airport restaurants fared that badly.

"A lot of people come out to try to get a plane, and when they can't get one, they hang around, and when they hang around, they decide they might as well eat," said Miss Betty Riviera, a restaurant secretary in Columbus.

The five struck airlines — Eastern, National, Northwest, Trans World and United — have estimated their daily losses in passenger revenue, mail and freight at $7.9 million. Their striking and furloughed employes — a total of 66,000 — have lost an estimated daily total of $1.6 million in wages.

UAW Contract Requests

Big Three Likely To Reject Raises

DETROIT, Mich. (AP) — There are growing indications the Big Three automakers flatly will reject Monday a request from the United Auto Workers Union for contract reopening to give skilled tradesmen at least a 50-cent hourly raise now.

These signs developed even as an airlines strike settlement added union pressure by smashing a new White House wage-price guidelines of 3.2 per cent — the amount presidential advisers figure the nation's productivity gains yearly.

What the UAW is asking would top 10 per cent, based on a union claim the average current scale is less than $4 hourly for approximately 100,000 skilled workers employed in Big Three plants.

The airlines settlement was estimated worth six per cent to 35,400 members of the International Association of Machinists (IAM).

Weekend indicators of rejection came from General Motors Corp., Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. Chairman Henry Ford II of Ford said earlier reopening at this time would be "inadvisable" and that "there is a contract, and I think they ought to live with it."

The Big Three issued news releases today pointing up wage increases their approximately 700,000 hourly rated workers — including the skilled — would get automatically two weeks from Monday under current contracts running to Sept. 6, 1967.

Collectively, they estimated added payroll costs at more than $186 milion a year. They said, and the union agreed, there might be one or two cents hourly added shortly via cost-of-living escalators in the contracts.

The boost due Sept. 5 will be 2.8 per cent or seven cents hourly, whichever is greater, plus two cents hourly as a last-year bonus negotiated in 1964. GM estimated this would raise a die maker 13 cents to $4.13 and a produciton-line assembler 10 cents to $3.17. The union contends industry averages in both categories are lower.

While they likely will say "No," it will not be without some fears. One such fear already has become a reality.

Production workers in the UAW's largest local, Ford 600 in Dearborn, have told UAW President Walter P. Reuther they want to be counted in on any wage gains beyond current contracts. And within the Big Three, production line workmen outnumber skilled about 7-to-1.

The 1967 cars are just beginning to roll. All the manufacturers like to meet the early buyer rush of a new model year with assembly lines in high. And they know discontent within any segment of their work force holds the threat of work stoppages.

Ford reported 195 of 285 skilled workers failed to report Friday at its new Woodhaven stamping plant. The company called the absenteeism "an unauthorized work stoppage."

Edward J. Plawecki, president of UAW Local 387, said the men had failed to report because new orders assigned electricians to cleanup work properly belonging to janitors.

A Ford spokesman said electricians had been required for the last year to clean up their work aeas athe than stat work areas rather than start new jobs if they had 15 minutes or so spare time at the end of their shifts.

Production, as well as health and safety, standards are strikeable issues under UAW contracts.

The UAW hierarchy is under pressure.

Discontest has been growing among skilled tradesmen. With concurrence of Reuther, the UAW's 1966 convention voted to permit this group to vote separately on new contracts and make final acceptance subject to its approval.

Although unsuccessful in the past in recruiting substantially from UAW ranks, the independent International Society of Skilled Trades has renewed activity. More than 300 UAW tradesmen from 11 locals met here a week ago to voice complaints and form a "$1 An Hour Now Steering Committee."

In its move to gain reopening, the UAW told the automakers it would consider any raises for skilled tradesmen now as "a down payment" on what it would ask for this group in 1967 bargaining.

But industry spokesmen commented: "Reopen for one bunch, and everybody wants in, and suddenly 1967 is here in 1966."

Reopening is not unprecedented, although rare. The last was in 1963 during the Korean War. Skilled tradesmen got 10 cents hourly more then, the rest a penny, and pensions were boosted 25 cents monthly for each year of service.

Quakes Shake Central Japan

TOKYO (AP) — Two fairly strong earthquakes shook the quake-ridden town of Matsuhiro in central Japan Saturday night, but no casualties were reported.

At least seven houses were damaged, railway traffic was halted, and about 6,000 homes were left without electricity because of damage to power lines.

Matsushiro has been shaken by quakes daily since the summer of 1965.

Clapper Falls From Big Bell, Misses Group

BERLIN (AP) — The 500-pound clapper of the Berlin Freedom Bell fell to a tower platform Saturday only moments after a visit by a group of children.

The clapper struck 11 times in its 12 noon recital, then crashed to the platform 30 feet below, damaging a section of the railing.

The bell, a gift from the United States, is atop the West Berlin City Hall. A building official said a group of children had just left the platform when the bell tarted ringing. There was no explanation how the clapper broke loose.

The big bronze bell was dedicated by Gen. Lucius D. Clay, the former U.S. military governor of Germany, in October, 1950. It had been financed through contributions by more than 16 million Americans.

An inscription in English reads: "That this world, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom."

Clapper Falls From Big Bell, Misses Group

BERLIN (AP) — The 500-pound clapper of the Berlin Freedom Bell fell to a tower platform Saturday only moments after a visit by a group of children.

The clapper struck 11 times in its 12 noon recital, then crashed to the platform 30 feet below, damaging a section of the railing.

The bell, a gift from the United States, is atop the West Berlin City Hall. A building official said a group of children had just left the platform when the bell tarted ringing. There was no explanation how the clapper broke loose.

The big bronze bell was dedicated by Gen. Lucius D. Clay, the former U.S. military governor of Germany, in October, 1950. It had been financed through contributions by more than 16 million Americans.

An inscription in English reads: "That this world, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom."

UAW Contract Requests

Big Three Likely To Reject Raises

DETROIT, Mich. (AP) — There are growing indications the Big Three automakers flatly will reject Monday a request from the United Auto Workers Union for contract reopening to give skilled tradesmen at least a 50-cent hourly raise now.

These signs developed even as an airlines strike settlement added union pressure by smashing a new White House wage-price guidelines of 3.2 per cent — the amount presidential advisers figure the nation's productivity gains yearly.

What the UAW is asking would top 10 per cent, based on a union claim the average current scale is less than $4 hourly for approximately 100,000 skilled workers employed in Big Three plants.

The airlines settlement was estimated worth six per cent to 35,400 members of the International Association of Machinists (IAM).

Weekend indicators of rejection came from General Motors Corp., Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. Chairman Henry Ford II of Ford said earlier reopening at this time would be "inadvisable" and that "there is a contract, and I think they ought to live with it."

The Big Three issued news releases today pointing up wage increases their approximately 700,000 hourly rated workers — including the skilled — would get automatically two weeks from Monday under current contracts running to Sept. 6, 1967.

Collectively, they estimated added payroll costs at more than $186 milion a year. They said, and the union agreed, there might be one or two cents hourly added shortly via cost-of-living escalators in the contracts.

The boost due Sept. 5 will be 2.8 per cent or seven cents hourly, whichever is greater, plus two cents hourly as a last-year bonus negotiated in 1964. GM estimated this would raise a die maker 13 cents to $4.13 and a produciton-line assembler 10 cents to $3.17. The union contends industry averages in both categories are lower.

While they likely will say "No," it will not be without some fears. One such fear already has become a reality.

Production workers in the UAW's largest local, Ford 600 in Dearborn, have told UAW President Walter P. Reuther they want to be counted in on any wage gains beyond current contracts. And within the Big Three, production line workmen outnumber skilled about 7-to-1.

The 1967 cars are just beginning to roll. All the manufacturers like to meet the early buyer rush of a new model year with assembly lines in high. And they know discontent within any segment of their work force holds the threat of work stoppages.

Ford reported 195 of 285 skilled workers failed to report Friday at its new Woodhaven stamping plant. The company called the absenteeism "an unauthorized work stoppage."

Edward J. Plawecki, president of UAW Local 387, said the men had failed to report because new orders assigned electricians to cleanup work properly belonging to janitors.

A Ford spokesman said electricians had been required for the last year to clean up their work aeas athe than stat work areas rather than start new jobs if they had 15 minutes or so spare time at the end of their shifts.

Production, as well as health and safety, standards are strikeable issues under UAW contracts.

The UAW hierarchy is under pressure.

Discontest has been growing among skilled tradesmen. With concurrence of Reuther, the UAW's 1966 convention voted to permit this group to vote separately on new contracts and make final acceptance subject to its approval.

Although unsuccessful in the past in recruiting substantially from UAW ranks, the independent International Society of Skilled Trades has renewed activity. More than 300 UAW tradesmen from 11 locals met here a week ago to voice complaints and form a "$1 An Hour Now Steering Committee."

In its move to gain reopening, the UAW told the automakers it would consider any raises for skilled tradesmen now as "a down payment" on what it would ask for this group in 1967 bargaining.

But industry spokesmen commented: "Reopen for one bunch, and everybody wants in, and suddenly 1967 is here in 1966."

Reopening is not unprecedented, although rare. The last was in 1963 during the Korean War. Skilled tradesmen got 10 cents hourly more then, the rest a penny, and pensions were boosted 25 cents monthly for each year of service.

Quakes Shake Central Japan

TOKYO (AP) — Two fairly strong earthquakes shook the quake-ridden town of Matsuhiro in central Japan Saturday night, but no casualties were reported.

At least seven houses were damaged, railway traffic was halted, and about 6,000 homes were left without electricity because of damage to power lines.

Matsushiro has been shaken by quakes daily since the summer of 1965.

Log House Near Crossett Serves As Reminder Of Past

A unique log house near Crossett, Ark. is a big attention-getter. Filled with reminders of the past, the house is a constant source of amazement to visitors, who are even more amazed at the age of the dwelling.

By JANICE CLARK
Correspondent

CROSSETT, Ark. — Strangers passing the many-gabled log house seven miles west of Crossett often come to a skidding halt on the gravel road when they see the house for the first time.

Appearing suddenly through an opening in the mimosa and flowering crape myrtle in its yard, the log house looks as though it has always been there. So it comes as a surprise when one learns it was built little more than 25 years ago.

The log house was built by its owners, Vivian and Homer Bryant at Mineral Springs.

The big house, with its wide screened porch is built of logs cut from the surrounding forest, with hand-rived shingles split from giant cypress trees cut near the springs which gave birth to the house. The story of the house cannot be told without beginning with the spring which originally brought the couple to the wooded area.

In 1927 Homer Bryant, who lived in El Dorado at the time, was critically ill with pyelitis. He was brought down to a place then known as Sulphur Springs, where he drank the water for weeks. Within six weeks he was sufficiently relieved of his infection to take advantage of the open turkey season, and to shoot a wild turkey. He hiked (with frequent stops for rest) through the forest to Crossett to call his wife in El Dorado and say, "Come down and bring all the fixings for a wild turkey dinner." That was the first of many wild turkey dinners which have followed down at the Springs.

The Bryants first leased and then bought 29 acres of land controlling the spring, and another four acres above flood level for their home. Homer began bottling the clear water of the spring and selling it to an increasing circle of customers which eventually embraced states from the southern tip of Florida to Maine, and from Oregon to Georgia.

Strong Feeling

The couple had come to love the deep and brooding cypress swamps behind the spring, as well as the hardwood and pine forests which emerged as the land sloped up from the "bottoms." Mrs. Bryant had a strong feeling for old things which had to do with the beginnings of this country, and had collected quite an array of antiques since their marriage in El Dorado in 1922. She had dreamed of owning a log house to set off her antiques, and now seemed the time to turn that dream into solid walls.

The couple moved into a one-room hunting shack with a tent lean-to, by the spring. Bryant was away most of the time delivering the bottled water, so in 1937 Mrs. Bryant, with the help of two local Negro men — a stone mason who built the fireplaces, and a "hammer and saw carpenter" — began their home. She also leaned heavily on advice offered in a government pamphlet on how to build a log house. The carpenter man saddle notched countless pine logs cut from the property around the house. Mrs. Bryant, with Dewey Hedge, a neighbor who had experience in building log houses, lifted every log into place to form the walls of the huge house. The government instructions said a log house should settle at least eight months before chinking the space between the logs. Theirs settled two years while they hoarded money and materials to finish their home, which was being built in a wild area two miles from the nearest neighbor.

As the years slipped by "the war caught up with us. You couldn't buy windows and doors, and you couldn't buy nails." The determined Bryants found an old house being torn down in Shreveport and scavenged windows, doors and nails — including many of the square nails used a century ago. The windows were of all shapes and sizes, so the Bryant house was built around the materials they scavenged from the Louisiana house. These windows create no small part of the charm of the home.

In the kitchen one entire wall is filled with a large round window with little square panes. It opens in sections, letting the garden fragrance blow into the big, homey kitchen. Other windows are edged with stained glass panes with rainbow blues, reds and yellows. The front door to the home came from one of the first stores ever built in Bastrop, and was planed by hand and put together with wooden pegs. As Mrs. Bryant says, "The house just grew like Topsy. When we would run out of some material we would adjust the house to the shortage, and build with what we had."

Like No Other

When it came into being, the Bryant house was like no other house in the world. It has all the charm of a Hansel and Gretel make believe house, nestled among huge trees, with flowers everywhere — day lilies, hollyhocks, roses, and even a lily pool at the base of the garden.

The charm of the outside of the home is more than matched when one walks in the front door. At the back of the wide front hall a curving staircase (from the Louisiana house) leads upstairs. A Victorian halltree of carved English walnut at the left of the door has a crescent-moon mirror punctuated by a bright star-shaped mirror beside it. Wide doors of native cedar open on the left into the living room, where a fire burns all winter in the fireplace of native rock. Here a visitor can spend hours examining the furnishings, each with its own story, and each with a special claim to beauty.

There is a huge spinning wheel in working condition silhouetted against the bright glass of a window. Beside it is an elaborately carved walnut organ, which Mrs. Bryant regrets having turned into a desk. Inside this organ desk are copies of "Maple Leaves," a magazine dating to just after the Civil War. The stories in the old magazines picture the fair ladies swooning at every crisis, and constantly fluttering delicate handkerchiefs from pale-fingered hands. There is never mention of work by the men or the women; nothing so crass as getting the dishes washed, the baby changed, the store kept or the coal mined. All the men simply stand around in those stories treating the swooning women like fragile porcelain, and the ladies are forever being permanently, swooningly offended by almost any and every thing the men do.

Also in the living room is a secretary which touches the ceiling, another beautiful ante-bellum piece.

The forest setting of the Bryant home is brought indoors with rugs on the floor made from hides of wild boar, deer and a huge bobcat.

An interesting part of the history of the Bryants' furniture-collecting is tied in with the story of El Dorado. According to Mrs. Bryant when oil hit El Dorado in 1921, there was a rush of people to the little town which offered very limited housing. Much of the big furniture had to go to make space for "roomers," who swarmed into the boom town filling every available house with people in need of bed and living space. In addition, as the people found themselves suddenly rich, many promptly got rid of the battered old furniture which had survived the journeys of their grandparents in their westward trek from Virginia, the Carolinas, Georgia and Alabama, 75 to 90 years before. So hand-made four-poster beds gave way to the glossy "modern" beds of the 20's, the huge armoires (or clothes presses) were replaced by built-in closets, and the old straight-backed love seats and settees made way for the "overstuffed" couch.

Much of the cast-off furniture was given to Negro servants, and it was in an abandoned Negro shack that Mrs. Bryant found one of her favorite pieces — a three-quarter width canopy bed. She and Homer searched out the owner of the shack, who gave them the broken-down bed. A week later the shack burned, and Vivian still holds her breath over how near she came to losing the lovely cherry bed which graces an upstairs guest room.

On the right of the entrance hall is the dining room of the Bryant house, where the couple has hosted as many as 50 guests for dinner. That number, of course, was unusual, but it has not been at all unusual to have 16 seated around the two dining tables. The oak ladder-back chairs in the room were made for the Bryants by a blacksmith in El Dorado. On racks along two walls are pieces of china and glass which are of endless interest to collectors. More are displayed in an old china cabinet, with others in an oak buffet. The fireplace in the dining room is made exactly like those of the ante-bellum homes, where much of the cooking was done on the fireplace. There is a crane to hold a blackened iron pot above the coals in the hearth, and a warming oven in which the Bryants have parched many a bushel of peanuts for eager children.

Special Dinner

Nearly always at Easter there has been a special dinner including wild turkey which Bryant shot near the home, along with venison, squirrel and often barbecued coon. Jellies of wild grapes and Mayhaw are always on the table, along with vegetables from the garden beside the house.

The very heart of the house is the big kitchen. There is a modern gas stove beside an old-fashioned wood (or coal) burning stove. Mrs. Bryant is an expert when cooking on either. A round oak table with magnificent claw feet centers the room, with its compliment of friends sitting over a cup of coffee while fragrant food cooks for dinner.

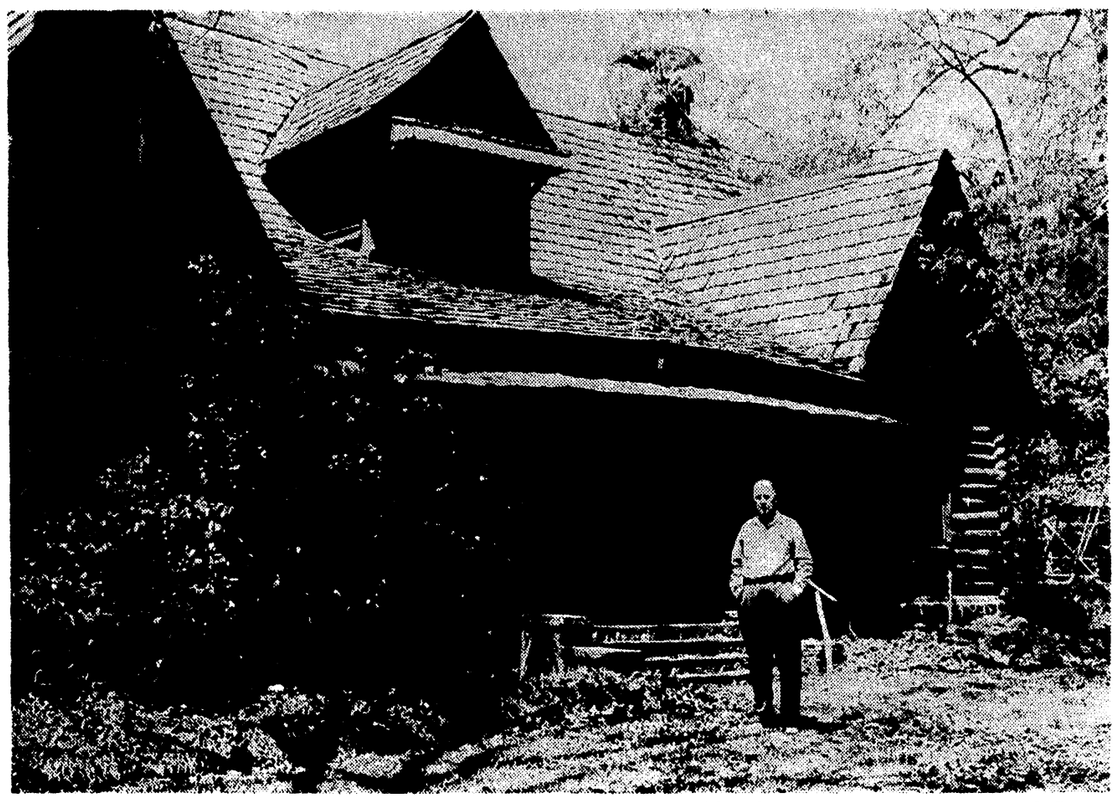

Downstairs is a den, Bryant's office, the master bedroom and bath.

Of particular interest is the spiral stairway to the guestrooms. Here the gables of the house lend much charm, especially for children. Off each of the huge bedrooms a gable opens, forming a dressing room which the children adore because of its snug size. Fireplaces are lighted when there are guests in the winter. Marbletop chests and old china basin and pitcher sets complement the canopy bed in one room and a walnut bed in the other.

One of the most charming pieces upstairs is the little "primping mirror" which rests on an antique commode in one of the bedrooms. The square mirror pivots over a single drawer which any lady traveling across the country in a swaying covered wagon could hold on her lap as she re-arranged her hair, replacing her brush and comb along with hairpins in the little drawer. This one came west in a covered wagon to El Dorado more than a century ago.

The most charming thing about the home is the hospitality of its owners. Almost everyone who sees it for the first time says, "I just must see the inside of that house." Many strangers simply walk to the door and knock, and ask if they may see the home. Others go back into Crossett in search of someone who will introduce them to its owners. The Bryants welcome them all, and keep perpetual open house.

In these days of rows upon rows of split-level, ranch type houses, all with almost identical furniture, the home of Vivian and Homer Bryant stands as a monument to individuality, and to the unique charm which is borne of simply "being yourself."

HOMER BRYANT stands in front of his log house of many gables, located seven miles west of Crossett on the historic old Mineral Springs Road. The house looks as though it had always been there, but was built only about 25 years ago.

ROCK FIREPLACES warm the upstairs guestrooms in winter. This one is flanked by a rocking chair and a marble - topped dresser which had been handed down for generations in an El Dorado family. After oil was struck in El Dorado, the family gave the dresser to a Negro from whom Mrs. Bryant bought the piece of furniture.

THIS CHERRY CANOPY bed was "rescued" from an abandoned shack near El Dorado, where it had ben given to servants by a family which struck oil and replaced it with 'modern" furniture of the 1920's.

Colorful Division Created

By BOB POOS

AN KHE, South Viet Nam (AP) — The Viet Cong and North Vietnamese have created one of the finest combat divisions of any army in the world. Unfortunately for them it is an American unit, the 1st cavalry, Airmobile, Division.

In statistics alone, the 1st Cav has compiled an impressive record since it arrived last September at its base camp near the sleepy village of An Khe, in the Central Highlands. The highlands have been jumping ever since, and still are, with plenty of North Vietnamese regulars right out there in the trees.

To date the 1st Cav has killed more than 5,000 of the enemy by body count, and the command estimates it has slain another 5,000 whose bodies were dragged away. The Cav troopers have more than 1,800 captured weapons in their museum, ranging from ancient French rifles to Chinese Communist heavy mortars, machine guns and recoilless cannon.

Some 1,300 enemy soldiers have surrendered the 1st Cav in its year of operation and the Cav turned over more than a million tons of rice to Vietnamese refugees.

But statistics alone do not tell the story of this colorful unit. It is a division unique to warfare. Its creators have chosen to call it an "airmobile" division.

The 1st Cav has at its disposal more than 450 helicopters, far more than any other American unit in Viet Nam can muster at a given time.

It is the only U.S. unit to boast ownership of "sky cranes," the biggest and most powerful helicopter in the world. The Cav has three of them and they are capable of lifting such things as light tanks, bulldozers and eight-inch howitzers.

The Cav workhorses, however, are the "Hueys," the HU 1 B, D, and E model choppers that serve as swift transport to battlefields for seven soldiers at a lift.

One of the men who molded the new U.S. cavalry is Col. John D. Stockton, who recently returned to the United States after his second one-year tour in Viet Nam.

He says of the air cavalry concept: "We have effected a marriage of helicopters and infantry and I think we have proven that it is the only way for us to fight this war."

Wooden Horse To Be Used As Library Of Mythology

EDITOR'S NOTE — Greece has known its wooden horse, now it is getting a concrete one. For Dr. Harry Fournier, it will be a "museum of mythology contained in mythology."

By CHRIS ELIOU

FILIATRA, Greece (AP) — Haralambos Fournarakis has been mighty good to Filiatra. But then, he says, Filiatra was mighty good to him.

Haralambos Fournarakis was born here 60 years ago, and his childhood here was extremely happy. Now, as Dr. Harry Fournier, Chicago surgeon, ulcer specialist and expert in Greek Mythology, he is repaying Filiatra.

His latest gift is a concrete horse, 50 feet long and 27 feet high, with a golden tail and a mane of gilded tin strips that flap in the breeze. Alongside will be a restaurant and motel. Dr. Fournier sees his horse as "a museum of mythology contained in mythology."

Up From Sea

This is not the standing horse with which Ulysses fooled the Trojans. This is a sitting horse, a rendering of the one which Poseidon, god of the sea, summoned from the waves as an offering to the then unnamed city. The Athenians rejected it in favor of the gift of the olive from the goddess Athena, who thus gave her name and became the city's protectress.

Dr. Fournier intends to assemble in his horse a library and museum of Greek mythology. "It will be," he says, "a Noah's Ark of mythology."

As a start, he is moving his private library of 1,600 volumes on Greek mythology to the museum, and will seek contributions from all over the world. The Greek government will provide a librarian to help with establishing the library, he says.

He spent his summer holiday in the horse's rump, in an apartment complete with electric kitchen. The horse and a nearby observation tower with flapping Greek and United States flags, stands out for miles on the flat coastal countryside of the Peloponesus peninsula.

After graduating in medicine from Athens University, Dr. Fournier practiced for a year in Filiatra, then went to Paris for advanced study. In 1933 he moved to Chicago, Americanized his name, and taught at the Chicago Medical School and the University of Illinois until 1950. He now directs the Chicago Medical Center.

Filiatra authorities might never have allowed the unusual horse of Poseidon had it not been for Dr. Fournier's considerable — and sometimes unusual — donations to his native city.

The Fournier Cultural Center of Filiatra contains the local Boy Scout headquarters and a language institute.

Motivation

What makes a man spend a small fortune on a city he left more than 30 years ago? In Dr. Fournier's case, it was partly his happy childhood. "I thought of doing something for the place where I was so happy as a boy," he says.

And then it was his lifelong interest in the myths of ancient Greece, which makes his horse-museum, in his mind, the culmination of all his donations.

Situated between Pylos, with the ruins of Nestor's palace, and ancient Olympia, Filiatra is at present, a place where tourists stop only for light refreshments. The population — 7,000 — is falling steadily as its younger, more go-ahead inhabitants migrate to Athens or out of Greece altogether — a problem it shares with most of the Greek provinces.

Dr. Fournier hopes his horse may help change this a little, encouraging tourists to stay a while in Filiatra.

Filiatra has named him "benefactor," and King Constantine has awarded him the gold cross of the Royal order of the Phoenix for his contributions to his home town.

To Filiatrians, he's the local boy who didn't forget his hometown. And they love telling the stranger inquiring for him: "Drive straight down that road till you come to his horse."

Petite Grandma Drills For Oil

By MARTHANN BERRY

BRECKENRIDGE, Tex. (AP) — Mrs. Anna Brooks is a petite, white-haired grandmother who circulates daily through a man's world — the oil drilling contracting business.

She insists she isn't "ready to go on the shelf yet."

Mrs. Brooks, affable and energetic, is the president of a drilling corporation — more by fate than design.

After her husband died, Mrs. Brooks managed the family chemical business for awhile, eventually selling it.

In 1958 she entered the oil drilling contracting business, assuming the office work while a partner handled the outside chores.

Six years later the pair dissolved the partnership, each taking a rig, and Mrs. Brooks was on her own in the drilling business.

"I was determined I was not going to sit back and to give up what I had," she recalled.

Main Attraction

She said the challenge of competing against the other fellow is one of the main attractions in the business for her.

"It's not always the lowest bid that gets the contract — it's what you agree to do," the bespectacled executive said.

"I won't haggle over a cup of coffee with a bunch of men for a job."

With the aid of a short-wave radio system, she stays in close touch with her crews.

Her tool pusher supervises three crews, each with a driller, a derrick man and two floor men.

"If I were a man I would probably be my own tool pusher," she said.

With no background in the oil business, Mrs. Brooks attributes much of her knowledge to her membership in the Desk and Derrick Club, a national organization for women employed in the oil industry. She is program chairman of the Breckenridge chapter.

Stubby Stargazer Slated To Sweep Skies By 1970

By RALPH DIGHTON
AP Science Writer

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — A stubby stargazer more powerful than older telescopes twice its size is expected to start sweeping the skies by 1970.

Its 60-inch diameter mirror, aided by modern electronics, is designed to reflect a larger piece of the cosmos at one time than any other long-focal length telescope — including the world's largest, beside which it will sit atop Palomar Mountain in southern California.

Although its cannon-like barrel is only 13 feet long, half the length of earlier 60-inchers and a fourth as long as Palomar's 200-inch "big eye," the scope now under construction will reach out to some of the most distant objects yet seen: the quasars that are reshaping astronomers' thinking about the size of the universe.

Semi-automated, with preprogrammed tape changing aim and focus, the new scope is a forerunner of designs which may someday free astronomers from the need for baby sitting their mechanical monsters through the long, cold nights when seeing is best.

Because of the greater ease with which its short barrel can be shifted from target to target, this "mighty mite" of astronomy will take more pictures per precious hour of good visibility, and thus bring closer the solving of the great mysteries of the universe.

Its stubbiness means its protective dome can be smaller and less costly, with more of the $1 million budget going to the scope and its instrumentation.

Designer Bruce Rule, chief engineer of Mt. Wilson and Palomar observatories, says the 60-inch will bridge the gap between the high magnification and small field of the 200-inch and the low magnification and wide field of another scope on Palomar, the 48-inch Schmidt, used in mapping the sky.

Despite its larger mirror, the 200-inch is focused on extreme distances, so that it covers a piece of sky only about the size of the moon. This is equal to half a degree of arc. The wide-angle Schmidt covers 50 degrees — an area 100 times wider. The new 60-inch will cover an area twice the diameter of the moon and still detect objects farther out than those which can be seen with the Schmidt. Varying its focal length, and thus its seeing distance, by bouncing incoming starlight between mirrors, will give the 60 inch an extremely wide range of near and far objects it can study.

This means, says Dr. Horace Babcock, director of the observatories, that the new scope will be able to take some of the workload off the 200-inch and the 48-inch at Palomar and an older 6-inch and a 100-inch atop nearby Mt. Wilson.

Increasing reflection of Los Angeles' lights in the night sky over Mt. Wilson has hurt the effectiveness of the 100-inch for observations of distant objects. The new 60-inch, on Palomar midway between Los Angeles and San Diego, will have little interference from city lights and should be able to see almost as far as the 100-inch.

One of the main tasks of the 100-inch which the 60-inch would take over is not photography but photometry — counting the photons of light that comes from stars and thus measuring intensity and color.

This is essential in finding the mysterious objects called quasars, starlike objects which are the fastest, most distant things yet seen in the universe. All give off blue light. Astronomers hope the new 60-inch can detect more of the blue, distant objects for the 200-inch to study at closer range.

It will have a better chance, at least. Television and radio broadcasting antennas built on Mt. Wilson in recent years interfere with the electronic equipment needed for photometric studies. There are no antennas on Palomar.

In addition to photometers, the new 60-inch will have the latest version of astronomy's newest tool, an image intensifier, which in effect magnifies not the image but the light itself.

The intensifier is a small tube that works something like the picture tube in a television set. Instead of simply reproducing an image as a television set does, however, the intensifier greatly increases the brightness of faint light from distant stars.

Log House Near Crossett Serves As Reminder Of Past

A unique log house near Crossett, Ark. is a big attention-getter. Filled with reminders of the past, the house is a constant source of amazement to visitors, who are even more amazed at the age of the dwelling.

CROSSETT, Ark. — Strangers passing the many-gabled log house seven miles west of Crossett often come to a skidding halt on the gravel road when they see the house for the first time.

Appearing suddenly through an opening in the mimosa and flowering crape myrtle in its yard, the log house looks as though it has always been there. So it comes as a surprise when one learns it was built little more than 25 years ago.

The log house was built by its owners, Vivian and Homer Bryant at Mineral Springs.

The big house, with its wide screened porch is built of logs cut from the surrounding forest, with hand-rived shingles split from giant cypress trees cut near the springs which gave birth to the house. The story of the house cannot be told without beginning with the spring which originally brought the couple to the wooded area.

In 1927 Homer Bryant, who lived in El Dorado at the time, was critically ill with pyelitis. He was brought down to a place then known as Sulphur Springs, where he drank the water for weeks. Within six weeks he was sufficiently relieved of his infection to take advantage of the open turkey season, and to shoot a wild turkey. He hiked (with frequent stops for rest) through the forest to Crossett to call his wife in El Dorado and say, "Come down and bring all the fixings for a wild turkey dinner." That was the first of many wild turkey dinners which have followed down at the Springs.

The Bryants first leased and then bought 29 acres of land controlling the spring, and another four acres above flood level for their home. Homer began bottling the clear water of the spring and selling it to an increasing circle of customers which eventually embraced states from the southern tip of Florida to Maine, and from Oregon to Georgia.

Strong Feeling

The couple had come to love the deep and brooding cypress swamps behind the spring, as well as the hardwood and pine forests which emerged as the land sloped up from the "bottoms." Mrs. Bryant had a strong feeling for old things which had to do with the beginnings of this country, and had collected quite an array of antiques since their marriage in El Dorado in 1922. She had dreamed of owning a log house to set off her antiques, and now seemed the time to turn that dream into solid walls.

The couple moved into a one-room hunting shack with a tent lean-to, by the spring. Bryant was away most of the time delivering the bottled water, so in 1937 Mrs. Bryant, with the help of two local Negro men — a stone mason who built the fireplaces, and a "hammer and saw carpenter" — began their home. She also leaned heavily on advice offered in a government pamphlet on how to build a log house. The carpenter man saddle-notched countless pine logs cut from the property around the house. Mrs. Bryant, with Dewey Hedge, a neighbor who had experience in building log houses, lifted every log into place to form the walls of the huge house. The government instructions said a log house should settle at least eight months before chinking the space between the logs. Theirs settled two years while they hoarded money and materials to finish their home, which was being built in a wild area two miles from the nearest neighbor.

As the years slipped by "the war caught up with us. You couldn't buy windows and doors, and you couldn't buy nails." The determined Bryants found an old house being torn down in Shreveport and scavenged windows, doors and nails — including many of the square nails used a century ago. The windows were of all shapes and sizes, so the Bryant house was built around the materials they scavenged from the Louisiana house. These windows create no small part of the charm of the home.

In the kitchen one entire wall is filled with a large round window with little square panes. It opens in sections, letting the garden fragrance blow into the big, homey kitchen. Other windows are edged with stained glass panes with rainbow blues, reds and yellows. The front door to the home came from one of the first stores ever built in Bastrop, and was planed by hand and put together with wooden pegs. As Mrs. Bryant says, "The house just grew like Topsy. When we would run out of some material we would adjust the house to the shortage, and build with what we had."

Like No Other

When it came into being, the Bryant house was like no other house in the world. It has all the charm of a Hansel and Gretel make-believe house, nestled among huge trees, with flowers everywhere — day lilies, hollyhocks, roses, and even a lily pool at the base of the garden.

The charm of the outside of the home is more than matched when one walks in the front door. At the back of the wide front hall a curving staircase (from the Louisiana house) leads upstairs. A Victorian halltree of carved English walnut at the left of the door has a crescent-moon mirror punctuated by a bright star-shaped mirror beside it. Wide doors of native cedar open on the left into the living room, where a fire burns all winter in the fireplace of native rock. Here a visitor can spend hours examining the furnishings, each with its own story, and each with a special claim to beauty.

There is a huge spinning wheel in working condition silhouetted against the bright glass of a window. Beside it is an elaborately carved walnut organ, which Mrs. Bryant regrets having turned into a desk. Inside this organ desk are copies of "Maple Leaves," a magazine dating to just after the Civil War. The stories in the old magazines picture the fair ladies swooning at every crisis, and constantly fluttering delicate handkerchiefs from pale-fingered hands. There is never mention of work by the men or the women; nothing so crass as getting the dishes washed, the baby changed, the store kept or the coal mined. All the men simply stand around in those stories treating the swooning women like fragile porcelain, and the ladies are forever being permanently, swooningly offended by almost any and every thing the men do.

Also in the living room is a secretary which touches the ceiling, another beautiful ante-bellum piece.

The forest setting of the Bryant home is brought indoors with rugs on the floor made from hides of wild boar, deer and a huge bobcat.

An interesting part of the history of the Bryants' furniture-collecting is tied in with the story of El Dorado. According to Mrs. Bryant when oil hit El Dorado in 1921, there was a rush of people to the little town which offered very limited housing. Much of the big furniture had to go to make space for "roomers," who swarmed into the boom town filling every available house with people in need of bed and living space. In addition, as the people found themselves suddenly rich, many promptly got rid of the battered old furniture which had survived the journeys of their grandparents in their westward trek from Virginia, the Carolinas, Georgia and Alabama, 75 to 90 years before. So hand-made four-poster beds gave way to the glossy "modern" beds of the 20's, the huge armoires (or clothes presses) were replaced by built-in closets, and the old straight-backed love seats and settees made way for the "overstuffed" couch.

Much of the cast-off furniture was given to Negro servants, and it was in an abandoned Negro shack that Mrs. Bryant found one of her favorite pieces — a three-quarter width canopy bed. She and Homer searched out the owner of the shack, who gave them the broken-down bed. A week later the shack burned, and Vivian still holds her breath over how near she came to losing the lovely cherry bed which graces an upstairs guest room.

On the right of the entrance hall is the dining room of the Bryant house, where the couple has hosted as many as 50 guests for dinner. That number, of course, was unusual, but it has not been at all unusual to have 16 seated around the two dining tables. The oak ladder-back chairs in the room were made for the Bryants by a blacksmith in El Dorado. On racks along two walls are pieces of china and glass which are of endless interest to collectors. More are displayed in an old china cabinet, with others in an oak buffet. The fireplace in the dining room is made exactly like those of the ante-bellum homes, where much of the cooking was done on the fireplace. There is a crane to hold a blackened iron pot above the coals in the hearth, and a warming oven in which the Bryants have parched many a bushel of peanuts for eager children.

Special Dinner

Nearly always at Easter there has been a special dinner including wild turkey which Bryant shot near the home, along with venison, squirrel and often barbecued coon. Jellies of wild grapes and Mayhaw are always on the table, along with vegetables from the garden beside the house.

The very heart of the house is the big kitchen. There is a modern gas stove beside an old-fashioned wood (or coal) burning stove. Mrs. Bryant is an expert when cooking on either. A round oak table with magnificent claw feet centers the room, with its compliment of friends sitting over a cup of coffee while fragrant food cooks for dinner.

Downstairs is a den, Bryant's office, the master bedroom and bath.

Of particular interest is the spiral stairway to the guestrooms. Here the gables of the house lend much charm, especially for children. Off each of the huge bedrooms a gable opens, forming a dressing room which the children adore because of its snug size. Fireplaces are lighted when there are guests in the winter. Marbletop chests and old china basin and pitcher sets complement the canopy bed in one room and a walnut bed in the other.

One of the most charming pieces upstairs is the little "primping mirror" which rests on an antique commode in one of the bedrooms. The square mirror pivots over a single drawer which any lady traveling across the country in a swaying covered wagon could hold on her lap as she re-arranged her hair, replacing her brush and comb along with hairpins in the little drawer. This one came west in a covered wagon to El Dorado more than a century ago.

The most charming thing about the home is the hospitality of its owners. Almost everyone who sees it for the first time says, "I just must see the inside of that house." Many strangers simply walk to the door and knock, and ask if they may see the home. Others go back into Crossett in search of someone who will introduce them to its owners. The Bryants welcome them all, and keep perpetual open house.

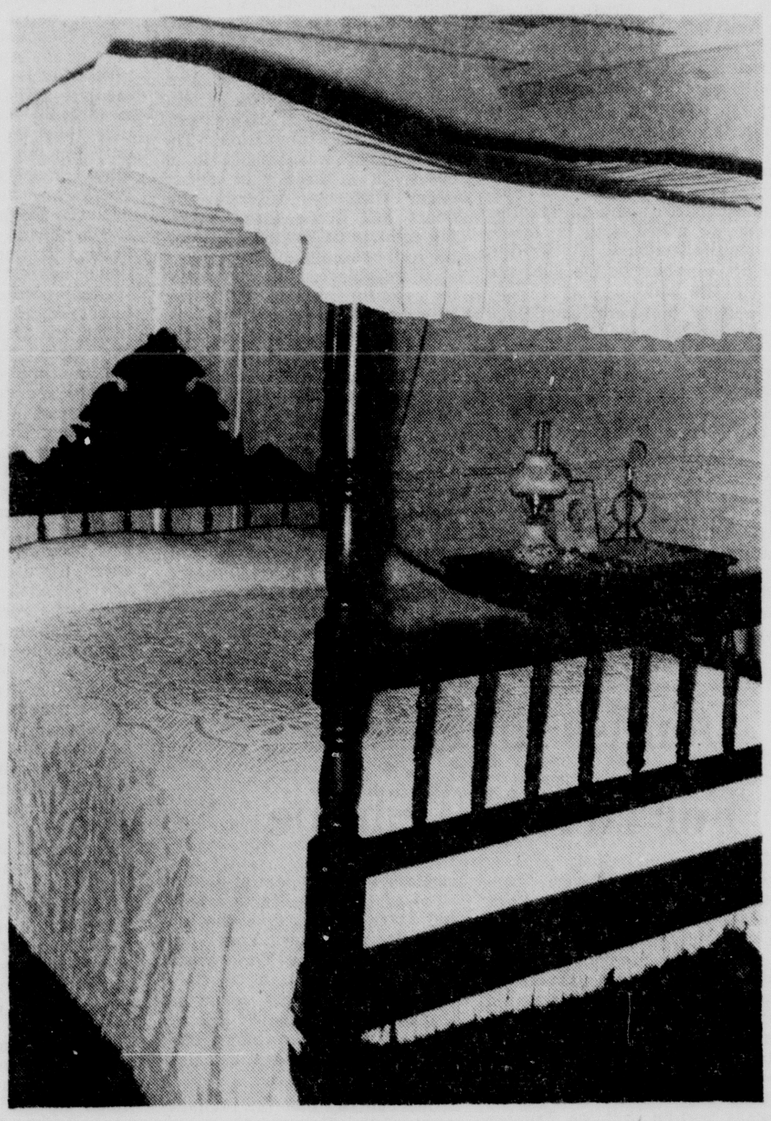

In these days of rows upon rows of split-level, ranch type houses, all with almost identical furniture, the home of Vivian and Homer Bryant stands as a monument to individuality, and to the unique charm which is borne of simply "being yourself."

HOMER BRYANT stands in front of his log house of many gables, located seven miles west of Crossett on the historic old Mineral Springs Road. The house looks as though it had always been there, but was built only about 25 years ago.

ROCK FIREPLACES warm the upstairs guestrooms in winter. This one is flanked by a rocking chair and a marble - topped dresser which had been handed down for generations in an El Dorado family. After oil was struck in El Dorado, the family gave the dresser to a Negro from whom Mrs. Bryant bought the piece of furniture.

THIS CHERRY CANOPY bed was "rescued" from an abandoned shack near El Dorado, where it had ben given to servants by a family which struck oil and replaced it with 'modern" furniture of the 1920's.

Colorful Division Created

By BOB POOS

AN KHE, South Viet Nam (AP) — The Viet Cong and North Vietnamese have created one of the finest combat divisions of any army in the world. Unfortunately for them it is an American unit, the 1st cavalry, Airmobile, Division.

In statistics alone, the 1st Cav has compiled an impressive record since it arrived last September at its base camp near the sleepy village of An Khe, in the Central Highlands. The highlands have been jumping ever since, and still are, with plenty of North Vietnamese regulars right out there in the trees.

To date the 1st Cav has killed more than 5,000 of the enemy by body count, and the command estimates it has slain another 5,000 whose bodies were dragged away. The Cav troopers have more than 1,800 captured weapons in their museum, ranging from ancient French rifles to Chinese Communist heavy mortars, machine guns and recoilless cannon.

Some 1,300 enemy soldiers have surrendered the 1st Cav in its year of operation and the Cav turned over more than a million tons of rice to Vietnamese refugees.

But statistics alone do not tell the story of this colorful unit. It is a division unique to warfare. Its creators have chosen to call it an "airmobile" division.

The 1st Cav has at its disposal more than 450 helicopters, far more than any other American unit in Viet Nam can muster at a given time.

It is the only U.S. unit to boast ownership of "sky cranes," the biggest and most powerful helicopter in the world. The Cav has three of them and they are capable of lifting such things as light tanks, bulldozers and eight-inch howitzers.

The Cav workhorses, however, are the "Hueys," the HU 1 B, D, and E model choppers that serve as swift transport to battlefields for seven soldiers at a lift.

One of the men who molded the new U.S. cavalry is Col. John D. Stockton, who recently returned to the United States after his second one-year tour in Viet Nam.

He says of the air cavalry concept: "We have effected a marriage of helicopters and infantry and I think we have proven that it is the only way for us to fight this war."

Wooden Horse To Be Used As Library Of Mythology

EDITOR'S NOTE — Greece has known its wooden horse, now it is getting a concrete one. For Dr. Harry Fournier, it will be a "museum of mythology contained in mythology."

By CHRIS ELIOU

FILIATRA, Greece (AP) — Haralambos Fournarakis has been mighty good to Filiatra. But then, he says, Filiatra was mighty good to him.

Haralambos Fournarakis was born here 60 years ago, and his childhood here was extremely happy. Now, as Dr. Harry Fournier, Chicago surgeon, ulcer specialist and expert in Greek Mythology, he is repaying Filiatra.

His latest gift is a concrete horse, 50 feet long and 27 feet high, with a golden tail and a mane of gilded tin strips that flap in the breeze. Alongside will be a restaurant and motel. Dr. Fournier sees his horse as "a museum of mythology contained in mythology."

Up From Sea

This is not the standing horse with which Ulysses fooled the Trojans. This is a sitting horse, a rendering of the one which Poseidon, god of the sea, summoned from the waves as an offering to the then unnamed city. The Athenians rejected it in favor of the gift of the olive from the goddess Athena, who thus gave her name and became the city's protectress.

Dr. Fournier intends to assemble in his horse a library and museum of Greek mythology. "It will be," he says, "a Noah's Ark of mythology."

As a start, he is moving his private library of 1,600 volumes on Greek mythology to the museum, and will seek contributions from all over the world. The Greek government will provide a librarian to help with establishing the library, he says.

He spent his summer holiday in the horse's rump, in an apartment complete with electric kitchen. The horse and a nearby observation tower with flapping Greek and United States flags, stands out for miles on the flat coastal countryside of the Peloponesus peninsula.

After graduating in medicine from Athens University, Dr. Fournier practiced for a year in Filiatra, then went to Paris for advanced study. In 1933 he moved to Chicago, Americanized his name, and taught at the Chicago Medical School and the University of Illinois until 1950. He now directs the Chicago Medical Center.

Filiatra authorities might never have allowed the unusual horse of Poseidon had it not been for Dr. Fournier's considerable — and sometimes unusual — donations to his native city.

The Fournier Cultural Center of Filiatra contains the local Boy Scout headquarters and a language institute.

Motivation

What makes a man spend a small fortune on a city he left more than 30 years ago? In Dr. Fournier's case, it was partly his happy childhood. "I thought of doing something for the place where I was so happy as a boy," he says.

And then it was his lifelong interest in the myths of ancient Greece, which makes his horse-museum, in his mind, the culmination of all his donations.

Situated between Pylos, with the ruins of Nestor's palace, and ancient Olympia, Filiatra is at present, a place where tourists stop only for light refreshments. The population — 7,000 — is falling steadily as its younger, more go-ahead inhabitants migrate to Athens or out of Greece altogether — a problem it shares with most of the Greek provinces.

Dr. Fournier hopes his horse may help change this a little, encouraging tourists to stay a while in Filiatra.

Filiatra has named him "benefactor," and King Constantine has awarded him the gold cross of the Royal order of the Phoenix for his contributions to his home town.

To Filiatrians, he's the local boy who didn't forget his hometown. And they love telling the stranger inquiring for him: "Drive straight down that road till you come to his horse."

Petite Grandma Drills For Oil

By MARTHANN BERRY

BRECKENRIDGE, Tex. (AP) — Mrs. Anna Brooks is a petite, white-haired grandmother who circulates daily through a man's world — the oil drilling contracting business.

She insists she isn't "ready to go on the shelf yet."

Mrs. Brooks, affable and energetic, is the president of a drilling corporation — more by fate than design.

After her husband died, Mrs. Brooks managed the family chemical business for awhile, eventually selling it.

In 1958 she entered the oil drilling contracting business, assuming the office work while a partner handled the outside chores.

Six years later the pair dissolved the partnership, each taking a rig, and Mrs. Brooks was on her own in the drilling business.

"I was determined I was not going to sit back and to give up what I had," she recalled.

Main Attraction

She said the challenge of competing against the other fellow is one of the main attractions in the business for her.

"It's not always the lowest bid that gets the contract — it's what you agree to do," the bespectacled executive said.

"I won't haggle over a cup of coffee with a bunch of men for a job."

With the aid of a short-wave radio system, she stays in close touch with her crews.

Her tool pusher supervises three crews, each with a driller, a derrick man and two floor men.

"If I were a man I would probably be my own tool pusher," she said.

With no background in the oil business, Mrs. Brooks attributes much of her knowledge to her membership in the Desk and Derrick Club, a national organization for women employed in the oil industry. She is program chairman of the Breckenridge chapter.

Stubby Stargazer Slated To Sweep Skies By 1970

By RALPH DIGHTON
AP Science Writer

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — A stubby stargazer more powerful than older telescopes twice its size is expected to start sweeping the skies by 1970.

Its 60-inch diameter mirror, aided by modern electronics, is designed to reflect a larger piece of the cosmos at one time than any other long-focal length telescope — including the world's largest, beside which it will sit atop Palomar Mountain in southern California.

Although its cannon-like barrel is only 13 feet long, half the length of earlier 60-inchers and a fourth as long as Palomar's 200-inch "big eye," the scope now under construction will reach out to some of the most distant objects yet seen: the quasars that are reshaping astronomers' thinking about the size of the universe.

Semi-automated, with preprogrammed tape changing aim and focus, the new scope is a forerunner of designs which may someday free astronomers from the need for baby sitting their mechanical monsters through the long, cold nights when seeing is best.

Because of the greater ease with which its short barrel can be shifted from target to target, this "mighty mite" of astronomy will take more pictures per precious hour of good visibility, and thus bring closer the solving of the great mysteries of the universe.

Its stubbiness means its protective dome can be smaller and less costly, with more of the $1 million budget going to the scope and its instrumentation.

Designer Bruce Rule, chief engineer of Mt. Wilson and Palomar observatories, says the 60-inch will bridge the gap between the high magnification and small field of the 200-inch and the low magnification and wide field of another scope on Palomar, the 48-inch Schmidt, used in mapping the sky.

Despite its larger mirror, the 200-inch is focused on extreme distances, so that it covers a piece of sky only about the size of the moon. This is equal to half a degree of arc. The wide-angle Schmidt covers 50 degrees — an area 100 times wider. The new 60-inch will cover an area twice the diameter of the moon and still detect objects farther out than those which can be seen with the Schmidt. Varying its focal length, and thus its seeing distance, by bouncing incoming starlight between mirrors, will give the 60-inch an extremely wide range of near and far objects it can study.

This means, says Dr. Horace Babcock, director of the observatories, that the new scope will be able to take some of the workload off the 200-inch and the 48-inch at Palomar and an older 6-inch and a 100-inch atop nearby Mt. Wilson.

Increasing reflection of Los Angeles' lights in the night sky over Mt. Wilson has hurt the effectiveness of the 100-inch for observations of distant objects. The new 60-inch, on Palomar midway between Los Angeles and San Diego, will have little interference from city lights and should be able to see almost as far as the 100-inch.

One of the main tasks of the 100-inch which the 60-inch would take over is not photography but photometry — counting the photons of light that comes from stars and thus measuring intensity and color.

This is essential in finding the mysterious objects called quasars, starlike objects which are the fastest, most distant things yet seen in the universe. All give off blue light. Astronomers hope the new 60-inch can detect more of the blue, distant objects for the 200-inch to study at closer range.

It will have a better chance, at least. Television and radio broadcasting antennas built on Mt. Wilson in recent years interfere with the electronic equipment needed for photometric studies. There are no antennas on Palomar.

In addition to photometers, the new 60-inch will have the latest version of astronomy's newest tool, an image intensifier, which in effect magnifies not the image but the light itself.

The intensifier is a small tube that works something like the picture tube in a television set. Instead of simply reproducing an image as a television set does, however, the intensifier greatly increases the brightness of faint light from distant stars.

Forcing Strike's End

In the long run, if working people of this country are ever denied the right to quit working when they want to, it will be the liberals, leftists, radicals, or whatever one may choose to call them, in Congress who will do the job. Conservatives generally are in favor of steps which would break union labor's stranglehold over the nation's industry but, by their very principles, they are committed to uphold the right of any individual man to quit work.

On the other hand, the so-called liberals are not committed in any way to uphold any individual freedom in this country. The name by which they call themselves is an absolute contradiction of their every word and deed. They are not liberals, under any circumstances, but are men committed to the purpose of depriving people of their liberty.

The leftists shamelessly assume the face of some sort of savior but there is evidence in Congress right now that they will be the ones who will pass legislation for forced government arbitration and settlement of strikes.

Before we get too far along and before we stir up protests from those who protested against the airline strikes, with good cause and reason, we will state that we are as strongly against union strangulation of this nation's industries as anyone who may be found anywhere. Our position is not that we need more laws but that we need to repeal the present labor law which forces management and labor to negotiate, and to make unions subject to anti-trust laws.

It is our contention that if labor makes unreasonable demands and that if employes do not want to work under conditions already existing, either these employes or the managements have the right to "sever relations." In other words, the employes are free to seek employment elsewhere and the employers should be just as free to hire other workers. But the employers are hamstrung by the law which says they must negotiate.

As we see it, there is no need whatever for the government ever to attempt to force a settlement of a strike or to force employers or workers to negotiate.

It is our firm belief that all strikes big enough to injure the economy and welfare of the country could be prevented by repeal of the present labor law and by enactment of a law which would place unions and their leaders under this nation's anti-monopoly laws. In other words, strikes in restraint of interstate trade could be prohibited if those responsible for the strikes were prevented from operating in more than one state and if the strikes were broken up into state units and restraint of trade were prohibited.

The government is constantly acting to break up big businesses and industries which it claims are monopolistic. It could just as easily break up unions which become too big and could limit their scope to certain localities or certain states. Then, individual unions would not be big enough to disrupt the economy of the nation but the employes would still maintain their right to stop working when they chose.

In support of what we say about the fact that the so-called liberals eventually will be the ones who will deprive union labor members of their right to strike or even their right to quit work as individuals, we begin by showing the side a staunch conservative in Congress takes.

As pointed out by Ralph Toledano, World columnist, "in the lexicon of the liberal-left, any man who believes in the superiority of the free working society is, by definition, against motherhood, the working man, and organized labor. This all-or-nothing attitude applies in particular to Congressmen who oppose compulsory unionism. To the labor boss, they are devils in disguise who would enslave the unions."

It must, therefore, be a little startling to the leftists that one of those appointed by the American Federation of Labor-Congress of Industrial organizations to the status of "enemy" should be arguing against legislation which would allow either Congress or the President or both to settle such strikes as the long strike against the airlines.

Representative James B. Utt, a California Republican and a member of Capitol Hill's conservative bloc, took a stand against the measure in Congress to force arbitration in the airlines strike on grounds that its provisions were utterly inconsistent with his political philosophy.

"A law to force machinists back to work might be temporarily expedient," Utt said, "but it would not resolve the problem in the long run. On the contrary, it would have the effect of completely destroying free and open collective bargaining. If Congress sets the dangerous precedent of settling a strike, it will find itself resolving every labor dispute that arises. That would make it a kind of legislative national labor relations board" — a full-time job. Utt advocates making the Sherman anti-trust law apply to big unions.

With the present Congress made up of a majority of so-called liberals, airline managements surely could derive no comfort from a forced settlement of any strike. We can be sure that the Congressmen elected by labor don't want to offend the labor bosses.

What would be the result of a Congress - arbitrated settlement of a strike? Naturally, the Congressman would say there would have to be a "compromise" between the labor bosses and the managements. This would mean the airlines would have to give big pay raises and more luxurious working conditions. If the airlines had been willing to do that, they might as well have met the union demands in the first place.

If strikers do force Congress to become an arbitration board, they will, in the long run, be cutting their own throats as well as those of the management. Union labor's life depends on free enterprise. As long as we have private ownership of business and industry, labor will be allowed to quit work when it chooses and, under the present setup, the government and Congress will take labor's side.

Once industry is nationalized, however, and run by the government, workers, whether union or non-union, will be caught in a squeeze tighter than a machinist's vise. Union labor will do what the government says and will work for whatever pay the government dictates, no matter how small that pay may be.

Arkansas Governor Race

From the standpoint of those in the South who have spent some time analyzing the results of the Arkansas Democratic runoff election for governor, the situation is not as bad as it might have been.

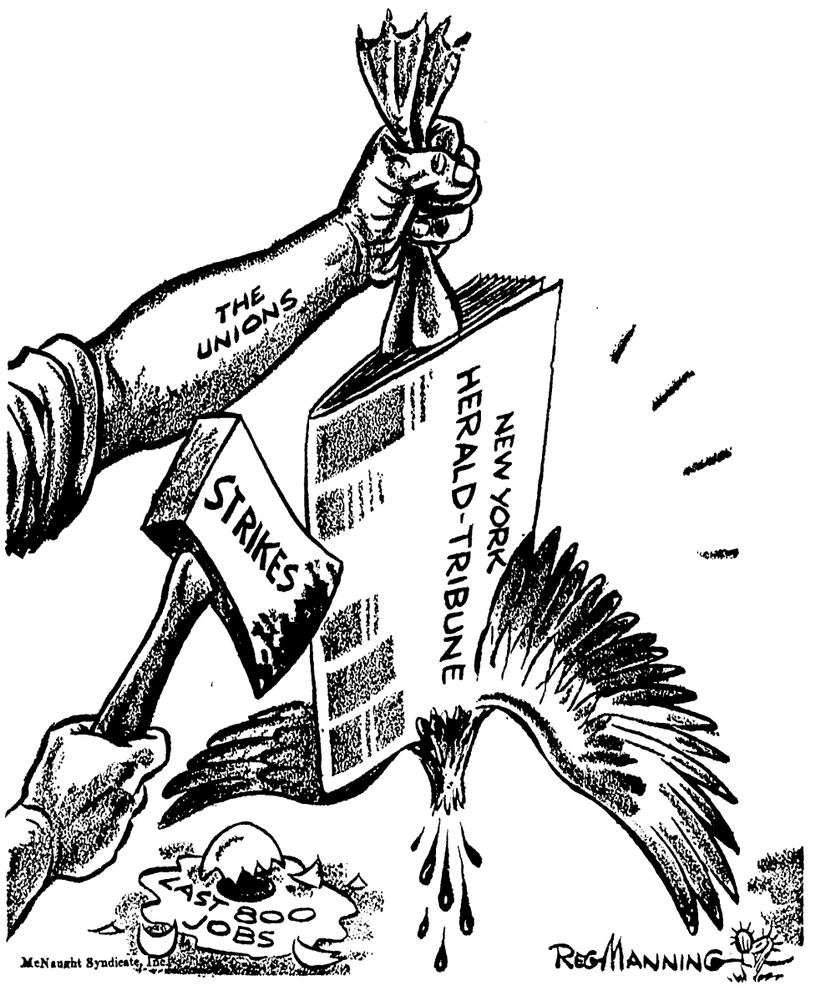

Either the people will elect an anti-federal administration Democrat or a Republican in the general election in November. The way things are going, unless there is a mighty shift to the Republican ranks, the anti - administration Democrat is likely to win.

Jim Johnson, who ran high on a seven-candidate ticket in the first primary, defeated Frank Holt, a former colleague on the Arkansas Supreme Court, with an impressive majority in the runoff.

Johnson will be opposed in the general election in November by Republican Winthrop Rockefeller, brother of Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York.

Johnson, an outspoken segregationist, called on voters to say "no" to Washington's so - called civil rights, welfare and foreign aid policies by electing him.

Constitutional Powers

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

In his letter from Grambling College Richard Pugh said:

I was reading your editorial for Monday, August 8. You said that many of the members of the United States Supreme Court don't read the Federal Constitution.

Sir, will you tell where in the Constitution does it say that segregated schools are what we have to have in America?

1: In the 10th Bill of Rights — The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people.

2: In Article 1, section 1 of the body of the Constitution is — All legislative Powers herein granted shall be vested in a Congress of the United States, which shall consist of a Senate and House of Representatives.

3: In Article 6, clause 2, part 1, in the body of the Constitution — This Constitution, and the laws of the United States which shall be made in Pursuance thereof; and all Treaties made, or which shall be made, under the Authority of the United States, shall be the supreme law of the Land; . . . .

It is a long-established and well - established principle and rule of the United States Supreme Court, the United States Courts of Appeals, and the United States District Courts, that when Congress has no power delegated to it in Article 1, section 8, clauses 1 to 17, in the body of the Constitution, to enact any least bit of a statute for the United States concerning segregated elementary and secondary (grade and high) schools but any State having such a segregated-school statutes on its books is bound to be heard in the federal court and that the court is bound to uphold, find, conclude, decide, decree, and order in the hearing of the segregated - school lawsuit brought to the court from whichever State it is begun and carried on in the district court and may be appealed to the court of appeals and to the supreme court.

The State's segregated - school statutes rule the federal courts in hearing of the lawsuit.

The United States courts know it — but defy it, deny it, cut it down.

Supreme Court Cases

Eads, Tennessee

To the Editor:

The ultra liberal socialist minded majority on the U.S. Supreme Court is a disgrace and a danger to our form of Government.

In the ten years before Warren's appointment, the Court decided 37 cases involving communism and subversion. The Government was upheld in 23 cases. In a three year period under Warren's leadership the Court has in 62 cases upheld the communist position 51 times, the anti-communist position only 11 times. Warren has supported the communists in 62 cases, without deviation. Many of these were narrow 5 to 4 decisions.

The recent decision handcuffing law enforcement officers and giving the individual (criminal) a bit more edge against society is the latest assault against orderly government.

During the Senate hearings on his nomination to the Supreme Court, Abe Fortas stated for the record: "I believe that an adequate opportunity in the hands of the police to interrogate persons who are accused of crime or suspected . . . is absolutely essential to law enforcement."

Fortas was one of the Supreme Court justices who voted against the police in favor of criminals on this very point. If he was telling the truth to the Senate, what changed his mind; or did he receive new instructions??

On Reserve Forces

West Monroe, La.

(The following letter was addressed to Sen. Richard B. Russell, chairman of the Armed Services Committee and all committee members and a copy sent to this newspaper for publication.)

Dear Senator Russell
& All Committee Members:

I read in the Monroe Morning World newspaper, Monroe, Louisiana, dated August 13, 1966, where you and the other members of the Appropriations committee quote, "Insists that immediate consideration be given to utilizing Reserve forces", in that they be called to active duty for the war in Viet Nam. May I respectfully ask, "What War?" I recall of no war being declared by the Congress of the U.S.A. Then, next it is stated, quote, "It would be in the national interest to utilize a reasonable portion of the Reserve forces of all services", in fulfilling the U.S. commitment in Viet Nam. May I also call to the Committee's attention that ALL of The People of this country are not in agreement for any such commitment.

Then if the above is not enough "Clap Trap" you have the effrontery to state (if this newspaper quoted you correctly), "We have got a scandal here." What scandal? Just because there exists the Reserve and National Guard as well as all of the regular armed services. That under our Democracy membership in these branches can be by volunteering if desired. Then if a man who is subject to serve his country does not choose to volunteer, he can be drafted. Under this Democracy the man across the street can make his own choice. Is this what you mean by a scandal?

Most all of our National Guard and Reserve units were Federalized and inducted into service nearly one year before Pearl Harbor and then went on to serve their country until the end of WW II. This represented in most cases service for over five (5) years. I do not recall the man across the street who stayed home until he was drafted being concerned about this. I know of many who remained home for as long as four (4) years before being drafted and never got any further than Stateside. I have no quarrel with this, that's just the way it worked out. But please, Senator, let's try to be reasonable. No formula works for every situation. I again respectfully suggest that you and your Committee take another look and leave the setup as it is. It seems to have worked exceptionally well so far.

Why all the concern anyway? From the reports by the Department of Defense the army has reached the strength in man power now that they had not expected to reach until around June of 1967. And then, too, from all the other reports we are winning the war The President has stated, according to the newspaper reports, that he is not particularly concerned with our situation in Viet Nam and that he was not surprised by our losses — Seven (7) planes in one day — Sunday, August 7, 1966 -- and that this was not beyond his expectations.

In closing I would like to state that I shudder to think what would happen if this country really was drawn into a major conflict if it requires our Reserves and National Guard to be brought in to help win this "skirmish" in Viet Nam with approximately three million men under arms and in service at this time.

Demise Inglorious For Herald-Tribune

ONE WISHES IT were possible to say of the New York Herald Tribune that it went down fighting. Towards the end it did a little preening in paramilitary garb, and threatened that if the labor unions went too far they might endanger the very life of the newspaper; but the labor unions in New York had learned that the Tribune was a paper tiger. It is by no means certain that the Tribune could ever, by itself, have mustered the influence to reform the anti-social laws that caused its own execution. But it might at least have gone to the gallows proudly.

It didn't. Here was the prime eastern Republican newspaper in the land, by its own and most other peoples' designation. Historians need look no further than to the Tribune's editorial pages over the past decade to observe the sheer nothingness to which Republicanism, under the Tribune's leadership and that of other like-minded, or non-minded men, had been reduced. The Tribune did not even exhibit what any healthy organization irreducibly must, namely an intelligent concern for its own life.

IT WAS CLEAR ten years ago, five years ago, three years ago, let alone three months ago, that the Tribune's only hope lay in automation and in resisting wage demands enforced by the unions on its prosperous rivals. Yet during that period the Tribune, which knew how to mount a journalistic crusade to remove a park bench from here to there, would do nothing except from time to time enter a ritual demurrer about the power of the labor unions progressively to tighten the noose around its own neck. A year ago when John Lindsay was running for Mayor of New York he proudly voted in favor of the repeal of Section 14(b) of the Taft Hartley Law, and, later fawning upon the Liberal Party of New York, pronounced that New York was a "union city." Not a word of criticism from his principal sponsor in the area, which, because New York is a union city, had contracted a terminal sickness.

One can say that the management of the Tribune, by its supine behavior over the years, brought "it" on themselves. The trouble, of course, is that they also brought "it" on others too. Not only the unemployed of the Tribune staff, among whom the writers and editors are especially hard pressed, but (remember them?) the readers of the Tribune, at least count about a million people (the assumption is that approximately 2.5 people each copy).

HERE ARE A multitude, more people than live in any but the six most populated cities in America -- who over the years expressed their choice among three available morning papers, who are now deprived of their choice of morning reading matter because the labor unions simply refuse to consider the relevance of red ink in formulating their demands, which demands they are in a position to press by closing a newspaper down and (in most cases successfully) contriving to prevent the paper from going out to the market and buying the services of unemployed, or underemployed, workers.

It would have been a bracing thing to see Jock Whitney remove his top hat, go to the ramparts, and — publish. If only four pages, the first day or so, set if necessary in Paris, wired in, photo-offset, and sold on the street corners.

Reading-For-Pleasure Feeling Is Different

PERHAPS TWO or three times a year, your correspondent lapses into the first - person perpendicular. This is one of those lapses.

I have been on vacation for the past few days. For an essentially sedentary fellow, opposed on principle to exercise in any form, these have been blissful days; and for a newspaper editor, who ordinarily is held captive within the prison of his daily column rules, they have been altogether perfect: I have been sitting on the front porch of a cottage in the Blue Ridge Mountains, feet up, listening to a covey of quail whistling bob-white along the fencerow; and I have been reading for the sheer fun of reading.

It is the greatest luxury an editor knows. Nothing touches it. You might not believe this is so, considering that newspapermen are reading something almost all the time, but most of our reading is duty-reading as distinguished from fun-reading. We emerge from that great cavern of hot air and misinformation known as the Congressional Record, and turn at once to the report of some local committee on the gas works. The desk mounds over with bills, resolutions, hand - outs, correspondence, clippings, and awful poems that have to be returned. A chair is heaped with newspapers yet unread. Half a dozen magazines a week must be absorbed. And always there is a piece of copy to be written, or edited, or proofread, and ten visitors to be seen, all of them lunatics save one.

THE RESULT IS that while a newspaperman is forever reading — he reads, in desperation, matchbook covers or the labels on Drano cans — it is seldom that he finds time to go on a spree of reading for the pure pleasure of reading. Here in the mountains, with a three-foot stack of books, I have been hanging one on.

Now, my own theory is that such revelry demands a judicious mixing of the old and new. Part of the fun of rereading an old favorite, especially if you are an habitual underliner and margin - noter, is to follow the penciled spoor you left some years before. I have been annotating a dog-eared volume of Suetonius through the adminintrations of five Presidents, and it is instructive to find what parallels these have provided to the lives of the twelve Caesars. Most of the novel ideas of the New Deal date back to the gloomy Tiberius or the deified Claudius — price controls, crop controls, loan insurance. If Cato the Younger did not invent the filibuster, he was one of its first practitioners. Caesar once had him hauled off to prison for talking too long. "Fine thing for Huey," says an old note on the margin.

SO I HAVE BEEN rereading the gossip columns of Seutonius, and the solid annals of Tacitus, and getting all boozed up on Gibbon's "Decline and Fall." Great balls of fire! How Gibbon could write! My eye falls on a passage dealing with the uncharacteristic subservience of a tribe of Goths who yielded everything, even their sons and daughters, to the rapacity of some Roman proconsuls in the day of Valens. "Notwithstanding the love of freedom which animated every Gothic breast, they submitted to the humiliating maxim that it was better for their children to be maintained in a servile condition that to perish in a state of wretched and helpless independence." And a note on the margin reads: "Better Red than dead."

But I have been reading more contemporary stuff as well. Yesterday morning it was Mark Twain's letters to Mary Rogers, compiled a few years ago by Lewis Leary as a Columbia paperback. There was a journalistic stylist for you! Our craft has not had many of them. And it was never put on with Twain. His letters, like Shaw's letters and Mencken's letters, had the same fine spontaneous smack and wallop of his finished prose. Twain couldn't turn out the simplest sauce without a shot of Tabasco and the juice of half a lemon.

YESTERDAY afternoon it was a new volume of the literary criticism of D. H. Lawrence, just published for Viking Press by Anthony Beal. The paperback contains Lawrence's famous essay on pornography and obscenity. I sat here on the porch, underlining and applauding, and wishing Senator Karl Mundt and Congressman Dominick Daniels were sitting on the steps to hear it read aloud. They need a vacation, too.

I have been reading some fiction: Rex Stout's new Nero Wolfe, which is first-rate; and some Dell reprints of Dashiel Hammet, which stand up excellently; and Bill Woolfolk's new novel from Doubleday, "Opinion of the Court." It is the story of a fictitious Supreme Court justice, Paul Lincoln Lowe, who seems to have been patterned somewhat along the lines of that ever-lovin', mountain - climbing reviser of the Constitution, Mr Justice Douglas. Lowe is the Liberals' Liberal; he is Warren, Black, Brennan, and Douglas, wrapped into one; he is full of sex and bad jurisprudence, an altogether plausible fellow. I found Woolfolk's novel an exasperating book, but hard to put down. It is the best novel of life in Washington since "Advise and Consent," but no conservative should approach it without a pitcher of cold beer for cooling his temper.

Two feet of books remain in the box by the rocker. Next week, alas, it is back to the speeches of Orville Freeman and the wisdom of Senator Morse.

Viet War Described As Kennedy's Brew

DALLAS, TEX. — With the November elections looming, this writer's 70-days-in-advance sampling of political sentiment around our country shows a pattern as plain as the nose on your face.

A whole series of corny old political formulas have run the Great Society politicians up a blind alley. That's the crux of President Johnson's problem. Yet these are the same corny old formulas on which they're depending to beat the backlash.

The result is that "more of the same thing" is going over like a cast-iron balloon.

Average folks everywhere are just itching, and ready, to kick somebody in the pants — and they don't care much who.

It's not enough to say that the Viet Nam War is the political villain, although President Johnson and his Great Society cohorts very humanly gravitate toward that oversimplification. These officials see the Viet Nam commitment as an agony they inherited.

ON THE DAY President Kennedy was inaugurated only 750 American military men were in South Viet Nam and all were serving only as advisers. On the record, Mr. Kennedy made the war commitment when he sent the first 12,000 troops to Viet Nam to relieve his embarrassment with Khrushchev at Vienna after the Bay of Pigs. As summarized recently by former German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer to New York Times correspondent C. L. Sulzberger: "Johnson didn't start that mess. He inherited it from President Kennedy. Johnson has had to eat the stew that Kennedy cooked."

But the White House obsession with the feeling of no guilt about Viet Nam seems to create its own blind spot regarding policy failures on the home front and the public's revised mood about "more of the same thing" in the Great Society.

Everywhere I've been many of the programs seem to carry the stink of betrayal. Local scandals in the war on proverty are close to home. Millions, seeing these, are asking: Is the poverty war a war or a racket? And as the President continues to propose more and more handouts he sounds to millions on TV as if he were singing a hymn to the crowd at a dog track.

THE STEEP increase in food prices has suddenly become an issue. Resentments against the increased costs of living have been brewing for a long time, and this has ignited the whole bundle with a bang.

The increased withholding taxes that knock down the take-home pay are bringing powerful disillusionments. It's become apparent that the Great Society's highly touted Medicare, for example, is creating more problems than it will solve, and now the costs show up — unexpectedly.

New consumer taxes likewise play their part, no matter who levies them. Oil in Texas is like water in the ocean. Yet Texas has raised its gasoline tax to 11 cents, among the highest in the whole country.

The untimely effect of playing footsie with the airlines strike, which this writer described from San Francisco adds to the smoldering resentments against Washington's coddling of the labor leaders no matter what happens to the public. Citizens resent the idea that any group whatever has our officials in their pocket.

Forcing Strike's End

In the long run, if working people of this country are ever denied the right to quit working when they want to, it will be the liberals, leftists, radicals, or whatever one may choose to call them, in Congress who will do the job. Conservatives generally are in favor of steps which would break union labor's stranglehold over the nation's industry but, by their very principles, they are committed to uphold the right of any individual man to quit work.

On the other hand, the so-called liberals are not committed in any way to uphold any individual freedom in this country. The name by which they call themselves is an absolute contradiction of their every word and deed. They are not liberals, under any circumstances, but are men committed to the purpose of depriving people of their liberty.

The leftists shamelessly assume the face of some sort of savior but there is evidence in Congress right now that they will be the ones who will pass legislation for forced government arbitration and settlement of strikes.

Before we get too far along and before we stir up protests from those who protested against the airline strikes, with good cause and reason, we will state that we are as strongly against union strangulation of this nation's industries as anyone who may be found anywhere. Our position is not that we need more laws but that we need to repeal the present labor law which forces management and labor to negotiate, and to make unions subject to anti-trust laws.

It is our contention that if labor makes unreasonable demands and that if employes do not want to work under conditions already existing, either these employes or the managements have the right to "sever relations." In other words, the employes are free to seek employment elsewhere and the employers should be just as free to hire other workers. But the employers are hamstrung by the law which says they must negotiate.

As we see it, there is no need whatever for the government ever to attempt to force a settlement of a strike or to force employers or workers to negotiate.

It is our firm belief that all strikes big enough to injure the economy and welfare of the country could be prevented by repeal of the present labor law and by enactment of a law which would place unions and their leaders under this nation's anti-monopoly laws. In other words, strikes in restraint of interstate trade could be prohibited if those responsible for the strikes were prevented from operating in more than one state and if the strikes were broken up into state units and restraint of trade were prohibited.

The government is constantly acting to break up big businesses and industries which it claims are monopolistic. It could just as easily break up unions which become too big and could limit their scope to certain localities or certain states. Then, individual unions would not be big enough to disrupt the economy of the nation but the employes would still maintain their right to stop working when they chose.

In support of what we say about the fact that the so-called liberals eventually will be the ones who will deprive union labor members of their right to strike or even their right to quit work as individuals, we begin by showing the side a staunch conservative in Congress takes.

As pointed out by Ralph Toledano, World columnist, "in the lexicon of the liberal-left, any man who believes in the superiority of the free working society is, by definition, against motherhood, the working man, and organized labor. This all-or-nothing attitude applies in particular to Congressmen who oppose compulsory unionism. To the labor boss, they are devils in disguise who would enslave the unions."

It must, therefore, be a little startling to the leftists that one of those appointed by the American Federation of Labor-Congress of Industrial organizations to the status of "enemy" should be arguing against legislation which would allow either Congress or the President or both to settle such strikes as the long strike against the airlines.

Representative James B. Utt, a California Republican and a member of Capitol Hill's conservative bloc, took a stand against the measure in Congress to force arbitration in the airlines strike on grounds that its provisions were utterly inconsistent with his political philosophy.

"A law to force machinists back to work might be temporarily expedient," Utt said, "but it would not resolve the problem in the long run. On the contrary, it would have the effect of completely destroying free and open collective bargaining. If Congress sets the dangerous precedent of settling a strike, it will find itself resolving every labor dispute that arises. That would make it a kind of legislative national labor relations board" — a full-time job. Utt advocates making the Sherman anti-trust law apply to big unions.

With the present Congress made up of a majority of so-called liberals, airline managements surely could derive no comfort from a forced settlement of any strike. We can be sure that the Congressmen elected by labor don't want to offend the labor bosses.

What would be the result of a Congress - arbitrated settlement of a strike? Naturally, the Congressman would say there would have to be a "compromise" between the labor bosses and the managements. This would mean the airlines would have to give big pay raises and more luxurious working conditions. If the airlines had been willing to do that, they might as well have met the union demands in the first place.

If strikers do force Congress to become an arbitration board, they will, in the long run, be cutting their own throats as well as those of the management. Union labor's life depends on free enterprise. As long as we have private ownership of business and industry, labor will be allowed to quit work when it chooses and, under the present setup, the government and Congress will take labor's side.

Once industry is nationalized, however, and run by the government, workers, whether union or non-union, will be caught in a squeeze tighter than a machinist's vise. Union labor will do what the government says and will work for whatever pay the government dictates, no matter how small that pay may be.

Arkansas Governor Race

From the standpoint of those in the South who have spent some time analyzing the results of the Arkansas Democratic runoff election for governor, the situation is not as bad as it might have been.

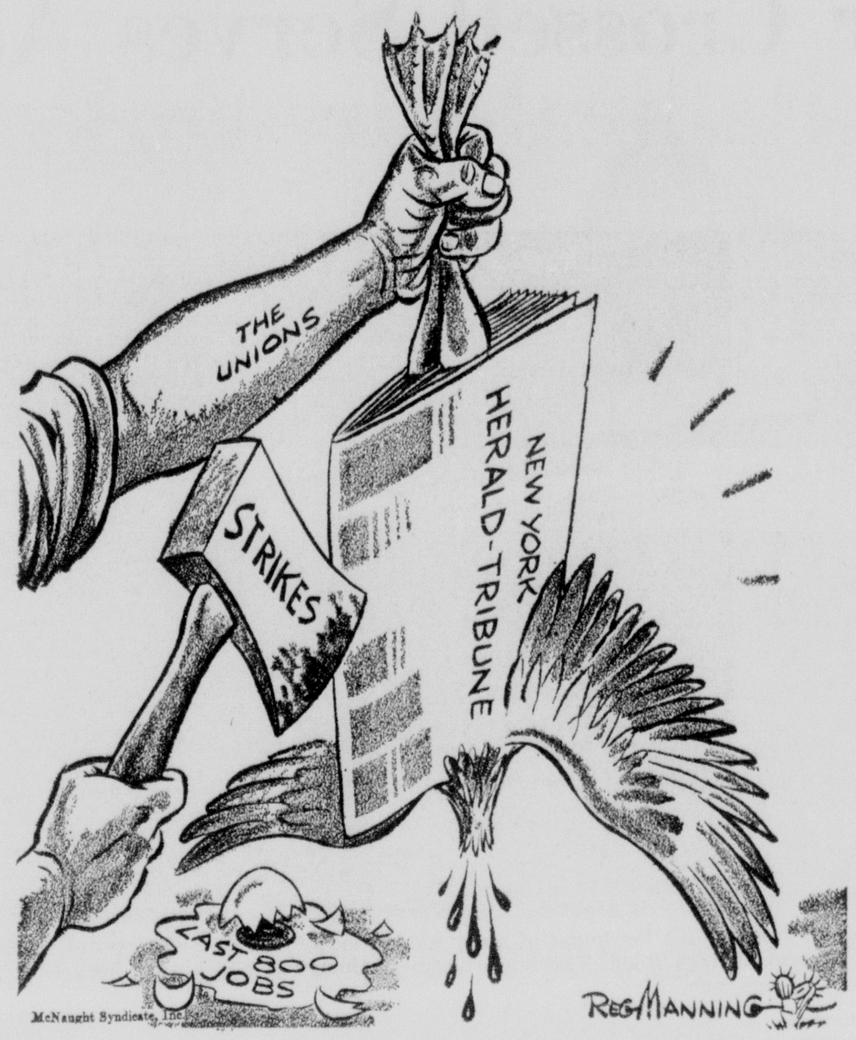

Either the people will elect an anti-federal administration Democrat or a Republican in the general election in November. The way things are going, unless there is a mighty shift to the Republican ranks, the anti - administration Democrat is likely to win.

Jim Johnson, who ran high on a seven-candidate ticket in the first primary, defeated Frank Holt, a former colleague on the Arkansas Supreme Court, with an impressive majority in the runoff.

Johnson will be opposed in the general election in November by Republican Winthrop Rockefeller, brother of Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York.

Johnson, an outspoken segregationist, called on voters to say "no" to Washington's so - called civil rights, welfare and foreign aid policies by electing him.

Constitutional Powers

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

In his letter from Grambling College Richard Pugh said:

I was reading your editorial for Monday, August 8. You said that many of the members of the United States Supreme Court don't read the Federal Constitution.

Sir, will you tell where in the Constitution does it say that segregated schools are what we have to have in America?

1: In the 10th Bill of Rights — The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people.

2: In Article 1, section 1 of the body of the Constitution is — All legislative Powers herein granted shall be vested in a Congress of the United States, which shall consist of a Senate and House of Representatives.

3: In Article 6, clause 2, part 1, in the body of the Constitution — This Constitution, and the laws of the United States which shall be made in Pursuance thereof; and all Treaties made, or which shall be made, under the Authority of the United States, shall be the supreme law of the Land; . . . .

It is a long-established and well - established principle and rule of the United States Supreme Court, the United States Courts of Appeals, and the United States District Courts, that when Congress has no power delegated to it in Article 1, section 8, clauses 1 to 17, in the body of the Constitution, to enact any least bit of a statute for the United States concerning segregated elementary and secondary (grade and high) schools but any State having such a segregated-school statutes on its books is bound to be heard in the federal court and that the court is bound to uphold, find, conclude, decide, decree, and order in the hearing of the segregated - school lawsuit brought to the court from whichever State it is begun and carried on in the district court and may be appealed to the court of appeals and to the supreme court.

The State's segregated - school statutes rule the federal courts in hearing of the lawsuit.

The United States courts know it — but defy it, deny it, cut it down.

Supreme Court Cases

Eads, Tennessee

To the Editor:

The ultra liberal socialist minded majority on the U.S. Supreme Court is a disgrace and a danger to our form of Government.

In the ten years before Warren's appointment, the Court decided 37 cases involving communism and subversion. The Government was upheld in 23 cases. In a three year period under Warren's leadership the Court has in 62 cases upheld the communist position 51 times, the anti-communist position only 11 times. Warren has supported the communists in 62 cases, without deviation. Many of these were narrow 5 to 4 decisions.

The recent decision handcuffing law enforcement officers and giving the individual (criminal) a bit more edge against society is the latest assault against orderly government.

During the Senate hearings on his nomination to the Supreme Court, Abe Fortas stated for the record: "I believe that an adequate opportunity in the hands of the police to interrogate persons who are accused of crime or suspected . . . is absolutely essential to law enforcement."

Fortas was one of the Supreme Court justices who voted against the police in favor of criminals on this very point. If he was telling the truth to the Senate, what changed his mind; or did he receive new instructions??

On Reserve Forces

West Monroe, La.

(The following letter was addressed to Sen. Richard B. Russell, chairman of the Armed Services Committee and all committee members and a copy sent to this newspaper for publication.)

Dear Senator Russell
& All Committee Members:

I read in the Monroe Morning World newspaper, Monroe, Louisiana, dated August 13, 1966, where you and the other members of the Appropriations committee quote, "Insists that immediate consideration be given to utilizing Reserve forces", in that they be called to active duty for the war in Viet Nam. May I respectfully ask, "What War?" I recall of no war being declared by the Congress of the U.S.A. Then, next it is stated, quote, "It would be in the national interest to utilize a reasonable portion of the Reserve forces of all services", in fulfilling the U.S. commitment in Viet Nam. The paperback contains Lawrence's famous essay on pornography and obscenity. I sat here on the porch, underlining and applauding, and wishing Senator Karl Mundt and Congressman Dominick Daniels were sitting on the steps to hear it read aloud. They need a vacation, too.

I have been reading some fiction: Rex Stout's new Nero Wolfe, which is first-rate; and some Dell reprints of Dashiel Hammet, which stand up excellently; and Bill Woolfolk's new novel from Doubleday, "Opinion of the Court." It is the story of a fictitious Supreme Court justice, Paul Lincoln Lowe, who seems to have been patterned somewhat along the lines of that ever-lovin', mountain - climbing reviser of the Constitution, Mr. Justice Douglas. Lowe is the Liberals' Liberal; he is Warren, Black, Brennan, and Douglas, wrapped into one; he is full of sex and bad jurisprudence, an altogether plausible fellow. I found Woolfolk's novel an exasperating book, but hard to put down. It is the best novel of life in Washington since "Advise and Consent," but no conservative should approach it without a pitcher of cold beer for cooling his temper.

Two feet of books remain in the box by the rocker. Next week, alas, it is back to the speeches of Orville Freeman and the wisdom of Senator Morse.

Viet War Described As Kennedy's Brew

DALLAS, TEX. — With the November elections looming, this writer's 70-days-in-advance sampling of political sentiment around our country shows a pattern as plain as the nose on your face.

A whole series of corny old political formulas have run the Great Society politicians up a blind alley. That's the crux of President Johnson's problem. Yet these are the same corny old formulas on which they're depending to beat the backlash.

The result is that "more of the same thing" is going over like a cast-iron balloon.

Average folks everywhere are just itching, and ready, to kick somebody in the pants — and they don't care much who.

It's not enough to say that the Viet Nam War is the political villain, although President Johnson and his Great Society cohorts very humanly gravitate toward that oversimplification. These officials see the Viet Nam commitment as an agony they inherited.

ON THE DAY President Kennedy was inaugurated only 750 American military men were in South Viet Nam and all were serving only as advisers. On the record, Mr. Kennedy made the war commitment when he sent the first 12,000 troops to Viet Nam to relieve his embarrassment with Khrushchev at Vienna after the Bay of Pigs. As summarized recently by former German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer to New York Times correspondent C. L. Sulzberger: "Johnson didn't start that mess. He inherited it from President Kennedy. Johnson has had to eat the stew that Kennedy cooked."

But the White House obsession with the feeling of no guilt about Viet Nam seems to create its own blind spot regarding policy failures on the home front and the public's revised mood about "more of the same thing" in the Great Society.

Everywhere I've been many of the programs seem to carry the stink of betrayal. Local scandals in the war on proverty are close to home. Millions, seeing these, are asking: Is the poverty war a war or a racket? And as the President continues to propose more and more handouts he sounds to millions on TV as if he were singing a hymn to the crowd at a dog track.

THE STEEP increase in food prices has suddenly become an issue. Resentments against the increased costs of living have been brewing for a long time, and this has ignited the whole bundle with a bang.

The increased withholding taxes that knock down the take-home pay are bringing powerful disillusionments. It's become apparent that the Great Society's highly touted Medicare, for example, is creating more problems than it will solve, and now the costs show up — unexpectedly.

New consumer taxes likewise play their part, no matter who levies them. Oil in Texas is like water in the ocean. Yet Texas has raised its gasoline tax to 11 cents, among the highest in the whole country.

The untimely effect of playing footsie with the airlines strike, which this writer described from San Francisco, adds to the smoldering resentments against Washington's coddling of the labor leaders no matter what happens to the public. Citizens resent the idea that any group whatever has our officials in their pocket.

Sunday Thought

Thank God for life; life is not sweet always.
Hands may be heavy laden, heart careFull;
Unwelcome nights follow unwelcome days,
And dreams divine end in awakening dull;
Still it is life; and life is cause for praise,
This ache, this restlessness, this quickening sting,
Proved me no torpid and inanimate thing-
Prove me of Him who is the life, the spring,
I am alive — and that is beautiful.

About The Press

After 20 years in the business, newspapermen should become hardened to criticism. But still things occasionally happen that still hits a sensitive spot, and that is particularly so when some elected officials take the attitude what they do does not concern the public.

In this connection, it is interesting to note two items that appeared in the Arkansas Gazette and the Jackson Clarion-Ledger. Both are printed below.

Criticizing The Press

(From the Gazette)

If American newspapers do not criticize themselves often enough or thoroughly enough (and the self-righteousness quotient can run fairly high at editors' and publishers' meetings), it may be at least partly because there are so many other people willing and eager to do it for them.

WITH THE possible exception of restauranteurs—and, of course, politicians — nobody is second-guessed more easily than a newspaper editor. People who will even yield to the professional expertise of a baseball umpire are convinced in their own hearts that they know how to run (1) a restaurant (2) a newspaper and (3) a government better than the people who are actually caught up in those precarious callings.

Newspaper people and politicians are no more prone to second-guess a restaurant operation than anybody else, but between each other they tend to be natural enemies.

Politicians fall into two broad groups in their attitude toward newspapers: There are those who, underneath, do not really care what you say about them so long as you spell their name correctly, Bruce Bennitt being a handy local example. There are others, ranging from Orval Faubus to Bill Fulbright, who bring varying degrees of honest indignation to their occasional critiques of the newsgathering and editing functions.

The lay critic of the newspaper profession, when asked what he would do differently, frequently will reply that he would publish more "good" news, or even that he would publish nothing but good news.

THIS sweet-tempered view of the world may be understandable in the lay critic of newspapers and of "communications" media generally, but it is less understandable in the politician, who, if he has been successful at all, did not get where he did without some awareness of what is and is not news.

This is especially true of politicians with some background in communications media, such as Senator Fulbright, Governor Faubus, and, yes, President Lyndon B. Johnson. Mr. Johnson, in his Memorial Day address at Arlington National Cemetery, complained aloud that the flaming Buddhist suicides were "obscuring" the progress being made toward a political settlement in South Viet Nam. It was a curious choice of verbs, considering the amount of light as well as heat that is generated by this ultimate form of political protest. A couple of days later, the President went a step further and accused the press generally of playing up the suicides at the expense of the quiet progress he said was being made daily toward a negotiated settlement of the Vietnamese elections controversy.

If there is one thing that is hard to ignore it is someone who sets fire to himself in the street, and we cannot help but believe that Lyndon Johnson is aware of this.

News, Dads, is an election contest in Jim Wells County, and not the situation in all the other counties in which a contest was not made in the 1948 Texas senatorial primary.

AN election without violence or charges of irregularities can be news in a place like the Dominican Republic -- as we have just been reminded -- but an election without untoward incident is not yet regarded as news in this country.

This would all seem pretty elementary going, but is it elementary enough?

Another View

(This article was written by Tom Normand of the Jackson Daily News staff and published in the Clarion-Ledger).

CRITICISM of the press is becoming so intense nowadays, that a reporter periodically stops to wonder whether maybe the fourth estate has failed somewhere along the way.

The press was castigated the other day in an encounter I had with an indignant businessman. Of course, I had heard such opinions before, but this one reminded me that it was about time for that periodic reappraisal.

'HE CLAIMED that the integration crisis would be nil were it not for undue publicity in the press. Publicity is what perpetuates such movements; if the press ignored them, he said, they would desist, and peace and harmoney would prevail once more.

Such a premise is probably correct—although examples have been cited in which news suppression has encouraged disorder. It is no secret that civil rights activities thrive on publicity.

First of all, the press exists to report the news. If a news story prompts a chain of events, such is not the fault of the story but the fault of the news subjects who capitalize on it. The story is printed because it is what the readers desire; if there were no reader interest, it would not be printed.

LET US consider the businessman's exhortation. Newsmen could ignore civil rights news. They could go about their duties as if Rev. Martin Luther King and Robert Shelton were non-existent. The public would certainly gain immediate benefits: there would be fewer public demonstrations.

But this would establish a dangerous precedent, that of manipulating the news. If the press conveniently ignored a major social movement because of its damaging consequences, what would keep it from ignoring other types of major events to suit its fancy? Then the readers who dislike writers of civil rights news would have much more reason to dislike newsmen.

THIS is not to say that all news media give impartial news coverage. Many are guilty of partiality, and they deserve to be taken to task for it. Has it ever been pointed out, though, that other occupations also have faults? The medical profession has its quacks, some insurance companies have their tricks and some unions have their selfishness, to name a few.

No, the press is not perfect, but its existence would be of short duration if it chose to manipulate the news; such a decision would herald the decay of the news media and everything it has stood for through the ages.

THE FOURTH estate is one of the best institutions in existence. To its perennial critics, it should be pointed out that there could be no democracy without journalism, because journalism is a necessary deterrent to tyranny and the many other evils that gnaw on men's liberties. It is no coincidence that one of the first moves of a new dictator is nationalization of the news media.

The World's Week In Focus

Legal, Radical Fireworks Enliven Hearings

By Oland Silk

THERE WERE GAY old times around the House Un-American Activities Committee last week. Suspense, drama, comedy, violence — the hearings had everything, including beards and mustaches reminiscent of the days of Wyatt Earp and the Clantons.

There was not any gunfight-at-the-OK-corral showdown, but there was a confrontation about law and order and constitutional authority.

SOME 40 persons were hauled out of the hearings and charged with disorderly conduct.

Here is what it was all about:

The House Un-American Activities Committee (HUAC) called 13 witnesses from anti - war groups. Acting HUAC chairmen was Rep. Joe Pool of Texas who wants Congress to slap a $20,000 fine and up to 20-year prison term on anyone who gives aid to North Viet Vam or the Viet Cong. Witnesses were from such groups as the Progressive Labor Party and the May 2nd Movement, far-left activists aggressively opposed to the Viet Nam War. They were questioned — those that got to testify — about sending medicines to Hanoi, blocking troop trains, and helping the enemy in general.

THE HEARINGS were punctuated with shouts:

"Get out of Viet Nam."

"End this hearing."

"Stop this fink testimony."

Needless to say, those disrupting the proceedings were bodily removed and booked.

BUT THERE was more to the hearings than just a shouting match between young radicals and Congressmen. The American Civil Liberties Union filed a suit challenging the constitutional authority of the House committee. What's more, a federal judge issued an order to block the hearing. Then, a special three-judge panel countermanded the order. This averted a major constitutional collision, because it was a basic showdown between the authority of the legislative and judicial branches of government.

"REST ASSURED," said ACLU attorney Author Kinoy, "we will move ahead with our . . . attack on the constitutionality of the House Un-American Activities Committee."

Kinoy based his suit on the right of dissent, to wit: witnesses "have all been identified with diverse views antagonistic to the present administration's military policies.

"Their being called suggests an overall plan to discredit the peace movement and foreign policy dissent."

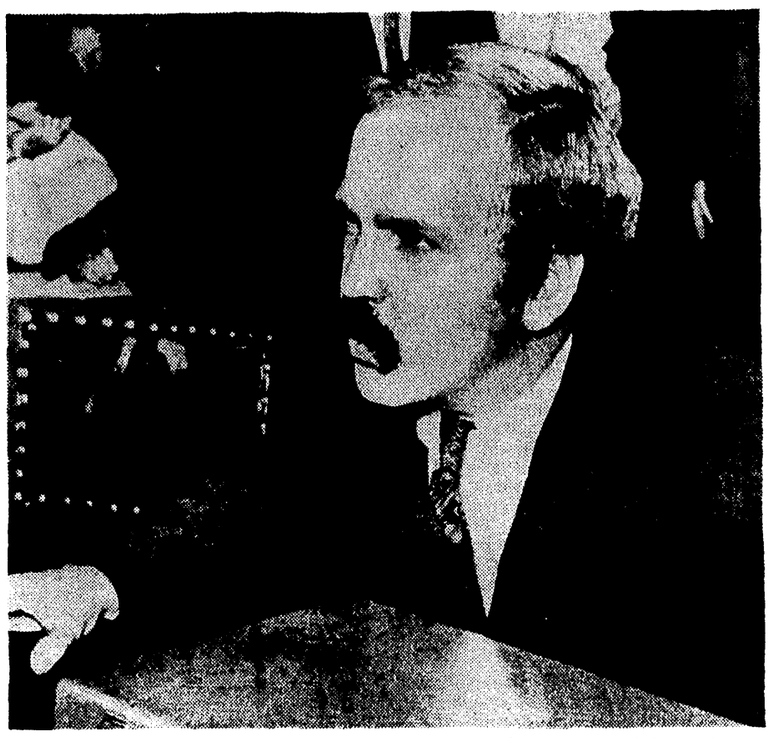

However, Joe Pool said this:

"THESE hearings are concerned largely with overt acts, not mere expressions of opinion. Sending aid or attempting to send aid, to an enemy of the United States is an overt act; it is not mere dissent." He added that organized propagandizing on behalf of North Viet Nam was not dissent, nor was impairing the morale, discipline and recruiting of military personnel mere dissent.

THINGS GOT livelier when attorney Kinoy, arms pinned by a policeman, was ejected from the hearing when he refused to sit down as ordered by Chairman Pool. Then seven other lawyers walked out, leaving their clients counselless.

The hearings went on, however, with witnesses from the Viet Nam Day Committee, and Medical Aid Committee for Viet Nam. They are California-based groups.

Meanwhile, in the wings the constitutional question remained unresolved. It was just another jab in a long battle against the controversial committee that was created in 1938.

No, this isn't a descendant of Wyatt Earp. He is Philip Luce, a defector from the far left Progressive Labor party, who testified before the House Un-American Activities Committee last week. Luce said he wanted to warn all young people about the pitfalls of Communism. Old friends yelled "fink" as he tried to testify. They were thrown out of the hearing room, as were many others.

Shooting In Florida

MARTIN LUTHER King scattered small task forces through white neighborhoods in Chicago. It was a daring new tactic, carried out at night. Clashes between Negroes, whites, and policemen were common. The marchers were greeted by curses, rocks, and firecrackers. A tragedy was averted when police rescued a Negro child and her mother from a car under attack by whites. Over 20 persons were arrested, 16 persons injured.

KING MET with Chicago Mayor Daley to discuss open housing, which is what Negroes are marching about. King was not happy with Daley's concessions, and refused to suspend demonstrations. The King-Daley conference — which included many black and white leaders — was sponsored by the Chicago Conference on Religion and Race.

By Friday, King was primed to defy a city injunction if one was ordered to halt the white neighborhood marches. He said he was ready to go to jail and stay there.

Complicating things for police in the streets were members of the American Nazi Party, who brandished swastikas and fanned white reaction. Police Chief O. W Wilson had his hands full. There was nearly one policeman for every marcher. Little wonder crime jumped 25 per cent in other parts of the city.

IN ATLANTA, twenty persons identified as young militants of the Student Non - Violent Coordinating Committee, (Snick) were arrested when they stormed an induction center. They shouted Black Power slogans and anti-war sentiments. Several policemen were shaken up in the brief, vicious encounter.

IN FORT Lauderdale, a sniper shot a policeman in the arm during violence in that city and Pompano Beach nearby. More shots from the Negro sections landed near policemen on patrol.

From Alabama came a new, powerful challenge by Gov. George Wallace against the federal government. Wallace, one of the south's best known symbols of segregation, asked the legislature to forbid schools to comply with federal desegregation guidelines. If the bill passes, federal funds lost to school boards would be reimbursed by the state.

WALLACE, in effect, told the federal government, "keep your money and you know what you can do with it." The legislature will begin hearings on the bill Tuesday. There have been reports that Wallace may call in state troopers to bar Negro teachers who may be assigned to white schools. In Edwards, Miss., a Negro boycott virtually killed business. Boycott leaders urged Negro employes to quit white merchants. Most did. They have presented the town fathers with an 18-point list of demands. Neither side budged, and the town of 1500 faced economic collapse.

Old H-T Folds

THE NEW York Herald-Tribune, heir to the journalistic legacy of Horace Greeley and James Gorden Bennet, died, a victim of labor and competition difficulties. The end was announced by the World Journal Tribune, Inc., the new publishing firm incorporating the Herald-Tribune, World-Telegram and Sun, and the Journal-American. The firm still plans an afternoon and Sunday paper, but no morning edition. Since the merger 115 days ago, none of the planned papers have been published due to strikes by 10 labor unions. All had come to terms except one.

THOSE 35,000 striking airline machinists were asked to please accept a settlement which AFL-CIO chief George Meany termed "wonderful." If approved, it would end a 42-day walkout against 4 airlines. The new contract calls for a $92 million package, $18 million more than the July 29 White House agreement rejected by the members. Meany, machinist boss Siemuller and the airlines kept collective fingers crossed. The way the machinists figured it, the increases were still far below what garbage truck mechanics get in major cities. Voting began Friday.

Meanwhile, there were ominous stirrings in another part of the forest.

COMMERCIAL banks in several cities increased their prime lending rates for the fourth time this year, this time to 6 per cent. The hike went counter to government wishes. Treasury Boss Henry Fowler had urged them not to do so contending, "there is a better way to limit credit than by simply raising its price." He recommended saying no to borrowers on criteria other than that on who is willing to pay the highest rate.

A spot check Friday showed these widely held opinions: borrowing plans of consumers will be slowed; the marginal investor, or the borrower whose credit rating is poor, will be squeezed out of the market; industrial expansion plans will decline, and sales of products dependent upon financing — homes and automobiles, for example — might be hurt.

Whirlwind Tour

RESERVES OF another kind occupied the Senate's attention. It voted to give President Johnson a record "peacetime" budget of $58 billion to operate the defense department, and tacked on a rider that gave the President stand-by authority to call up individual members of the organized Reserves for service in Viet Nam. Under existing law the President cannot call Reserves unless a state of national emergency is called. Johnson did not ask for the authority, but he got it anyway.

The Senate also adopted an amendment barring use of any of the voted funds for purchase of F111B aircraft being developed by the Navy. The move signaled another battle over the TFX all-purpose warplane, McNamara's brainchild.

In other domestic highlights:

JOHNSON embarked on a nonpolitical tour of the Northeastern states, a tour about as nonpolitical as a smoke-filled room.

He talked water pollution in Buffalo, New York. He beamed his message of pure water and productive industry not only at Buffalo but the Lake Erie cities.

Several congressmen in the area hoped the President's visit would mean votes for them in November. He will make eight formal speeches, the last one being in Canada where he scheduled talks with Prime Minister Pearson.

THREE Air Force planes began an assault on the elusive, deadly culex mosquito in Dallas, where the insect had spread encephalitis to epidemic proportions. The planes carried $40,000 worth of insecticide, which they dropped over the county, home of a million persons. Three persons have died from encephalitis in Dallas, and 65 other cases confirmed. The symptoms include headaches, extreme lethargy, and twitching of muscles. There is no known cure.

A GOVERNMENT report charged that American public schools are widening the educational gap between Negroes and white people. It challenged the entire concept of neighborhood schools, but contended busing children to other sections would not itself solve the dilemma of educational equality. The report said minority children started to school disadvantaged and left the same way. Major innovations, including educational parks, and public boarding schools, were recommended.

PERSONAL income, believe it or not, climbed to another record in July. Amount: $579.7 billion.

AUTO SAFETY bills neared Congressional passage. Funds were okayed to help finance state highway - driver programs for three years; new safety features were approved for the 1968 models.

Moon Pictures

THE LUNAR Orbiter malfunctioned and sent back poor quality pictures of the moon in the first series. Later, on the third transmission, the prints showed huge craters and high ridges in sharp detail. One showed what looked like a huge paw print, the pad of the foot and three toes. Goal of the project: to find a suitable landing spot for Apollo astronauts

Foreign Affairs --

DEFENSE Minister Lin Piao emerged as No. 2 man in Red China. Lin led the Chinese army "volunteers" who fought in Korea. He was also with Mao on the "long march" in 1934, an old hand at Maoist thinking.

A RECORD roundup of North Vietnamese troops was announced in Saigon. There was more talk of combat weariness and short supplies by the enemy.

AUSSIE troops scored their biggest victory of the war, killing 193 Viet Cong in a four-hour engagement in a monsoon downpour.

In the air war over the North, American fliers bagged their 18 MIG. U. S. plane losses continued to be heavy, however.

Gen. Westmoreland met with Johnson last Sunday. Both said the Communists cannot possibly win. There have been hints a major break could come within the next six months. The official line however is still — a long, hard struggle.

SCOTLAND Yard caught two murder suspects. A third was sought by 500 armed policemen, commando - trained sharpshooters, and bloodhounds. The elusive suspect was Harry Maurice Roberts. The three are charged with shooting three plainclothesmen to death.

The Week's Twin Cities-Area News In Review

By VERNON GUIDRY
World Staff Writer

Months of hand shaking, bill boards and campaign speeches zeroed in on a point in time Saturday, Aug. 13, and by 8 p.m., the first Democratic primary was all over but the counting. The elections and their aftermath, plus the derailing of the Fifth District sales tax bythe Ouachita Parish School Board topped off the news week.

John S. Hunt, with the edge of the incumbent and the backing of Gov. John J. McKeithen, lead the Public Service Commissioner's race with more than twice the votes of his nearest opponent, but was forced into a runoff with state Rep. John Garrett.

Pundits tied the chances of McKeithen's two-term proposal to the outcome of the commissioner's race and saw encouragement in Hunt's plurality. Both Jimmie Davis and McKeithen served in the post before moving into the governor's mansion.

Deputy Ouachita Parish Assessor Odis Russell easily won in the race for the top job in his office but found himself fired by his opponent, Assessor Mrs. Mary Burt Coverdale, the Monday after the election. News of the action dominated front pages and brought comment from a list of persons that read like who's who in Ouachita politics. One meeting on the topic at West Monroe Mayor W. B. (Bert) Hatten's office included Sheriff Bailey Grant, police jury president T. W. Humphries and Monroe Mayor W. L. Howard.

Mrs. Coverdale, appointed to the office after the death of her husband and longtime assessor Bert Coverdale, rehired Russell at mid-week, as well as 16-year veteran of the assessor's office Miss Daisey Swayze, who was fired along with Russell. At the same time, the man appointed to fill Russell's job, local antique dealer and Mrs. Coverdale's campaign manager James G. Balluff, resigned the position.

Russell polled 14,227 to Mrs. Coverdale's 5,783 votes. V. A. (Bill) Randall, the third man in the race, got 2,009 votes.

SALES TAX

The Ouachita Parish School Board agreed to take no action on the Fifth District sales tax, thus pulling the parish — with over half the projected revenue — out of the deal.

The legislation authorizing the 14 school boards — the Monroe School Board was left out of the governing authority — to seek the tax requires that the election must be called by the school board of a parish before it can be held in that parish.

Primary objections of both parish and city school boards was the money split. In all parishes except Ouachita, the surplus over that needed to implement teacher salary schedules adopted by the State Legislature in 1964 is divided one third to the parish police jury, one third to municipalities in the parish and one third to the school board.

In Ouachita, the surplus is divided among the parish and municipalities, with none to the school boards. The education bodies seek a "more equitable" split. At week's end, conversation centered on a possible compromise that could be made law at a November special session of the legislature.

Fifth District Rep. Otto Passman swamped his opponent to win his sixth trip to Washington. Passman polled 53,089 votes to 8,230 for Louis LaDart.

W. L. Crowe won a first primary victory for Monroe city judge. Crowe got 7,058 votes, George Fink, 2,092; Hewitt B. Johnson, 3,490; and Billye L. Adams, 446. Crowe was appointed acting city judge some six months ago by Judge W. M. Harper when the latter was hit by illness.

Sen. Allen J. Ellender won his sixth term easily over opponents Troyce Guice of Ferriday and State Sen. J. B. De-

Robert Kennedy polled 4,730 votes but faces a runoff for a seat on the Monroe City School Board against David Kahn who picked up 2,142. Joe Kilcoyne ran a close third with 1,653 votes in the crowded race. Austin Miller polled 1,243; George Burroughs, 905; and Peter J. Dowd, 626.

Ouachita Parish School Board President B. A. Tarver will face a Negro opponent, Leon T. Shamblin in a runoff election for a Ward 3 seat. Tarver, seeking his third term, got 1,924 votes; Shamblin, 1,761.

Roy C. Brooks, 2,491 votes; and J. D. Purvis, 1,314 votes, will compete again in a runoff election for a full six-year term on the parish board from Ward 5. Morris C. Griggs, the third man in the race, got 1,258 votes.

Two seats on the parish board from Ward 10 went to H. W. Tolson, 4,534 votes; and William G. Kelley, 3,664 votes. Carl H. Thompson got 3,030 votes in the race. Incumbents J. H. Trousdale and George Rorex did not seek reelection.

For a Ward 9 board seat, incumbent Dwight Owens,127 votes, beat Hickman L. Bamburg, 96; and M. H. Head, 12.

In a special election for an unexpired two-year term on the parish board from Ward 5, Chester Holloway, 2,143: faces a runoff with Joe B. Zuber, 2,134. Jerry Lee Ford came in third with 1,815.

J. A. Rutledge was unopposed in Ward 8

POLL WATCHERS

Some 150 federal poll watchers were placed in Louisiana by the Justice Department, and Ouachita Parish with 5,345 federally listed voters had its share. The poll watchers' duty was to guard against any tampering with federal lists or intimidation at the polls. Illiterates were required to swear that they couldn't read before asking for assistance in voting.

The second Democratic primary is Sept. 24 with the general election to follow Nov. 8.

The West Monroe Board of Aldermen dumped a contract with a union of city employes at a special meeting Monday. The board exercised an option in the contract with Local No. 140, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes and cancelled it. The pact involved about 60 city employes. A spokesman for the local said that "about 90 per cent" of the union's members voted to keep the organization despite the loss of the collective bargaining contract. Members of the union said they hoped to regain a contract.

The Louisiana Department of Health tossed the investigation of complaints of odor and home discoloration to the Ouachita Parish Health Unit. A study by the state department was inconclusive.

After some apparent misunderstandings, the Louisiana Department of Highways has agreed to build a bridge across Toney Bayou in West Monroe. The Ouachita Parish Police Jury petitioned the state to replace a bridge that collapsed last spring and got a reply that labor would be supplied. More appeals and different answers finally have the state set to supply both labor and materials.

Another irate teacher with a mimeographed list of qualifications, appeared before the Ouachita Parish School Board in protest. Ellard Brantley, Ransom School teacher-coach, told board members loudly that he was qualified for the post of supervisor for special services and guidance. The board, on the recommendation of its administrative personnel committee and Superintendent Milton Hall, hired Mrs. Marteal Webb for the post.

Two teenaged Negro girls were killed when the car in which they were riding crashed into a railroad trestle on La. Hwy. 546 near Cheniere Lake. They were Barbara Ann Latham, 16, and Sharon Latham, both of Chatham. The Louisiana Department of Highways is studying the trestle as a safetly hazard.

Acting as fire commissioners, the Ouachita Parish Police Jury accepted a bid of $141,200 for constructions of four fire stations. The bid, offered by Aubrey Walker Construction Co., came in over what some jurors expected and the locations of the stations prompted a crossfire. Stations at Fink's Hideway Road and on the Wallace-Wilson Road are to be completed by Jan. 1, 1967. Completion of stations Tichelie Road and in Bawcomville will be finished by August, 1967. Juror Bernie Van questioned the building of the first two stations in areas that he said voted against the fire protection, while making those areas that endorsed the proposal wait for protection.

In another move, Hatten said West Monroe would start a crackdown on payment of occupational taxes by business in West Monroe. He said a list of state occupational taxpayers in West Monroe has been requested to be matched with city lists. While not estimating how many businesses were involved, Hatten predicted that new names would be added to the city list after comparison.

Why Not Invade?

The statements of Prime Minister Ky of Souh Viet Nam about the strategic essentiality of carrying the war to North Viet Nam are the plain, unvarnished truth. They compliment his intelligence, his knowledge, and his courage.

THE rejection of these statements by our State Department and the American press underscores the continuing error of U.S. policy. The Administration refuses to face reality — and that is why it is bogged down in a steadily widening war.

Can South Viet Nam end this war without invading North Viet Nam? The answer is a flat NO! The United States can devastate North Viet Nam from the air, but Madrid, London, and Hamburg, testify that bombing is not decisive against a determined enemy. Prime Minister Ky, an airman, knows this. "For the final victory to end the war, you need ground troops," he said.

Bombing will punish North Viet Nam. It will destroy facilities and handicap industrial processes, but it will not stop the war. Ho Chi Minh can fight effectively from the rubble as Britain did, as long as his territory is not invaded.

IT IS the invasion of his territory, the destruction of his armed forces, the rebellion of his people, that haunts the dreams of Ho Chi Minh. Would his people welcome the invaders as the Soviet people welcomed the German invaders in 1941? Would his army desert his cause and join the liberation movement for a Viet Nam united in freedom?

Ho Chi Minh has weighed these questions carefully and he fears the answers. But he does not fear the U.S. bombing as long as the United States protects him from invasion from the South.

Some American newsmen have misrepresented Prime Minister Ky's statements as a call for war with Red China. The prime minister merely stated the obvious truth that the risk of confrontation with Red China is better faced now than later. It was these newsmen who jumped to the conclusion that invasion of North Viet Nam would bring Red China into the war.

THE CRUX of the matter is that invasion of North Viet Nam will not bring Red China into the war unless President Johnson allows Red China itself sanctuary as President Truman did in Korea. If President Johnson makes it clear that Red Chinese intervention against an invasion of North Viet Nam will provoke U.S. air warfare and other measures against the China mainland, Peking will not intervene in Viet Nam.

Come, let us reason together. When our Free World ally is assaulted by a Communist neighbor, should it fight the ensuing war on its own soil or should it carry the devastation of war back to the territory of the aggressor? Every schoolboy knows the answer to that question. Our tragedy is that President Johnson still refuses to give the correct answer.

UNDER the turbulent surface of South Viet Nam politics, power has rested in the Armed Forces Council ever since the overthrow of the Minh Junta in January, 1964. The council has had only two spokesmen, first General Nguyen Khanh and now Air Marshall Nguyen Cao Ky. Both leaders have called for invasion of the North. The requirements of war which may be obscure to distant Americans are obvious to men defending their country.

Somehow Prime Minister Ky must overcome this fundamental error of U.S. strategy if the long war which his people have suffered is to be ended.

Sunday Thought

Thank God for life; life is not sweet always.
Hands may be heavy laden, heart carefull;
Unwelcome nights follow unwelcome days,
And dreams divine end in awakening dull;
Still it is life; and life is cause for praise,
This ache, this restlessness, this quickening sting,
Proved me no torpid and inanimate thing-
Prove me of Him who is the life, the spring,
I am alive — and that is beautiful.

About The Press

After 20 years in the business, newspapermen should become hardened to criticism. But still things occasionally happen that still hits a sensitive spot, and that is particularly so when some elected officials take the attitude what they do does not concern the public.

In this connection, it is interesting to note two items that appeared in the Arkansas Gazette and the Jackson Clarion-Ledger. Both are printed below.

Criticizing The Press

(From the Gazette)

If American newspapers do not criticize themselves often enough or thoroughly enough (and the self-righteousness quotient can run fairly high at editors' and publishers' meetings), it may be at least partly because there are so many other people willing and eager to do it for them.

WITH THE possible exception of restauranteurs—and, of course, politicians — nobody is second-guessed more easily than a newspaper editor. People who will even yield to the professional expertise of a baseball umpire are convinced in their own hearts that they know how to run (1) a restaurant (2) a newspaper and (3) a government better than the people who are actually caught up in those precarious callings.

Newspaper people and politicians are no more prone to second-guess a restaurant operation than anybody else, but between each other they tend to be natural enemies.

Politicians fall into two broad groups in their attitude toward newspapers: There are those who, underneath, do not really care what you say about them so long as you spell their name correctly, Bruce Bennitt being a handy local example. There are others, ranging from Orval Faubus to Bill Fulbright, who bring varying degrees of honest indignation to their occasional critiques of the newsgathering and editing functions.

The lay critic of the newspaper profession, when asked what he would do differently, frequently will reply that he would publish more "good" news, or even that he would publish nothing but good news.

A THIS sweet-tempered view of the world may be understandable in the lay critic of newspapers and of "communications" media generally, but it is less understandable in the politician, who, if he has been successful at all, did not get where he did without some awareness of what is and is not news.

This is especially true of politicians with some background in communications media, such as Senator Fulbright, Governor Faubus, and, yes, President Lyndon B. Johnson. Mr. Johnson, in his Memorial Day address at Arlington National Cemetery, complained aloud that the flaming Buddhist suicides were "obscuring" the progress being made toward a political settlement in South Viet Nam. It was a curious choice of verbs, considering the amount of light as well as heat that is generated by this ultimate form of political protest. A couple of days later, the President went a step further and accused the press generally of playing up the suicides at the expense of the quiet progress he said was being made daily toward a negotiated settlement of the Vietnamese elections controversy.

If there is one thing that is hard to ignore it is someone who sets fire to himself in the street, and we cannot help but believe that Lyndon Johnson is aware of this.

News, Dads, is an election contest in Jim Wells County, and not the situation in all the other counties in which a contest was not made in the 1948 Texas senatorial primary.

AN election without violence or charges of irregularities can be news in a place like the Dominican Republic — as we have just been reminded — but an election without untoward incident is not yet regarded as news in this country.

This would all seem pretty elementary going, but is it elementary enough?

Another View

(This article was written by Tom Normand of the Jackson Daily News staff and published in the Clarion-Ledger).

CRITICISM of the press is becoming so intense nowadays, that a reporter periodically stops to wonder whether maybe the fourth estate has failed somewhere along the way.

The press was castigated the other day in an encounter I had with an indignant businessman. Of course, I had heard such opinions before, but this one reminded me that it was about time for that periodic reappraisal.

'HE CLAIMED that the integration crisis would be nil were it not for undue publicity in the press. Publicity is what perpetuates such movements; if the press ignored them, he said, they would desist, and peace and harmoney would prevail once more.

Such a premise is probably correct—although examples have been cited in which news suppression has encouraged disorder. It is no secret that civil rights activities thrive on publicity.

First of all, the press exists to report the news. If a news story prompts a chain of events, such is not the fault of the story but the fault of the news subjects who capitalize on it. The story is printed because it is what the readers desire; if there were no reader interest, it would not be printed.

LET US consider the businessman's exhortation. Newsmen could ignore civil rights news. They could go about their duties as if Rev. Martin Luther King and Robert Shelton were non-existent. The public would certainly gain immediate benefits: there would be fewer public demonstrations.

But this would establish a dangerous precedent, that of manipulating the news. If the press conveniently ignored a major social movement because of its damaging consequences, what would keep it from ignoring other types of major events to suit its fancy? Then the readers who dislike writers of civil rights news would have much more reason to dislike newsmen.

THIS is not to say that all news media give impartial news coverage. Many are guilty of partiality, and they deserve to be taken to task for it. Has it ever been pointed out, though, that other occupations also have faults? The medical profession has its quacks, some insurance companies have their tricks and some unions have their selfishness, to name a few.

No, the press is not perfect, but its existence would be of short duration if it chose to manipulate the news; such a decision would herald the decay of the news media and everything it has stood for through the ages.

THE FOURTH estate is one of the best institutions in existence. To its perennial critics, it should be pointed out that there could be no democracy without journalism, because journalism is a necessary deterrent to tyranny and the many other evils that gnaw on men's liberties. It is no coincidence that one of the first moves of a new dictator is nationalization of the news media.

Why Not Invade?

The statements of Prime Minister Ky of Souh Viet Nam about the strategic essentiality of carrying the war to North Viet Nam are the plain, unvarnished truth. They compliment his intelligence, his knowledge, and his courage.

THE rejection of these statements by our State Department and the American press underscores the continuing error of U.S. policy. The Administration refuses to face reality — and that is why it is bogged down in a steadily widening war.

Can South Viet Nam end this war without invading North Viet Nam? The answer is a flat NO! The United States can devastate North Viet Nam from the air, but Madrid, London, and Hamburg, testify that bombing is not decisive against a determined enemy. Prime Minister Ky, an airman, knows this. "For the final victory to end the war, you need ground troops," he said.

Bombing will punish North Viet Nam. It will destroy facilities and handicap industrial processes, but it will not stop the war. Ho Chi Minh can fight effectively from the rubble as Britain did, as long as his territory is not invaded.

IT IS the invasion of his territory, the destruction of his armed forces, the rebellion of his people, that haunts the dreams of Ho Chi Minh. Would his people welcome the invaders as the Soviet people welcomed the German invaders in 1941? Would his army desert his cause and join the liberation movement for a Viet Nam united in freedom?

Ho Chi Minh has weighed these questions carefully and he fears the answers. But he does not fear the U.S. bombing as long as the United States protects him from invasion from the South.

Some American newsmen have misrepresented Prime Minister Ky's statements as a call for war with Red China. The prime minister merely stated the obvious truth that the risk of confrontation with Red China is better faced now than later. It was these newsmen who jumped to the conclusion that invasion of North Viet Nam would bring Red China into the war.

THE CRUX of the matter is that invasion of North Viet Nam will not bring Red China into the war unless President Johnson allows Red China itself sanctuary as President Truman did in Korea. If President Johnson makes it clear that Red Chinese intervention against an invasion of North Viet Nam will provoke U.S. air warfare and other measures against the China mainland, Peking will not intervene in Viet Nam.

Come, let us reason together. When our Free World ally is assaulted by a Communist neighbor, should it fight the ensuing war on its own soil or should it carry the devastation of war back to the territory of the aggressor? Every schoolboy knows the answer to that question. Our tragedy is that President Johnson still refuses to give the correct answer.

UNDER the turbulent surface of South Viet Nam politics, power has rested in the Armed Forces Council ever since the overthrow of the Minh Junta in January, 1964. The council has had only two spokesmen, first General Nguyen Khanh and now Air Marshall Nguyen Cao Ky. Both leaders have called for invasion of the North. The requirements of war which may be obscure to distant Americans are obvious to men defending their country.

Somehow Prime Minister Ky must overcome this fundamental error of U.S. strategy if the long war which his people have suffered is to be ended.

The World's Week In Focus

Legal, Radical Fireworks Enliven Hearings

By Oland Silk

THERE WERE GAY old times around the House Un-American Activities Committee last week. Suspense, drama, comedy, violence — the hearings had everything, including beards and mustaches reminiscent of the days of Wyatt Earp and the Clantons.

There was not any gunfight-at-the-OK-corral showdown, but there was a confrontation about law and order and constitutional authority.

SOME 40 persons were hauled out of the hearings and charged with disorderly conduct.

Here is what it was all about:

The House Un-American Activities Committee (HUAC) called 13 witnesses from anti - war groups. Acting HUAC chairmen was Rep. Joe Pool of Texas who wants Congress to slap a $20,000 fine and up to 20-year prison term on anyone who gives aid to North Viet Vam or the Viet Cong. Witnesses were from such groups as the Progressive Labor Party and the May 2nd Movement, far-left activists aggressively opposed to the Viet Nam War. They were questioned — those that got to testify — about sending medicines to Hanoi, blocking troop trains, and helping the enemy in general.

THE HEARINGS were punctuated with shouts:

"Get out of Viet Nam."

"End this hearing."

"Stop this fink testimony."

Needless to say, those disrupting the proceedings were bodily removed and booked.

BUT THERE was more to the hearings than just a shouting match between young radicals and Congressmen. The American Civil Liberties Union filed a suit challenging the constitutional authority of the House committee. What's more, a federal judge issued an order to block the hearing. Then, a special three-judge panel countermanded the order. This averted a major constitutional collision, because it was a basic showdown between the authority of the legislative and judicial branches of government.

"REST ASSURED," said ACLU attorney Author Kinoy, "we will move ahead with our . . . attack on the constitutionality of the House Un-American Activities Committee."

Kinoy based his suit on the right of dissent, to wit: witnesses "have all been identified with diverse views antagonistic to the present administration's military policies.

"Their being called suggests an overall plan to discredit the peace movement and foreign policy dissent."

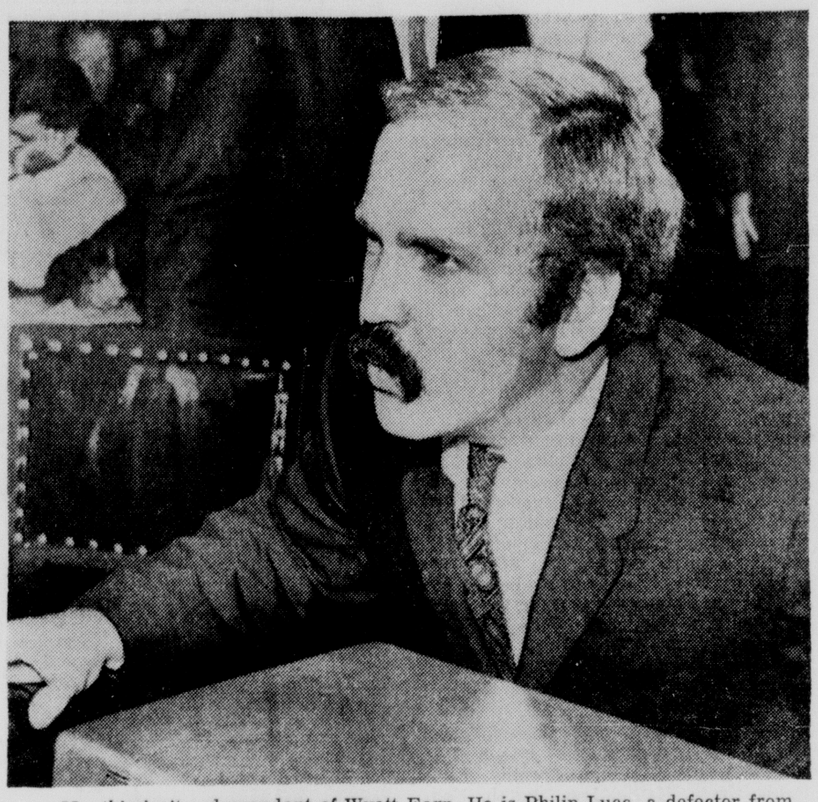

However, Joe Pool said this:

"THESE hearings are concerned largely with overt acts, not mere expressions of opinion. Sending aid or attempting to send aid, to an enemy of the United States is an overt act; it is not mere dissent." He added that organized propagandizing on behalf of North Viet Nam was not dissent, nor was impairing the morale, discipline and recruiting of military personnel mere dissent.

THINGS GOT livelier when attorney Kinoy, arms pinned by a policeman, was ejected from the hearing when he refused to sit down as ordered by Chairman Pool. Then seven other lawyers walked out, leaving their clients counselless.

The hearings went on, however, with witnesses from the Viet Nam Day Committee, and Medical Aid Committee for Viet Nam. They are California-based groups.

Meanwhile, in the wings the constitutional question remained unresolved. It was just another jab in a long battle against the controversial committee that was created in 1938.

No, this isn't a descendant of Wyatt Earp. He is Philip Luce, a defector from the far left Progressive Labor party, who testified before the House Un-American Activities Committee last week. Luce said he wanted to warn all young people about the pitfalls of Communism. Old friends yelled "fink" as he tried to testify. They were thrown out of the hearing room, as were many others.

Shooting In Florida

MARTIN LUTHER King scattered small task forces through white neighborhoods in Chicago. It was a daring new tactic, carried out at night. Clashes between Negroes, whites, and policemen were common. The marchers were greeted by curses, rocks, and firecrackers. A tragedy was averted when police rescued a Negro child and her mother from a car under attack by whites. Over 20 persons were arrested, 16 persons injured.

KING MET with Chicago Mayor Daley to discuss open housing, which is what Negroes are marching about. King was not happy with Daley's concessions, and refused to suspend demonstrations. The King-Daley conference — which included many black and white leaders — was sponsored by the Chicago Conference on Religion and Race.

By Friday, King was primed to defy a city injunction if one was ordered to halt the white neighborhood marches. He said he was ready to go to jail and stay there.

Complicating things for police in the streets were members of the American Nazi Party, who brandished swastikas and fanned white reaction. Police Chief O. W. Wilson had his hands full. There was nearly one policeman for every marcher. Little wonder crime jumped 25 per cent in other parts of the city.

IN ATLANTA, twenty persons identified as young militants of the Student Non - Violent Coordinating Committee, (Snick) were arrested when they stormed an induction center. They shouted Black Power slogans and anti-war sentiments. Several policemen were shaken up in the brief, vicious encounter.

IN FORT Lauderdale, a sniper shot a policeman in the arm during violence in that city and Pompano Beach nearby. More shots from the Negro sections landed near policemen on patrol.

From Alabama came a new, powerful challenge by Gov. George Wallace against the federal government. Wallace, one of the south's best known symbols of segregation, asked the legislature to forbid schools to comply with federal desegregation guidelines. If the bill passes, federal funds lost to school boards would be reimbursed by the state.

WALLACE, in effect, told the federal government, "keep your money and you know what you can do with it." The legislature will begin hearings on the bill Tuesday. There have been reports that Wallace may call in state troopers to bar Negro teachers who may be assigned to white schools. In Edwards, Miss., a Negro boycott virtually killed business. Boycott leaders urged Negro employes to quit white merchants. Most did. They have presented the town fathers with an 18-point list of demands. Neither side budged, and the town of 1500 faced economic collapse.

Old H-T Folds

THE NEW York Herald-Tribune, heir to the journalistic legacy of Horace Greeley and James Gorden Bennet, died, a victim of labor and competition difficulties. The end was announced by the World Journal Tribune, Inc., the new publishing firm incorporating the Herald-Tribune, World-Telegram and Sun, and the Journal-American. The firm still plans an afternoon and Sunday paper, but no morning edition. Since the merger 115 days ago, none of the planned papers have been published due to strikes by 10 labor unions. All had come to terms except one.

THOSE 35,000 striking airline machinists were asked to please accept a settlement which AFL-CIO chief George Meany termed "wonderful." If approved, it would end a 42-day walkout against 4 airlines. The new contract calls for a $92 million package, $18 million more than the July 29 White House agreement rejected by the members. Meany, machinist boss Siemuller and the airlines kept collective fingers crossed. The way the machinists figured it, the increases were still far below what garbage truck mechanics get in major cities. Voting began Friday.

Meanwhile, there were ominous stirrings in another part of the forest.

COMMERCIAL banks in several cities increased their prime lending rates for the fourth time this year, this time to 6 per cent. The hike went counter to government wishes. Treasury Boss Henry Fowler had urged them not to do so contending, "there is a better way to limit credit than by simply raising its price." He recommended saying no to borrowers on criteria other than that on who is willing to pay the highest rate.

A spot check Friday showed these widely held opinions: borrowing plans of consumers will be slowed; the marginal investor, or the borrower whose credit rating is poor, will be squeezed out of the market; industrial expansion plans will decline, and sales of products dependent upon financing — homes and automobiles, for example — might be hurt.

Whirlwind Tour

RESERVES OF another kind occupied the Senate's attention. It voted to give President Johnson a record "peacetime" budget of $58 billion to operate the defense department, and tacked on a rider that gave the President stand-by authority to call up individual members of the organized Reserves for service in Viet Nam. Under existing law the President cannot call Reserves unless a state of national emergency is called. Johnson did not ask for the authority, but he got it anyway.

The Senate also adopted an amendment barring use of any of the voted funds for purchase of F111B aircraft being developed by the Navy. The move signaled another battle over the TFX all-purpose warplane, McNamara's brainchild.

In other domestic highlights:

JOHNSON embarked on a nonpolitical tour of the Northeastern states, a tour about as nonpolitical as a smoke-filled room.

He talked water pollution in Buffalo, New York. He beamed his message of pure water and productive industry not only at Buffalo but the Lake Erie cities.

Several congressmen in the area hoped the President's visit would mean votes for them in November. He will make eight formal speeches, the last one being in Canada where he scheduled talks with Prime Minister Pearson.

THREE Air Force planes began an assault on the elusive, deadly culex mosquito in Dallas, where the insect had spread encephalitis to epidemic proportions. The planes carried $40,000 worth of insecticide, which they dropped over the county, home of a million persons. Three persons have died from encephalitis in Dallas, and 65 other cases confirmed. The symptoms include headaches, extreme lethargy, and twitching of muscles. There is no known cure.

A GOVERNMENT report charged that American public schools are widening the educational gap between Negroes and white people. It challenged the entire concept of neighborhood schools, but contended busing children to other sections would not itself solve the dilemma of educational equality. The report said minority children started to school disadvantaged and left the same way. Major innovations, including educational parks, and public boarding schools, were recommended.

PERSONAL income, believe it or not, climbed to another record in July. Amount: $579.7 billion.

AUTO SAFETY bills neared Congressional passage. Funds were okayed to help finance state highway - driver programs for three years; new safety features were approved for the 1968 models.

Moon Pictures

THE LUNAR Orbiter malfunctioned and sent back poor quality pictures of the moon in the first series. Later, on the third transmission, the prints showed huge craters and high ridges in sharp detail. One showed what looked like a huge paw print, the pad of the foot and three toes. Goal of the project: to find a suitable landing spot for Apollo astronauts.

Foreign Affairs --

DEFENSE Minister Lin Piao emerged as No. 2 man in Red China. Lin led the Chinese army "volunteers" who fought in Korea. He was also with Mao on the "long march" in 1934, an old hand at Maoist thinking.

A RECORD roundup of North Vietnamese troops was announced in Saigon. There was more talk of combat weariness and short supplies by the enemy.

AUSSIE troops scored their biggest victory of the war, killing 193 Viet Cong in a four-hour engagement in a monsoon downpour.

In the air war over the North, American fliers bagged their 18 MIG. U. S. plane losses continued to be heavy, however.

Gen. Westmoreland met with Johnson last Sunday. Both said the Communists cannot possibly win. There have been hints a major break could come within the next six months. The official line however is still — a long, hard struggle.

SCOTLAND Yard caught two murder suspects. A third was sought by 500 armed policemen, commando - trained sharpshooters, and bloodhounds. The elusive suspect was Harry Maurice Roberts. The three are charged with shooting three plainclothesmen to death.

The Week's Twin Cities-Area News In Review

By VERNON GUIDRY
World Staff Writer

Months of hand shaking, bill boards and campaign speeches zeroed in on a point in time Saturday, Aug. 13, and by 8 p.m., the first Democratic primary was all over but the counting. The elections and their aftermath, plus the derailing of the Fifth District sales tax bythe Ouachita Parish School Board topped off the news week.

John S. Hunt, with the edge of the incumbent and the backing of Gov. John J. McKeithen, lead the Public Service Commissioner's race with more than twice the votes of his nearest opponent, but was forced into a runoff with state Rep. John Garrett.

Pundits tied the chances of McKeithen's two-term proposal to the outcome of the commissioner's race and saw encouragement in Hunt's plurality. Both Jimmie Davis and McKeithen served in the post before moving into the governor's mansion.

Deputy Ouachita Parish Assessor Odis Russell easily won in the race for the top job in his office but found himself fired by his opponent, Assessor Mrs. Mary Burt Coverdale, the Monday after the election. News of the action dominated front pages and brought comment from a list of persons that read like who's who in Ouachita politics. One meeting on the topic at West Monroe Mayor W. B. (Bert) Hatten's office included Sheriff Bailey Grant, police jury president T. W. Humphries and Monroe Mayor W. L. Howard.

Mrs. Coverdale, appointed to the office after the death of her husband and longtime assessor Bert Coverdale, rehired Russell at mid-week, as well as 16-year veteran of the assessor's office Miss Daisey Swayze, who was fired along with Russell. At the same time, the man appointed to fill Russell's job, local antique dealer and Mrs. Coverdale's campaign manager James G. Balluff, resigned the position.

Russell polled 14,227 to Mrs. Coverdale's 5,783 votes. V. A. (Bill) Randall, the third man in the race, got 2,009 votes.

SALES TAX

The Ouachita Parish School Board agreed to take no action on the Fifth District sales tax, thus pulling the parish — with over half the projected revenue — out of the deal.

The legislation authorizing the 14 school boards — the Monroe School Board was left out of the governing authority — to seek the tax requires that the election must be called by the school board of a parish before it can be held in that parish.

Primary objections of both parish and city school boards was the money split. In all parishes except Ouachita, the surplus over that needed to implement teacher salary schedules adopted by the State Legislature in 1964 is divided one third to the parish police jury, one third to municipalities in the parish and one third to the school board.

In Ouachita, the surplus is divided among the parish and municipalities, with none to the school boards. The education bodies seek a "more equitable" split. At week's end, conversation centered on a possible compromise that could be made law at a November special session of the legislature.

Fifth District Rep. Otto Passman swamped his opponent to win his sixth trip to Washington. Passman polled 53,089 votes to 8,230 for Louis LaDart.

W. L. Crowe won a first primary victory for Monroe city judge. Crowe got 7,058 votes, George Fink, 2,092; Hewitt B. Johnson, 3,490; and Billye L. Adams, 446. Crowe was appointed acting city judge some six months ago by Judge W. M. Harper when the latter was hit by illness.

Sen. Allen J. Ellender won his sixth term easily over opponents Troyce Guice of Ferriday and State Sen. J. B. De-

Robert Kennedy polled 4,780 votes but faces a runoff for a seat on the Monroe City School Board against David Kahn who picked up 2,142. Joe Kilcoyne ran a close third with 1,653 votes in the crowded race. Austin Miller polled 1,243; George Burroughs, 905; and Peter J. Dowd, 626.

Ouachita Parish School Board President B. A. Tarver will face a Negro opponent, Leon T. Shamblin in a runoff election for a Ward 3 seat. Tarver, seeking his third term, got 1,924 votes; Shamblin, 1,761.

Roy C. Brooks, 2,491 votes; and J. D. Purvis, 1,314 votes, will compete again in a runoff election for a full six-year term on the parish board from Ward 5. Morris C. Griggs, the third man in the race, got 1,258 votes.

Two seats on the parish board from Ward 10 went to H. W. Tolson, 4,534 votes; and William G. Kelley, 3,664 votes. Carl H. Thompson got 3,030 votes in the race. Incumbents J. H. Trousdale and George Rorex did not seek reelection.

For a Ward 9 board seat, incumbent Dwight Owens,127 votes, beat Hickman L. Bamburg, 96; and M. H. Head, 12.

In a special election for an unexpired two-year term on the parish board from Ward 5, Chester Holloway, 2,143; faces a runoff with Joe B. Zuber, 2,134. Jerry Lee Ford came in third with 1,815.

J. A. Rutledge was unopposed in Ward 8.

POLL WATCHERS

Some 150 federal poll watchers were placed in Louisiana by the Justice Department, and Ouachita Parish with 5,345 federally listed voters had its share. The poll watchers' duty was to guard against any tampering with federal lists or intimidation at the polls. Illiterates were required to swear that they couldn't read before asking for assistance in voting.

The second Democratic primary is Sept. 24 with the general election to follow Nov. 8.

The West Monroe Board of Aldermen dumped a contract with a union of city employes at a special meeting Monday. The board exercised an option in the contract with Local No. 140, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes and cancelled it. The pact involved about 60 city employes. A spokesman for the local said that "about 90 per cent" of the union's members voted to keep the organization despite the loss of the collective bargaining contract. Members of the union said they hoped to regain a contract.

The Louisiana Department of Health tossed the investigation of complaints of odor and home discoloration to the Ouachita Parish Health Unit. A study by the state department was inconclusive.

After some apparent misunderstandings, the Louisiana Department of Highways has agreed to build a bridge across Toney Bayou in West Monroe. The Ouachita Parish Police Jury petitioned the state to replace a bridge that collapsed last spring and got a reply that labor would be supplied. More appeals and different answers finally have the state set to supply both labor and materials.

Another irate teacher with a mimeographed list of qualifications, appeared before the Ouachita Parish School Board in protest. Ellard Brantley, Ransom School teacher-coach, told board members loudly that he was qualified for the post of supervisor for special services and guidance. The board, on the recommendation of its administrative personnel committee and Superintendent Milton Hall, hired Mrs. Marteal Webb for the post.

Two teenaged Negro girls were killed when the car in which they were riding crashed into a railroad trestle on La. Hwy. 546 near Cheniere Lake. They were Barbara Ann Latham, 16, and Sharon Latham, both of Chatham. The Louisiana Department of Highways is studying the trestle as a safetly hazard.

Acting as fire commissioners, the Ouachita Parish Police Jury accepted a bid of $141,200 for constructions of four fire stations. The bid, offered by Aubrey Walker Construction Co., came in over what some jurors expected and the locations of the stations prompted a crossfire. Stations at Fink's Hideway Road and on the Wallace-Wilson Road are to be completed by Jan. 1, 1967. Completion of stations Tichelie Road and in Bawcomville will be finished by August, 1967. Juror Bernie Van questioned the building of the first two stations in areas that he said voted against the fire protection, while making those areas that endorsed the proposal wait for protection.

In another move, Hatten said West Monroe would start a crackdown on payment of occupational taxes by business in West Monroe. He said a list of state occupational taxpayers in West Monroe has been requested to be matched with city lists. While not estimating how many businesses were involved, Hatten predicted that new names would be added to the city list after comparison.

Hurricane's Path, Velocity Gauged By Radar

The Air Force's Air Weather Service not only scouts for hurricanes, but also is responsible for weather observations in the space program.

By DIANE TAYLOR
Staff Writer

The hurricane season has arrived and new weather-watchers — the hurricane hunters — are ready.

The U. S. Air Force Hurricane Hunters — the 53rd Weather Reconnaissance Squadron — have moved from Hunter AFB, Ga., to Ramey AFB, Puerto Rico, since last year's hurricane season ended. For the 1966 season, the squadron's WC-130s and WB-47s will all be based at Ramey.

This season the Air Weather Service will again fly weather - modified Lockheed WC-130 aircraft into Atlantic and Gulf of Mexico storms.

Operating for the second season, Air Force flying weathermen, alternating with the U. S. Navy, will provide storm surveillance for the Atlantic east of Puerto Rico and locate tropical storms off the entire U. S. coastline from Texas to Maine, including the Gulf of Mexico.

Weather - modified Boeing WB-47 Stratojets (W for weather) will continue to be used for high - altitude reconnaissance, overflying most 1966 hurricanes. Both WC-130 Hercules and WB-47s are operated by the USAF Air Weather Service, the Military Airlift Command (MAC) weather command of which the Hurricane Hunters are a part.

This season, as in the past, Air Force and Navy weather aircraft will fly daily and special weather scouters over the million and a half square miles of ocean and gulf waters adjacent to the U. S.

In Miami, Fla., the National Hurricane Center (NHC), staffed by U. S. Weather Bureau specialists, is hard at work on the current season. Knowing that little can be done to lessen the force of the big storms, military and civilian weathermen combine efforts to provide warnings, as early as possible, to civilian populance and military installations in expected paths of any tropical storms, so that precautionary measures can be taken.

PIVOT

Pivot of the military hurricane-warning network is the Military Reconnaissance Coordinator, Atlantic (MHRCA). His job is to follow through from the first report of a suspected storm — perhaps from one of America's orbiting weather satellites — to issuance of the season's last hurricane bulletin.

MHRCA, an Air Force official, is responsible for making sure that aerial scouting by both Navy and Air Weather Service is done in keeping with the needs of NHC.

Stationed at the Miami center, MHRCA triggers a warning service to Navy, Army and Air Force installations. Warnings for civilian interests and the general public are issued by the Weather Bureau from its National Hurricane Center. Military installations and ships at sea receive basic advisory forecasts from the Weather Bureau and tailor them to local needs, without substantial change in content.

Hurricane reports are relayed to NHC via USAF and Federal Aviation Agency teletype circuits. This data — lifeblood of the hurricane warning system — collected by reconnaissance aircraft, is combined with reports from satellites, ships at sea, island and coastal stations, radar sites and transport aircraft.

All Air Force hurricane reconnaissance is flown by men and aircraft of the 53rd Weather Reconnaissance Squadron of the USAF Air Weather Service's 9th Weather Reconnaissance Wing. In season and out, the squadron's aircraft probe the skies above the Atlantic, Caribbean and Gulf of Mexico, getting data to fill in blank spots on weather charts. Elsewhere in the world, sister 9th Wing units perform the same vital task for other localities, other storms.

During the annual hurricane season, the Hurricane Hunters receive a daily teletype message from MHRCA, outlining reconnaissance needs for the coming 24 hours. When an immediate report is necessary, a direct telephone request is made by MHRCA. Throughout the season, daily weather missions are flown on fixed routes, called tracks. Special storm reports are gotten by diverting routine flights.

Air Force aircraft reports are received at the Miami center by teletype after they have been checked for accuracy by special AWS monitors at Hunter AFB, Ga., near Savannah. Monitors are in direct voice contact with observers aboard WC-130s and WB-47s. Reports give NHC forecasters temperature, pressure, humidity, winds, cloud structure and other technical data within and outside a storm's eye.

For additional data, MHRCA may ask AWS ground stations near an interest area to make special surface and upper-air observations. Ground radar sites along the coast and down the Atlantic Missile Range provide more data, "watching" storms within 200 miles of the coastline. Several radars will accurately fix and follow a storm at the same time.

The U. S. Weather Bureau issues four advisories daily for civilian use, containing forecasts for six hours hence, and provides to the Air Force and Navy four daily bulletins (military advisories), containing 12-hour and 24-hour forecasts, as well as "outlooks," giving a storm's forecast position and intensity in 48 and 72 hours.

Always alert and watchful, the National Hurricane Center, backed by the men and aircraft of the nation's military weather - reconnaissance force is America's guardian against the hurricanes. When the violent seasonal storms come, U. S. weather agencies, working together, spread the word to take the precautions which can prevent loss of life and keep property damage to a minimum.

THE 'EYE'

Hurricanes affecting the United States are wind storms from the tropics in which the air revolves counterclockwise about a central calm area, the "eye." Strength of the winds must obtain at least 74 miles per hour in order for a tropical weather disturbance to qualify for the title of "hurricane."

Maximum wind speeds of 100-150 miles per hour are quite common in hurricanes striking a coast, and as much as 200 miles an hour has occurred according to estimates from structural damage.

The area affected by winds in excess of 74 miles an hour may be as small as 30 miles in diameter, while in large storms this diameter may be as much as 100 miles. Outside of the high-wind core, most hurricanes approaching the United States have a large peripheral area in which the winds are less intense and diminish gradually with increasing distance from the center.

The diameter of this peripheral circulation may be as large as 500 miles, but it is only the central area with winds above 74 miles an hour for which hurricane warnings are issued. Most hurricane damage arises from inundations of coastal lands by the sea. Inland, heavy rains may produce river floods, especially in the mountainous regions. Rains in the peripheral zone seldom are damaging; more often they prove beneficial as relievers of drought.

Hurricanes are water - born storms. Those affecting the eastern half of the United States originate in the Gulf of Mexico, the Caribbean Sea and the tropical Atlantic Ocean. There are always recursors of hurricane formation. They start from weak weather disturbances; usually, though not always, a couple of days are needed for a hurricane to merge from such a disturbance.

When observations are available, these incipient centers can be clearly recognized and followed on weather charts. When intensification is suspected, military scouting aircraft are dispatched to the crucial area to ascertain the state of development.

GIRLS NAMES

Girls' names have been used by the Weather Bureau to identify tropical cyclones in the Atlantic, Caribbean and Gulf since 1953. In 1960, a semi-permanent list of four sets of names in alphabetical order was introduced. A separate list of names is used each year, beginning with the first name in each set. After four years, when the four sets have been used, the sets are used over again in the same manner. If a major hurricane seriously affects the United States, the name assigned to it is "retired" for ten years and another name is substituted in the list. Betsy was "retired."

The list for 1966 hurricanes follows: Alma (which opened the season this summer), Becky, Celia, Dorothy, Ella, Faith, Greta, Hallie, Inez, Judith, Kendra, Lois, Marsha, Noreen, Orpha, Patty, Rena, Sherry, Thora, Vicky and Wilna.

Experience shows that the use of girls' names, in written as well as in spoken communications, is shorter, quicker and less subject to error than the older more cumbersome latitude-longitude identification methods.

These advantages are especially important in exchanging detailed storm information between hundreds of widely-scattered stations, airports, coastal bases and ships at sea.

Besides, hurricanes are named after girls because no one ever heard of a "himacane."

Aside from the facilities at Ramey AFB the MAC operates a world-wide network of weather facilities to provide round-the-clock weather support to U. S. Air Force and Army units at all echelons.

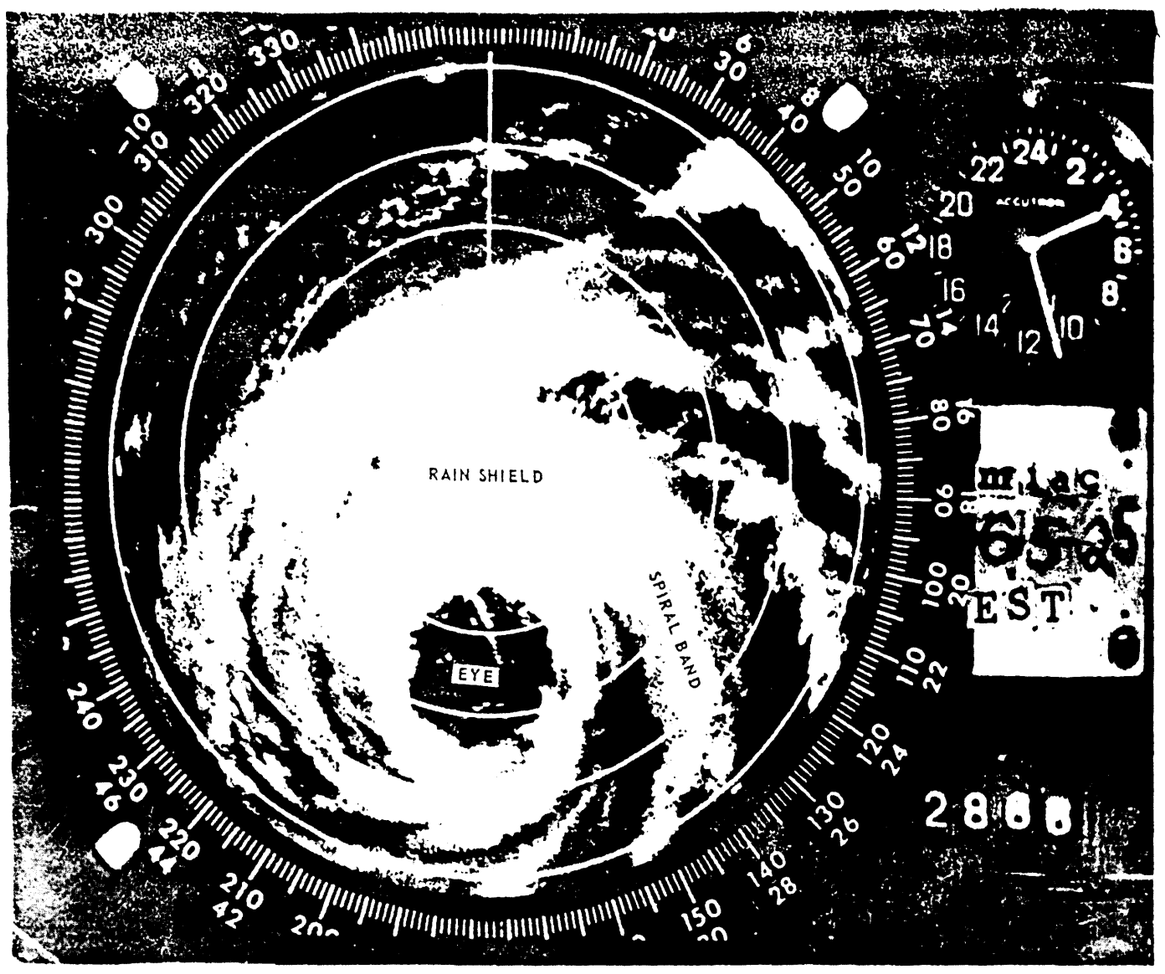

More than 11,000 officers, airmen and civilians operate three weather centrals, 15 forecast centers, 41 forecasting and 58 observing stations and 197 combined observing - forecasting stations. Together with 73 smaller units, these are located in 27 countries, islands and major island groups of the world.

USAF Air Weather Service headquarters at Scott AFB, Ill., directs operations of seven ground weather wings, 22 ground weather squadrons and an aerial weather reconnaissance wing, including six flying squadrons and three detachments. Under these parent units are some 400 numbered detachments, nearly a third of them located overseas.

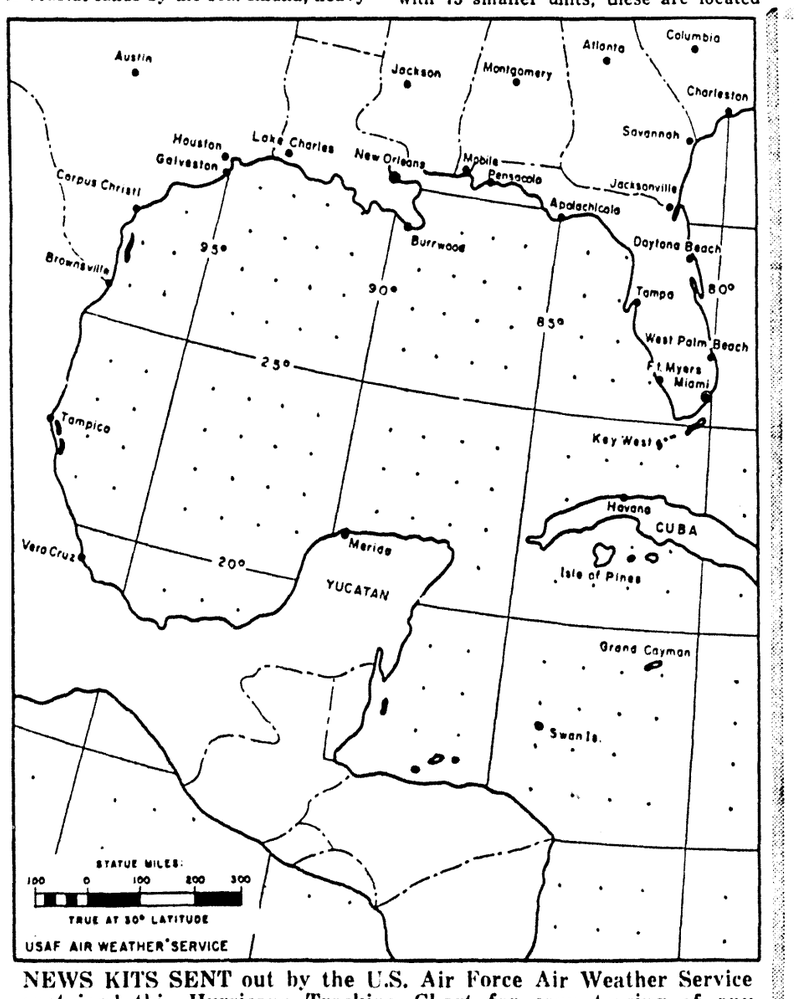

The AWS daily finds itself involved farther and farther above the earth's surface. Scientists are concerned with evaluation and use of data from the nation's weather satellites, monitored by a series of AWS ground read-out stations. Such operations as Projects Apollo and Gemini require special weather scouting by AWS weathermen. Missile launches at Cape Kennedy, Vandenberg AFB and elsewhere require specialized tailored-to-the-missile weather forecasts. AWS has also been the single manager for all Department of Defense atmospheric sampling since 1961.

As new and improved weapons and vehicles of the Space Age move from drawing board to assembly line, they require different and more accurate knowledge of the earth's atmosphere and beyond. AWS scientists are already forecasting solar flares and proton showers caused by gigantic storms on the sun.

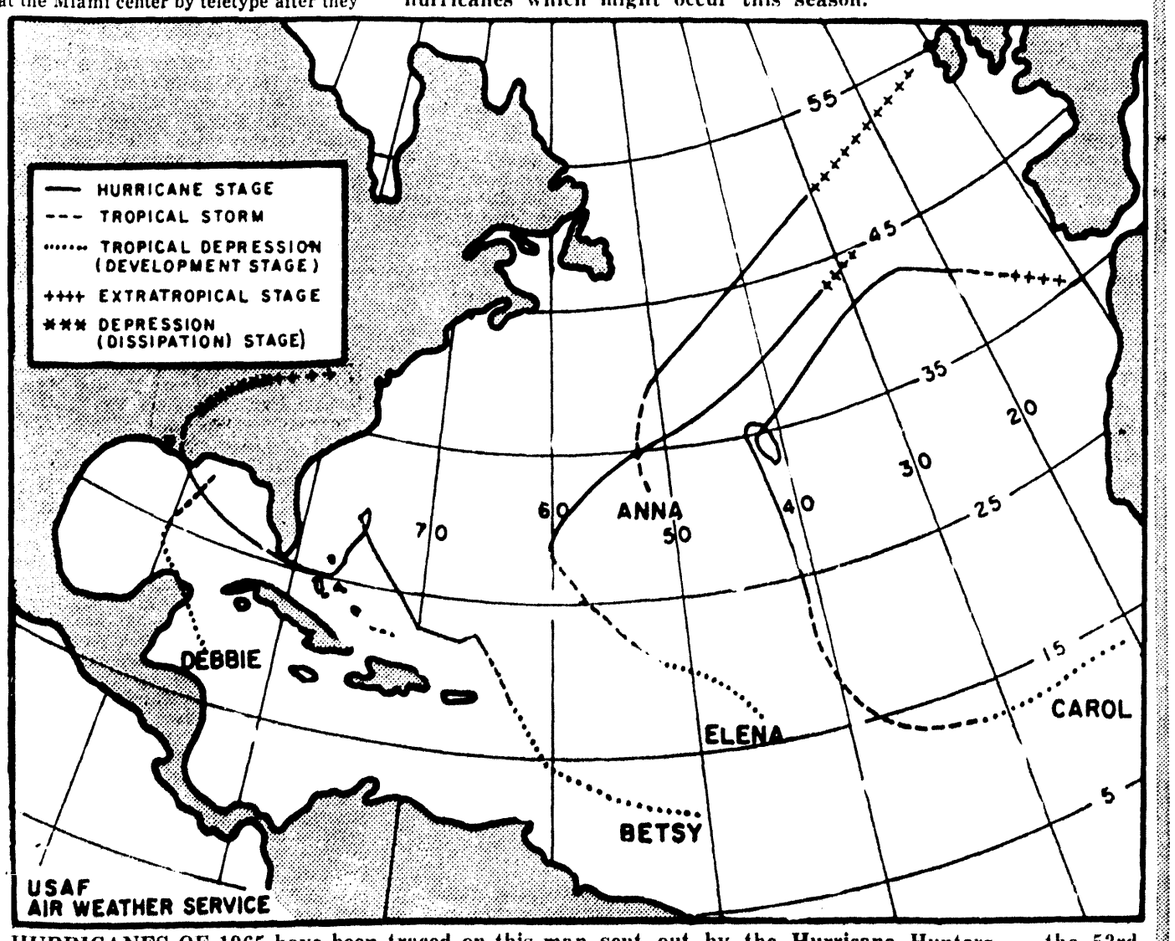

Future operations may require forecasts for landing on other planets. With the U. S. Air Force's entry into space, AWS must be ready with vital environmental information, keeping step with man's progress toward the stars.

THE HURRICANE is characterized by its well-known center or "eye," about which a great mass of moisture - laden air swirls. When viewed on a radar Plan Position Indicator scope, the eye is usually readily identified, appearing as a circular, echo-free area. At the time of this photograph, the eye was about 45 miles in diameter, but the size of the eye varies over a rather large range, varying from a few miles to more than 60 miles. Eyes of hurricanes are irregular in shape, ranging from circular to elliptical.

Mekong Placidly Accepts War

EDITOR'S NOTE - The Viet Cong began the military side of their campaign to take over South Viet Nam six years ago in the Mekong Delta. Associated Press photographer Horst Faas, who has visited the delta numerous times in the past four years, writes this account of the Delta today.

By HORST FAAS

MY THO, South Viet Nam (AP) — The war in the Mekong Delta appears to have become a way of life.

The scene has changed so little over the years that you get the impression the war could go on forever.

And well it might, American advisers declared, unless U.S. troops move into the delta in force. This verdant region below Saigon is the only part of Viet Nam where no American troops operate.

The unchanging nature of the delta war becomes obvious driving down from Saigon past the endless paddyfields lining Route 4, over the one-way bridges, and through bullet-marked villages.

Air Force spotter planes weave overhead, helicopters whir and military patrols slowly wind along the highways and down the dikes. Sampans glide along the canals, peasants in tattered black shorts toil in the fields, and barefooted children beg at the crossroads.

CHANGING

Some of the villages that had been shot up last year seem in a better state of repair, and there is a fleeting impression that things are changing for the better.

This feeling is soon dispelled. "The seminary," the nickname for the U.S. military advisory mission billet for the 7th Vietnamese Division, outside the Mekong River city of My Tho, is being rebuilt.

Viet Cong recoilless rifle fire blew holes in the walls just a few weeks ago. You remember that four years ago the seminary, on the outskirts of My Tho, used to come under attack. It is still in the line of fire.

Among American advisers, more are killed by road mines than anything else, another constant factor in the delta.

Even the statistics are virtually unchanged. In 1964 an estimated 20,000 hardcore Viet Cong lived among the 5 million Mekong Delta population. The figure now is 18,950, plus 14,450 fulltime guerrillas.

In 1965, the Viet Cong lost 10,000 killed in the delta, officials say. But these deaths apparently did not affect the size of the Viet Cong army.

Over the years the lines have been drawn deeper between friend and enemy. Areas which were once worth fighting for by the government are now accepted as being in enemy hands. They are bombed from airplanes and shelled by artillery as a matter of course. Sometimes a friendly village is bombed by mistake, or in response to Viet Cong fire.

The Vietnamese army has three full infantry divisions in the delta. But they don't seem to have learned much, even though their American advisers are as enthusiastic as they ever were. Everywhere the advisers will tell you: "We know they are learning now. My boys are good boys. They can win."

You recall similar enthusiasm years ago.

A senior adviser to the 7th Division argued in 1962 that the Vietnamese army was reluctant to engage the enemy, and that when an engagement began the enemy was permitted to get away. That still applies.

In those days military operations continued at least for a few days. Now most of them begin early in the morning and end in the evening. A two-day operation is a rarity.

Five pacification programs have been launched in the delta. Four of them have failed, the fifth is just getting under way.

RECRUIT AREA

Top U. S. officers believe four American divisions would be needed to handle the Mekong Delta. The U. S. high command considers the delta to be the major Viet Cong recruiting area and the major enemy granary.

A Vietnamese general was quoted recently as saying: "The war began in the delta. It will end there."

But the commander of the Vietnamese 4th Army Corps, which covers the delta, Lt. Gen. Dang Van Quang is opposed to having American troops in the delta. He believes the use of foreign troops would be an ideal propaganda vehicle for the Viet Cong.

Even now, enemy propaganda aimed at Vietnamese soldiers in the delta reads, "Let the Americans die for Premier Nguyen Cao Ky and the Saigon government. Don't you die."

But without American troops, the delta war might go on and on.

The 7th Division area south of Saigon is a typical delta region. It covers four provinces with a total population of 1,500,000, and stretches from the Cambodian border, through the Plain of Reeds and over to the South China Sea.

U. S. advisers and Vietnamese officials say 35 per cent of the division area is under government control, 35 per cent under Viet Cong control and the rest a no-man's land inhabited now by one side, then the other.

Each of the four provinces has a Viet Cong battalion. In Kien Tuong the battalion has three companies totaling 300 men, Kien Hoa has a nine-company enemy battalion, and the My Tho area has the much vaunted and much battered 514th Battalion, with five companies. All have more and standardized Communist equipment, apparently coming into the delta from the coast.

The Viet Cong have a total of 10,000 hardcore troops in the 7th Division area.

Ranged against them are 40,000 government soldiers and police. The 7th Division has 12 infantry battalions plus two ranger battalions. But at best only five of these battalions are available for combat at any one time because of security commitments guarding outposts or assisting in the pacification program.

The regular infantry had only 35 military operations in the first seven months of this year, each one an average length of 1.8 days. The regular army rarely has a night operation, despite years of American training. At night only the Viet Cong and a few local militiamen operate.

STALK CANAL

But the air bursts with constant artillery fire against suspected Viet Cong positions. And U. S. armed helicopters stalk the canals with spotlights, firing into anything that moves after the river curfew hours.

The U. S. Navy has river patrols, moving along some arms of the Mekong with Vietnamese policemen on board to arrest loiterers. Navy destroyers off the coast provide a constant curtain of gunfire.

The kill ratio in the delta has remained constant — two Viet Cong dead to every government soldier. So far this year government forces in the 7th Division have lost 573 weapons and captured 737.

The Chieu Hoi, or "open arms," program to encourage defectors continues, but only 10 per cent of those who give themselves up are from regular enemy units. Most of them are young recruits who tired quickly of the war and want to go home. About 25 per cent of the defectors enlist in the Vietnamese army or in paramilitary units.

Government forces are beset by jealousies and rivalries. There are numerous armed groups, starting from the national police, the oldest institution of law in the delta, ranging through the regular army, the popular and regional forces known as roughs and puffs, the special forces strike force battalions, the counter-terrorist groups and so on.

Pay differences create animosity. A counter-terrorist team soldier makes about $40 a month, a popular force soldier $12.

The war continues to be fought mainly at the village level, with terrorism met by terrorism, and hand-to-hand fighting vendetta style.

As each month goes by, more and more enemy foxholes and trenches dot the landscape, just as increasing numbers of bomb craters mark the visitation of government forces to a region.

A recent captive from the Viet Cong 514th Battalion said he was one of three men who had survived in the battalion in the past two years. The survival rate is as low in some government ranger battalions. And the war goes on, and on.

A 16-YEAR-OLD South Vietnamese "Ruff-Puff" carries automatic weapon over his shoulder and into action in the Plain of Reeds in the Mekong River delta southwest of Saigon. The "Ruff-Puffs" are members of the regional forces and popular forces who do most of the fighting against Viet Cong in the delta. After fighting in their native habitat, where they are recruited, they go home after duty hours. Their pay is the lowest in the army, their casualty rate the highest. (AP Wirephoto)

Hurricane's Path, Velocity Gauged By Radar

The Air Force's Air Weather Service not only scouts for hurricanes, but also is responsible for weather observations in the space program.

By DIANE TAYLOR
Staff Writer

The hurricane season has arrived and new weather-watchers — the hurricane hunters — are ready.

The U. S. Air Force Hurricane Hunters — the 53rd Weather Reconnaissance Squadron — have moved from Hunter AFB, Ga., to Ramey AFB, Puerto Rico, since last year's hurricane season ended. For the 1966 season, the squadron's WC-130s and WB-47s will all be based at Ramey.

This season the Air Weather Service will again fly weather - modified Lockheed WC-130 aircraft into Atlantic and Gulf of Mexico storms.

Operating for the second season, Air Force flying weathermen, alternating with the U. S. Navy, will provide storm surveillance for the Atlantic east of Puerto Rico and locate tropical storms off the entire U. S. coastline from Texas to Maine, including the Gulf of Mexico.

Weather - modified Boeing WB-47 Stratojets (W for weather) will continue to be used for high - altitude reconnaissance, overflying most 1966 hurricanes. Both WC-130 Hercules and WB-47s are operated by the USAF Air Weather Service, the Military Airlift Command (MAC) weather command of which the Hurricane Hunters are a part.

This season, as in the past, Air Force and Navy weather aircraft will fly daily and special weather scouters over the million and a half square miles of ocean and gulf waters adjacent to the U. S.

In Miami, Fla., the National Hurricane Center (NHC), staffed by U. S. Weather Bureau specialists, is hard at work on the current season. Knowing that little can be done to lessen the force of the big storms, military and civilian weathermen combine efforts to provide warnings, as early as possible, to civilian populance and military installations in expected paths of any tropical storms, so that precautionary measures can be taken.

PIVOT

Pivot of the military hurricane-warning network is the Military Reconnaissance Coordinator, Atlantic (MHRCA). His job is to follow through from the first report of a suspected storm — perhaps from one of America's orbiting weather satellites — to issuance of the season's last hurricane bulletin.

MHRCA, an Air Force official, is responsible for making sure that aerial scouting by both Navy and Air Weather Service is done in keeping with the needs of NHC.

Stationed at the Miami center, MHRCA triggers a warning service to Navy, Army and Air Force installations. Warnings for civilian interests and the general public are issued by the Weather Bureau from its National Hurricane Center. Military installations and ships at sea receive basic advisory forecasts from the Weather Bureau and tailor them to local needs, without substantial change in content.

Hurricane reports are relayed to NHC via USAF and Federal Aviation Agency teletype circuits. This data — lifeblood of the hurricane warning system — collected by reconnaissance aircraft, is combined with reports from satellites, ships at sea, island and coastal stations, radar sites and transport aircraft.

All Air Force hurricane reconnaissance is flown by men and aircraft of the 53rd Weather Reconnaissance Squadron of the USAF Air Weather Service's 9th Weather Reconnaissance Wing. In season and out, the squadron's aircraft probe the skies above the Atlantic, Caribbean and Gulf of Mexico, getting data to fill in blank spots on weather charts. Elsewhere in the world, sister 9th Wing units perform the same vital task for other localities, other storms.

During the annual hurricane season, the Hurricane Hunters receive a daily teletype message from MHRCA, outlining reconnaissance needs for the coming 24 hours. When an immediate report is necessary, a direct telephone request is made by MHRCA. Throughout the season, daily weather missions are flown on fixed routes, called tracks. Special storm reports are gotten by diverting routine flights.

Air Force aircraft reports are received at the Miami center by teletype after they have been checked for accuracy by special AWS monitors at Hunter AFB, Ga., near Savannah. Monitors are in direct voice contact with observers aboard WC-130s and WB-47s. Reports give NHC forecasters temperature, pressure, humidity, winds, cloud structure and other technical data within and outside a storm's eye.

For additional data, MHRCA may ask AWS ground stations near an interest area to make special surface and upper-air observations. Ground radar sites along the coast and down the Atlantic Missile Range provide more data, "watching" storms within 200 miles of the coastline. Several radars will accurately fix and follow a storm at the same time.

The U. S. Weather Bureau issues four advisories daily for civilian use, containing forecasts for six hours hence, and provides to the Air Force and Navy four daily bulletins (military advisories), containing 12-hour and 24-hour forecasts, as well as "outlooks," giving a storm's forecast position and intensity in 48 and 72 hours.

Always alert and watchful, the National Hurricane Center, backed by the men and aircraft of the nation's military weather - reconnaissance force is America's guardian against the hurricanes. When the violent seasonal storms come, U. S. weather agencies, working together, spread the word to take the precautions which can prevent loss of life and keep property damage to a minimum.

Real Impact

CARLISLE, England (AP) — The idea was a filmed documentary on avoiding highway crashes, and a fire engine was readied to race to an imaginery pile-up. "Action!" called Director Tony Smith, and bam! The vehicle hurtled around a corner just in time to crash with a truck. Nothing was hurt but Smith's feelings. "The film was meant to have impact," he said, "but this isn't quite what I meant."

Supreme Court Rule Makes Suspect Reject Questions

NEW YORK (AP)—Law enforcement officials reported today that recent Supreme Court rulings have prompted an increasing number of suspects to reject questioning by police.

Some officials said the rulings have undermined convictions and pending cases involving murder and other major offenses. They expressed the belief that it will become more and more difficult to win guilty verdicts.

Defense attorneys took the opposite view. Said William Ellman, first vice president of the Michigan State Bar Association. "The defense should be just as protected as the prosuection. The decision just clarifies the rights that the Constitution always gave."

A survey of law enforcement authorities around the country showed a general awareness that suspects must be handled with great caution if convictions are to stand up.

For example, the police in Long Beach, Calif., now give every suspect a printed card setting forth his legal rights before attempting to question him.

Most officials said that because there often is a long lapse between accusation and trial, it will be months before the full effect of the Supreme Court rulings are felt. But many predicted far-reaching consequencse.

Declared Fred Inbau, a Northwestern University law professor and member of the Chicago Crime Commission:

"'Many prosecutions will be litigated on the interpretation of the Supreme Court's suspect rights decision, and a lot of b— are going to go free. The crime situation's going to get a d— sight worse."

Some observers said the rulings may force drastic changes in police investigative techniques because confessions will be far harder to obtain.

'What it's going to mean ultimately," said State's Atty. Charles E. Moylan of Baltimore, "'is a much heavier reliance on scientific methods of crime detection.

"Our metropolitan police departments will have to pattern themselves more after such agencies as the FBI and Scotland Yard — far more fingerprint work, far more in the way of chemical analysis of hair follicles, 7 bits of cloth.

"This is the only way to make up for the vacuum created by the fact that we no longer can rely, as we did so heavily in the past, on the confession."

In a key section of its rulings on June 13, a 5 to 4 majority of the Supreme Court held that if a suspect "indicates in any manner and at any stage of the process that he wishes to consult with an attorney before speaking, there can be no questioning."

Moore Tells Of Projects

State Highway Commissioner James W. Moore of Monroe said Saturday that $28,370,867.94 in road construction was currently underway in the 14 parishes of the Fifth Congressional District, the largest construction program in Louisiana history.

Of this total, $16,401,367.03 is 85 contracts to Louisiana contractors for parish and state road projects in the district.

Projects being constructed by the Louisiana Highway Department crews district-wide accounts for $1,658,147.39.

Three Interstate-20 projects under construction reaching from Monroe to Rayville total $10,311,353.52.

Moore said that this accelerated highway program and expenditures of state and federal money was adding greatly to the booming economy in the Fifth District.

There's A Church Home For You in the Twin Cities...

Anyone desiring to know the location of a church of any denomination in the Twin Cities and the time of its Sunday services may call The Morning World at 323-2070, 323-3660, 323-0501 and ask for the church service directory. We'll be glad to supply you the information.

DR. NILSON FANINI, a Brazilian who is a Baptist minister and a news reporter, visited during the past week with Dr. and Mrs. Clifton R. Tennison of the First Baptist Church of West Monroe. He spoke at Wednesday night prayer services at the local church. Here he prepares for his next talk, by consulting the Bible for scripture. (Staff photo by Ronald F. Heflin)

Brazilian Minister Discusses Religion

By DIANE TAYLOR
Staff Writer

Dr. Nilson Fanini, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Niteroi, capital city of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, visited this past week in West Monroe and wondered aloud about the United States' ability to send "so many missionaries" abroad and about freedom of the press.

Dr. Fanini is also a reporter for the Diario de Noticias (Daily News) at Niteroi, and took turns scribbling in a notebook, while he talked with the interviewer.

"Is it true," he asked, "that you can write what you wish in your newspapers?" He was assured of the freedom of the press clause in the U. S. Constitution and was told that a reporter can write anything which he feels is true and unbiased for the news columns.

A Brazilian by birth, he is the son of immigrants to Brazil, a Swedish mother and an Italian father. "Brazil has many immigrants," he explained. "There are 80 million people there, many of them Germans, Polish, Italians, Japanese and Russian. It is a very cosmopolitan country."

Stressing the size of his country (8,646,011 square kilometers), he said the state of Amazon is more than two and a half times as large as Texas, "although the Texans would not like me to say it.

Dr. Fanini received his doctorate in theology from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary at Fort Worth, Tex., after obtaining his D., B. A. and master's degrees from South Seminary at Niteroi and the University of Brazil in Rio de Janeiro.

He teaches theology at South Seminary, while maintaining his jobs as pastor of the largest Baptist church in his area and reporting on the large daily newspaper which has international, national and local (Fluninense) editions. He is, meanwhile, earning his degree in law from South Seminary, there.

"I felt I must obtain more knowledge, more culture," he explained. "In my church congregation, I have many lawyers, eight physicians and many, many very intelligent, cultured persons. I must keep up with them if I am to minister to them. This is why I am getting my lawyer's degree. I will get the degree next year."

His church has a membership of 1,100 persons, but a Sunday School enrollment of 1,200. "In Brazil," Dr. Fanini said, "Sunday School is more popular than preaching. The night attendance, though, is even larger than either. We have 1,600 who attend our night services."

Because this practice is backward from the American approach to church-going, Dr. Fanini explained, "Someone tried to find the reason so many more persons there go to church at night than in the morning. Of course, you must remember the country is largely Catholic, and until the Revolution in March of 1964, was threatened strongly by Communism. We just call it the 'Nicodemus, approach to Christianity."

The man of the Pharisees, named Nicodemus, ruler of the Jews, was the reluctant prospective Christian who went by night to ask Jesus about faith and being born again. (St. John 3:1-21).

The church, though approached somewhat hesitantly, plays no small part in a Brazilian's life. Dr. Fanini's church maintains a medical clinic in which physicians work two hours a day, free of charge, to help the poor.

CHURCH SERVICES

Also, since in Brazil, six per cent of the population is illiterate, the church sponsors an adult school with a present enrollment of 200. The Women's Missionary Union of his church teaches poor women to sew and cook for their families in an economical way. There is, in addition, a Home Nurses School for women and girls to come and learn to administer first aid and take care of the sick in their families. The large classes are "graduated" every three months.

"We must have strong churches," the minister-journalist said. "Communism is still too strong to ignore it. I feel our church reaches the city."

At present, Brazil is in the midst of a national christian crusade. "We gave one-fourth of the Bibles distributed throughout the world in 1965, had more than 100,000 decisions for Christ and organized 350 new churches," the visitor said. "Our slogan is 'Christ is the Only Hope.'"

Dr. Fanini is president of the executive board of the Brazilian Baptist Convention. "Now," he said, "we are looking forward to the crusade of the Americas in 1969. All Americas — North, Central and South — will hold the crusade simultaneously. We expect this crusade, this movement, to solve many social and moral problems of today. You must change the inside of man to change the social and moral facets of life. When you get good results inside a man, you get good results outside in the world. Only Christ can get those good results."

His church, he said, seats 2,500, and is currently constructing a religious vocation building, six stories high. "There is not much land room in Brazil," he laughed. "So we must go up if we can't spread out."

His newspaper, which carries a widely - read religious column, features much the same type news as the Morning World. There is a student section, a television show section, a literature section, general news, military news and a women's supplement. It is published by Dr. Batista Calmon and its reporters are called "journalistas."

Dr. Fanini arrived in West Monroe on Tuesday, where he visited until Thursday with Dr. and Mrs. Clifton R. Tennison of the First Baptist Church, West Monroe. He spoke Tuesday at Frist Baptist Church of Dubach, where Dr. Tennison conducted revival services this past week. Wednesday night, he spoke for mid-week prayer services at First Baptist of West Monroe, in Dr. Tennison's absence. He met Dr. Tennison last year in Portugal.

He left Thursday for Jacksonville, Fla., where he was to deliver the sermon today at First Baptist Church. On Tuesday, he will go to Miami, Fla., and other points on his tour of this country and England, before returning home Aug. 23, "if the airlines aren't mad again by then," he laughed.

He attended a Baptist World Alliance meeting in London three weeks ago and was delayed there four days because of the huge airline strike.

GIVES 'SCOOP'

Dr. Fanini, a true newspaper man, as well as a dedicated Christian minister, said toward the close of the interview, "Now I will give you a 'scoop'. The Baptist World Alliance will meet next in Tokyo, Japan. The 12th Congress had planned to meet in Hong Kong, but the 1970 meeting will instead be in Tokyo. This has not been announced yet."

He spoke, also of a 1969 meeting of the Christian Crusade of the Americas, mentioned earlier, and said by 1972, the Worldwide Christian Crusade will be in full swing.

He will return to West Monroe. He will lead the spring revival at First Baptist late next April.

"My convention now hopes 'Dr. Clifton' (Tennison) will agree to preach for us in Brazil. My church invited him there for next year. We are praying he will go."

The ambassador for Brazil, as all true ambassadors do, greatly praised the country he was visiting. "I have enjoyed it tremendously," he said. "Here, it is like a large garden. Very beautiful. And your city, too, is a warm, friendly place. The people were very nice to me."

He was entertained on a houseboat trip up the Ouachita River and returned, expressing enjoyment, before his Wednesday night sermon.

His farewell hand - shaking comment on this nation was, "We in Brazil are much impressed with the United States, as to how you support so many missionaries around the world. This nation is faithful to God. I hope He keeps America strong for the purpose of gaining freedom and spreading the Gospel around the world."

And, with that, the Brazillian went to complete his tour of this country before returning to write in his newspaper and to speak from his pulpit on the observations he made on Christianity in the United States.

Nazarene Meet Set At Pineville

The pastor and a delegation of members of the Church of the Nazarene in this area will take part in the annual Louisiana district assembly to be held at the Nazarene district camp gounds in Pineville, Aug. 31 and Sept. 1.

Annual reports will be made by pastors of all 54 churches in the district. These churches now have a total of about 3,000 members and a combined Sunday school enrollment of 5,000 persons...

Rev. T. T. McCord, Pineville, will give his annual message as district superintendent. He will outline plans for the 1966-67 year. District officers will also be elected.

14 Benedictine Monks Seek God In Quiet Of Monastery

At a monastery in Vermont, 14 Benedictine monks have chosen the first path. This is one in a series of stories on various aspects of religious faith.)

WESTON, Vt. (AP) — Gray ghosts of mist sifted through the reeds edging the pond. The night sky was turning pearl above the sleeping black lump of the mountain. Then the bell struck, splitting the silence like an ax.

4 a.m. The day's first call to prayer. The monks, stirring in their cells, had 15 minutes to grope into tunics and cowls before Matins, the ancient song of the vigil of the night.

Matins? A ritual 1500 years old, yet older even, an expression of piety as old as faith. Monasticism: A devotion equally old, yet living still, its quiet message no less meaningful in the age of the atom.

FILE INTO YARD

The 14 Benedictine monks of Weston Priory filed into the chapel. Several yawned. The monks:

Brother Gregory, 26, from Amenia, N.Y., He had once planned marriage and a business career. Brother Augustine, a tall, fair, blue-eyed Canadian, barely 30, athletic, once a student for the priesthood. Brother Thomas, 36, for six years an accountant with the provincial government of Nova Scotia. The prior, Father John, a 42-year-old Vermonter. Short, dark, his strong body a contrast with the gentle gaze of his eyes which shone with what one could only call devotion — or love. Brother Maur, four years out of high school with the confident carriage and high spirits of the Eagle Scout he once was. Men of today. And centuries past. Men born of women, of this world. Yet not of it.

Brother Gregory sounded a pitch pipe. The monks began chanting the Psalms as monks have done since St. Benedict founded his great order 500 years after Christ.

The monks, now sitting, now standing, now bending deeply from the waist in supplication, sang until 4:55. Then they returned briefly to their cells. Brother Gregory shaved. Others meditated or said private prayers.

At 5:30 a.m. they returned to chant Morning Song, more Psalms. They would sing all 150 during the week, to begin again the following Sunday.

"As it was in the beginning, is now and ever shall be, world without end." rang the monks' voices through the opened windows. At that very moment the first flaming circlet of the sun flared over the ridge to the East. Overhead its rays silvered a military jet floating noiselessly towards the North. A different vigil.

FARM HOUSE

Weston Priory had been a farm house, the old Peabody place. The Benedictines bought it in 1952. They have added a chapel, a wing of cells—as austere as a Spartan New England prep school—and a recreation room. But the postulants and novitiates, those who have taken preliminary vows to the order, still live on the second floor of a converted chicken house. There is a pond out back, a swimming hole.

To St. Benedict the monk was a man of prayer, chastity, obedience, humility. He still is. Before joining, the monks at Weston gave their money to charity or the order, their clothing or car to a kid brother or friends. In their first year they are restricted in the letters they may write. They can receive visitors but only in extreme circumstances—a death in the family, illness or for priory business—do they leave the priory or its neighborhood.

The old farm house, the chapel, the pottery studio in the chicken house, the bare trestle tables of the refectory, the hay fields and the woods of the old slump-shouldered mountains beyond: this, in this world, is their home.

Breakfast was fittingly monastic—doughnuts, cold cereal, toast. Afterwards the monks normally return to their cells to study—a period called Lectio Divina—but this day the senior monks gathered in the recreation room to talk with a visitor. The room had a piano and hi-fi—both donated—no TV, but back issues of some magazines.

The monks sat on the sofas. "Why monasticism?" the visitor asked.

"It is a leaven that goes into the bread," said Brother Columba, a tall, quick smiling monk who is a devout believer in organic gardening.

"It is a life people live who have faith in a future life and who will give an example of the ultimate commitment of faith in that life," said Brother Augustine. "The example of the monastic life is like a light bulb. It is to illuminate."

"It is a beginning," said Brother Thomas, "a reminder to live for tomorrow, not just today."

IN THE SILENCE

In the silence of his meditation—from bedtime, at 8 p.m., to breakfast 12 hours later, the monks do not speak. In the unspoken strength the monk draws from his brothers, the monk tries to know himself his limits, his weaknesses. In recognizing his limits does a man approach God, said Father John. "A vessel, to hold anything, must have limits."

The monks talked of the difficulties of their life: the forsaking of home and family; the irritation of rising at 4 a.m. day in day out; the difficult moments of doubt; the hardship of constant, sincere and meaningful prayer, of the closed communal life, "living with people you may not normally touch with a 10-foot pole," said Father John. "Not only living with them but having to love them."

What relevance did this life have to the 20th Century?

"You might ask what relevance the 20th Century has to monasticism," said Brother Augustine.

"No," said Father John. "The modern world, psychology, the Great Society, such things are a challenge to monasticism. A man used to ask if there would be a life for him after his death decades hence. Today, with the atomic bomb, he is asking if there may be anything after tomorrow.

"For the 20th Century we show the meaning of community, that man can live in peace and love. For who can if we can't?"

At 9:20 the monks were back in chapel and afterwards they donned work clothes to cut hay with the priory tractor, drive the truck into town for supplies, tend the vegetable garden, clean the buildings. Brothers Thomas and Augustine were in the pottery where they make rare, high quality ceramic ware which is sold in a small shop near the chapel along with delicate wood carvings by Brother Gregory.

GATHER IN CHAPEL

At 11:30 they gathered in the chapel for mass. Father John, for seven years a parish priest, led the service.

Outside, Douglass Bissette, who had just graduated from Burlington High School, sat in a rusting metal lawn chair watching across the pond at the summer clouds piling up over the hills like the beaten white of an egg. He was to become a postulant in a few days.

"I've wanted to become a monk for sometime, to have time to pray. The sisters and brothers at school told me the only way to find out was to try it. Most of the boys in my class are enlisting or waiting for the draft or going to college. Some of my friends think I'm nuts. A girl friend—as a matter of fact, she's a cousin of Father John—said 'Oh, go aead, but you'll rot there.'' What will I miss most? Movies, maybe. And I like to go to bed late."

Of the 75 men who have taken vows of postulant at Weston, seven ultimately became fully professed monks. Those who leave generally marry. "But they lead richer lives for having been here," said Brother Thomas.

Noon: The chapel bell pealed. The monks stood wherever they were—setting table, in their cells, in the growing heat of the sun—and silently said the ancient prayer of the Angelus. The bell rang again and all filed into refectory. Father John said a long blessing.

Meals are wordless. The monks asked with their eyes or nods for extra servings of the meatballs or cooked squash. There was limeade and powdered milk to drink, brownies and nuts for dessert. The monks take turns cooking. They also take turns reading during the meal, first from the Bible, then from any book of interest. Brother Thomas was reader this week. Seated at a lectern, his trick Nova Scotian accent softened the words of psychology and conduct in a book called "The Religious Personality."

"When a man enters a religious community, he finds people generous, gentle and exemplary," he read. The monks tried to suppress laughter. Brother Thomas grinned mischievously.

After lunch the monks chanted the Hour of Sext, then took a siesta for an hour before the Hour of None. At 2 p.m. Father Quinn, a priest from Connecticut on retreat, was talking by the pond.

"It's a big, broad generalization, but for some reason when monasticism has been strong, so has the church. When it has been weak, so with the church."

During siesta, I sat under a tree reading from St. Benedict's The Rule—still the basis for most western monasticism—and "The Silent Life", a book on monasticism by Thomas Merton, the writer who became a Trappist, an even stricter monastic order.

SIMPLE WORDS

In clear, simple words, St. Benedict outlined the code of behavior, often citing scriptures: of obedience..."I came not to do my own will but the will of him who sent me"—John; of silence..."In much speaking thou shalt not escape sin"—Proverbs; of humility..."It is good for me that thou has humbled me that I may learn they commandments"—Psalms; of the monastic tradition of hospitality to all wayfarers. "I was a stranger and ye took me in"—Matthew. (An oblate, or lay member, of the priory told how a ski-bum once strained monastic hospitality for a month before moving on).

I read Merton's words .... "Purity of heart is reached only when all the separate wills of the brethren become one, the common will, the will of Christ. Can it be attained perfectly on this earth? who can say?"

After None the monks put on work clothes again.

Father John, in blue jeans, work boots and a brown denim cowled shirt, passed on his way to the fields. He stopped.

"You asked this morning what a monk was. You know, canon lawyers can't agree. You might think of a place like this as an embassy, much like the U.S. embassy, say, in Russia. Its customs there are American, not Russian. Weston represents the Kingdom of Heaven and we are trying to have a heavenly spirit here, trying to show the world what joy there is if men live the Gospels as deeply as possible.

"Sometime when you read the Bible, you get a feeling of people, not individuals, going to God. For us, we feel this sense of community in choir, in work, in living together. We want to have brothers here truly seeking God, to be with him as nearly as possible here and now.

"Seeking God: That's almost a dangerous term to use. It smacks of self-preservation. But to seek God is to learn man is not isolated, his salvation stems from group proof that real love of God is love of neighbor."

Should monasticism have to justify itself to the outside world?

"I don't think we have an obligation to answer. We welcome all faiths to come see us and that's all the answer we can give. People should love us enough to understand what we're trying to do."

Weston, like Benedictine monasteries elsewhere, has great latitude in how it operates. Weston has chosen to be contemplative rather than taking up the scholarship and teaching that occupies many monks today. It sends its message to the world obliquely, through its oblates who have vowed to obey the monastic requirements of humility and selflessness as much as possible in their daily lives, to serve as undeclared examples of Christian conduct. One oblate is a helicopter pilot in Viet Nam, another a network TV executive. Another donated the priory's maple sugaring equipment.

"We're not democratic or autocratic," said the prior. "We're familial. But a person coming here with a fear of involvement with the world, is unfitted to this life. I've seen people maturing, developing adult qualities, and I've seen the sick get sicker. There is no character trait for the perfect monk. We give applicants psychiatric tests, but that's just to make sure motivation is sound."

Why were they here?

"You don't get a vision, like Paul on the way to Damascus," said Brother Augustine in his pottery workshop, clad in a tan smock, "but there's something mystical in it. I once spent a retreat at a monastery and was bored stiff. Then I made a retreat here and decided to join. Now when I go outside, I can't wait to get back. It's home."

"Why did I join? If you'd been an accountant for six years, you would have, too," Brother Thomas laughed. "Actually I was in London on vacation and a Hyde Park speaker was trying to organize a march on Buckingham Palace to throw out the royal family. A bobby broke it up: 'Awright," he said. 'All 'oo want to march on the palace stands over 'ere and those 'oo don't over 'ere.' I laughed and started talking to a Jesuit next to me. I had been thinking of becoming a monk. He mentioned Weston. I wrote them and they sent back a nice letter. The next thing I knew I was running around the Vermont woods carrying maple sugar buckets. Me who'd never carried anything heavier than a Martini."

CHANCE ENCOUNTER

For Brother Thomas it was a faith, a chance encounter, a place to perfect an art. For himself? For God? Who could tell.

Later there was a rough and rugged game of king of the mountain on a submerged rock in the swimming hole and brothers Thomas and Augustine captured the rock for Canada and flipped Father John into the water with a splash. "What makes you think we're getting rid of our repressions?" cried Brother Thomas. Brother Maur sat in the shallows nursing a bloody nose. Ten minutes later they were all in the chapel in their habits chanting vespers.

After dinner (cold ham, meat loaf), the monks gathered in the recreation room. One of the novitiates tentatively fingered progressive jazz chords on the piano. Father John, his skirts wet to the knees, had just returned from the meadow where he had run barefoot through the sopping hay, sandals in hand, shooing the priory's three heifers away from Brother Columba's newly planted apple seedlings.

"You know," Brother Gregory said in a corner of the room, "we monks succeed only as a group. Outside 99 times out of 100 it's the same thing. Here when some one first comes in, he says, 'you this, you that.' But after a couple of months the 'you' stops. He begins saying 'we'."

The monks filed out to the chapel for Compline, the last hour of the day. Several leaned back against the uptilted wooden seats of the misericord. They sang the Psalms with the same slow measure as they had almost 16 hours before. And why not? Theirs was a chant, a vocation, with no beginning and no ending.

They finished and stood in silence in a small side chapel before a Madonna where Father John sprinkled holy water towards them in a final blessing. Then they retired to their cells. It was shortly after 8 p.m. Soon Weston Priory slept.

MY ANSWER

By Billy Graham

I have a job in which there is involved the handling of considerable sums of money. Some months ago I stole enough to buy a new car and I do not believe it can be traced. But, I am miserable. If I now replace the money I will be suspect. If I confess it I will be fired. What shall I do? G.B.

By now you know the meaning of the Bible verse, "The way of the trangressor is hard." But the very fact that you are miserable and that you have written for advice shows that God's Spirit is moving in your heart.

It is imperative that this stolen money be returned and you will never have forgiveness or peace of mind until it is returned. Not being familiar with your business position I can only advise you in general terms as to the procedure you should follow. It seems to me that your wisest course is to go to your employer and make a full confession and restitution, trusting as you do so that God will guide you and your employer. It is possible that you may lose your job but it is my guess that your employer will forgive you and in his heart be thankful he has someone working for him with the Christian character this confession and restitution will indicate.

DR. NILSON FANINI, a Brazilian who is a Baptist minister and a news reporter, visited during the past week with Dr. and Mrs. Clifton R. Tennison of the First Baptist Church of West Monroe. He spoke at Wednesday night prayer services at the local church. Here he prepares for his next talk, by consulting the Bible for scripture. (Staff photo by Ronald F. Heflin)

Brazilian Minister Discusses Religion

By DIANE TAYLOR
Staff Writer

Dr. Nilson Fanini, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Niteroi, capital city of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, visited this past week in West Monroe and wondered aloud about the United States' ability to send "so many missionaries" abroad and about freedom of the press.

Dr. Fanini is also a reporter for the Diario de Noticias (Daily News) at Niteroi, and took turns scribbling in a notebook, while he talked with the interviewer.

"Is it true," he asked, "that you can write what you wish in your newspapers?" He was assured of the freedom of the press clause in the U. S. Constitution and was told that a reporter can write anything which he feels is true and unbiased for the news columns.

A Brazilian by birth, he is the son of immigrants to Brazil, a Swedish mother and an Italian father. "Brazil has many immigrants," he explained. "There are 80 million people there, many of them Germans, Polish, Italians, Japanese and Russian. It is a very cosmopolitan country."

Stressing the size of his country (8,646,011 square kilometers), he said the state of Amazon is more than two and a half times as large as Texas, "although the Texans would not like me to say it.

Dr. Fanini received his doctorate in theology from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary at Fort Worth, Tex., after obtaining his D., B. A. and master's degrees from South Seminary at Niteroi and the University of Brazil in Rio de Janeiro.

He teaches theology at South Seminary, while maintaining his jobs as pastor of the largest Baptist church in his area and reporting on the large daily newspaper which has international, national and local (Fluninense) editions. He is, meanwhile, earning his degree in law from South Seminary, there.

"I felt I must obtain more knowledge, more culture," he explained. "In my church congregation, I have many lawyers, eight physicians and many, many very intelligent, cultured persons. I must keep up with them if I am to minister to them. This is why I am getting my lawyer's degree. I will get the degree next year."

His church has a membership of 1,100 persons, but a Sunday School enrollment of 1,200. "In Brazil," Dr. Fanini said, "Sunday School is more popular than preaching. The night attendance, though, is even larger than either. We have 1,600 who attend our night services."

Because this practice is backward from the American approach to church-going, Dr. Fanini explained, "Someone tried to find the reason so many more persons there go to church at night than in the morning. Of course, you must remember the country is largely Catholic, and until the Revolution in March of 1964, was threatened strongly by Communism. We just call it the 'Nicodemus, approach to Christianity."

The man of the Pharisees, named Nicodemus, ruler of the Jews, was the reluctant prospective Christian who went by night to ask Jesus about faith and being born again. (St. John 3:1-21).

The church, though approached somewhat hesitantly, plays no small part in a Brazilian's life. Dr. Fanini's church maintains a medical clinic in which physicians work two hours a day, free of charge, to help the poor.

CHURCH SERVICES

Also, since in Brazil, six per cent of the population is illiterate, the church sponsors an adult school with a present enrollment of 200. The Women's Missionary Union of his church teaches poor women to sew and cook for their families in an economical way. There is, in addition, a Home Nurses School for women and girls to come and learn to administer first aid and take care of the sick in their families. The large classes are "graduated" every three months.

"We must have strong churches," the minister-journalist said. "Communism is still too strong to ignore it. I feel our church reaches the city."

At present, Brazil is in the midst of a national christian crusade. "We gave one-fourth of the Bibles distributed throughout the world in 1965, had more than 100,000 decisions for Christ and organized 350 new churches," the visitor said. "Our slogan is 'Christ is the Only Hope.' "

Dr. Fanini is president of the executive board of the Brazilian Baptist Convention. "Now," he said, "we are looking forward to the crusade of the Americas in 1969. All Americas — North, Central and South — will hold the crusade simultaneously. We expect this crusade, this movement, to solve many social and moral problems of today. You must change the inside of man to change the social and moral facets of life. When you get good results inside a man, you get good results outside in the world. Only Christ can get those good results."

His church, he said, seats 2,500, and is currently constructing a religious vocation building, six stories high. "There is not much land room in Brazil," he laughed. "So we must go up if we can't spread out."

His newspaper, which carries a widely - read religious column, features much the same type news as the Morning World. There is a student section, a television show section, a literature section, general news, military news and a women's supplement. It is published by Dr. Batista Calmon and its reporters are called "journalistas."

Dr. Fanini arrived in West Monroe on Tuesday, where he visited until Thursday with Dr. and Mrs. Clifton R. Tennison of the First Baptist Church, West Monroe. He spoke Tuesday at Frist Baptist Church of Dubach, where Dr. Tennison conducted revival services this past week. Wednesday night, he spoke for mid-week prayer services at First Baptist of West Monroe, in Dr. Tennison's absence. He met Dr. Tennison last year in Portugal.

He left Thursday for Jacksonville, Fla., where he was to deliver the sermon today at First Baptist Church. On Tuesday, he will go to Miami, Fla., and other points on his tour of this country and England, before returning home Aug. 23, "if the airlines aren't mad again by then," he laughed.

He attended a Baptist World Alliance meeting in London three weeks ago and was delayed there four days because of the huge airline strike.

GIVES 'SCOOP'

Dr. Fanini, a true newspaper man, as well as a dedicated Christian minister, said toward the close of the interview, "Now I will give you a 'scoop'. The Baptist World Alliance will meet next in Tokyo, Japan. The 12th Congress had planned to meet in Hong Kong, but the 1970 meeting will instead be in Tokyo. This has not been announced yet."

He spoke, also of a 1969 meeting of the Christian Crusade of the Americas, mentioned earlier, and said by 1972, the Worldwide Christian Crusade will be in full swing.

He will return to West Monroe. He will lead the spring revival at First Baptist late next April.

"My convention now hopes 'Dr. Clifton' (Tennison) will agree to preach for us in Brazil. My church invited him there for next year. We are praying he will go."

The ambassador for Brazil, as all true ambassadors do, greatly praised the country he was visiting. "I have enjoyed it tremendously," he said. "Here, it is like a large garden. Very beautiful. And your city, too, is a warm, friendly place. The people were very nice to me."

He was entertained on a houseboat trip up the Ouachita River and returned, expressing enjoyment, before his Wednesday night sermon.

His farewell hand - shaking comment on this nation was, "We in Brazil are much impressed with the United States, as to how you support so many missionaries around the world. This nation is faithful to God. I hope He keeps America strong for the purpose of gaining freedom and spreading the Gospel around the world."

And, with that, the Brazillian went to complete his tour of this country before returning to write in his newspaper and to speak from his pulpit on the observations he made on Christianity in the United States.

Yet not of it.

Brother Gregory sounded a pitch pipe. The monks began chanting the Psalms as monks have done since St. Benedict founded his great order 500 years after Christ.

The monks, now sitting, now standing, now bending deeply from the waist in supplication, sang until 4:55. Then they returned briefly to their cells. Brother Gregory shaved. Others meditated or said private prayers.

At 5:30 a.m. they returned to chant Morning Song, more Psalms. They would sing all 150 during the week, to begin again the following Sunday.

"As it was in the beginning, is now and ever shall be, world without end." rang the monks' voices through the opened windows. At that very moment the first flaming circlet of the sun flared over the ridge to the East. Overhead its rays silvered a military jet floating noiselessly towards the North. A different vigil.

FARM HOUSE

Weston Priory had been a farm house, the old Peabody place. The Benedictines bought it in 1952. They have added a chapel, a wing of cells—as austere as a Spartan New England prep school—and a recreation room. But the postulants and novitiates, those who have taken preliminary vows to the order, still live on the second floor of a converted chicken house. There is a pond out back, a swimming hole.

To St. Benedict the monk was a man of prayer, chastity, obedience, humility. He still is. Before joining, the monks at Weston gave their money to charity or the order, their clothing or car to a kid brother or friends. In their first year they are restricted in the letters they may write. They can receive visitors but only in extreme circumstances—a death in the family, illness or for priory business—do they leave the priory or its neighborhood.

The old farm house, the chapel, the pottery studio in the chicken house, the bare trestle tables of the refectory, the hay fields and the woods of the old slump-shouldered mountains beyond: this, in this world, is their home.

Breakfast was fittingly monastic—doughnuts, cold cereal, toast. Afterwards the monks normally return to their cells to study—a period called Lectio Divina—but this day the senior monks gathered in the recreation room to talk with a visitor. The room had a piano and hi-fi—both donated—no TV, but back issues of some magazines.

The monks sat on the sofas. "Why monasticism?" the visitor asked.

"It is a leaven that goes into the bread," said Brother Columba, a tall, quick smiling monk who is a devout believer in organic gardening.

"It is a life people live who have faith in a future life and who will give an example of the ultimate commitment of faith in that life," said Brother Augustine. "The example of the monastic life is like a light bulb. It is to illuminate."

"It is a beginning," said Brother Thomas, "a reminder to live for tomorrow, not just today."

IN THE SILENCE

In the silence of his meditation—from bedtime, at 8 p.m., to breakfast 12 hours later, the monks do not speak. In the unspoken strength the monk draws from his brothers, the monk tries to know himself his limits, his weaknesses. In recognizing his limits does a man approach God, said Father John. "A vessel, to hold anything, must have limits."

The monks talked of the difficulties of their life: the forsaking of home and family; the irritation of rising at 4 a.m. day in day out; the difficult moments of doubt; the hardship of constant, sincere and meaningful prayer, of the closed communal life, "living with people you may not normally touch with a 10-foot pole," said Father John. "Not only living with them but having to love them."

What relevance did this life have to the 20th Century?

"You might ask what relevance the 20th Century has to monasticism," said Brother Augustine.

"No," said Father John. "The modern world, psychology, the Great Society, such things are a challenge to monasticism. A man used to ask if there would be a life for him after his death decades hence. Today, with the atomic bomb, he is asking if there may be anything after tomorrow.

"For the 20th Century we show the meaning of community, that man can live in peace and love. For who can if we can't?"

At 9:20 the monks were back in chapel and afterwards they donned work clothes to cut hay with the priory tractor, drive the truck into town for supplies, tend the vegetable garden, clean the buildings. Brothers Thomas and Augustine were in the pottery where they make rare, high quality ceramic ware which is sold in a small shop near the chapel along with delicate wood carvings by Brother Gregory.

GATHER IN CHAPEL

At 11:30 they gathered in the chapel for mass. Father John, for seven years a parish priest, led the service.

Outside, Douglass Bissette, who had just graduated from Burlington High School, sat in a rusting metal lawn chair watching across the pond at the summer clouds piling up over the hills like the beaten white of an egg. He was to become a postulant in a few days.

"I've wanted to become a monk for sometime, to have time to pray. The sisters and brothers at school told me the only way to find out was to try it. Most of the boys in my class are enlisting or waiting for the draft or going to college. Some of my friends think I'm nuts. A girl friend—as a matter of fact, she's a cousin of Father John—said 'Oh, go aead, but you'll rot there.'' What will I miss most? Movies, maybe. And I like to go to bed late."

Of the 75 men who have taken vows of postulant at Weston, seven ultimately became fully professed monks. Those who leave generally marry. "But they lead richer lives for having been here," said Brother Thomas.

Noon: The chapel bell pealed. The monks stood wherever they were—setting table, in their cells, in the growing heat of the sun—and silently said the ancient prayer of the Angelus. The bell rang again and all filed into refectory. Father John said a long blessing.

Meals are wordless. The monks asked with their eyes or nods for extra servings of the meatballs or cooked squash. There was limeade and powdered milk to drink, brownies and nuts for dessert. The monks take turns cooking. They also take turns reading during the meal, first from the Bible, then from any book of interest. Brother Thomas was reader this week. Seated at a lectern, his trick Nova Scotian accent softened the words of psychology and conduct in a book called "The Religious Personality."

"When a man enters a religious community, he finds people generous, gentle and exemplary," he read. The monks tried to suppress laughter. Brother Thomas grinned mischievously.

After lunch the monks chanted the Hour of Sext, then took a siesta for an hour before the Hour of None. At 2 p.m. Father Quinn, a priest from Connecticut on retreat, was talking by the pond.

"It's a big, broad generalization, but for some reason when monasticism has been strong, so has the church. When it has been weak, so with the church."

During siesta, I sat under a tree reading from St. Benedict's The Rule—still the basis for most western monasticism—and "The Silent Life", a book on monasticism by Thomas Merton, the writer who became a Trappist, an even stricter monastic order.

SIMPLE WORDS

In clear, simple words, St. Benedict outlined the code of behavior, often citing scriptures: of obedience..."I came not to do my own will but the will of him who sent me"—John; of silence..."In much speaking thou shalt not escape sin"—Proverbs; of humility..."It is good for me that thou has humbled me that I may learn they commandments"—Psalms; of the monastic tradition of hospitality to all wayfarers. "I was a stranger and ye took me in"—Matthew. (An oblate, or lay member, of the priory told how a ski-bum once strained monastic hospitality for a month before moving on).

I read Merton's words . . . . "Purity of heart is reached only when all the separate wills of the brethren become one, the common will, the will of Christ. Can it be attained perfectly on this earth? who can say?"

After None the monks put on work clothes again.

Father John, in blue jeans, work boots and a brown denim cowled shirt, passed on his way to the fields. He stopped.

"You asked this morning what a monk was. You know, canon lawyers can't agree. You might think of a place like this as an embassy, much like the U.S. embassy, say, in Russia. Its customs there are American, not Russian. Weston represents the Kingdom of Heaven and we are trying to have a heavenly spirit here, trying to show the world what joy there is if men live the Gospels as deeply as possible.

"Sometime when you read the Bible, you get a feeling of people, not individuals, going to God. For us, we feel this sense of community in choir, in work, in living together. We want to have brothers here truly seeking God, to be with him as nearly as possible here and now.

"Seeking God: That's almost a dangerous term to use. It smacks of self-preservation. But to seek God is to learn man is not isolated, his salvation stems from group proof that real love of God is love of neighbor."

Should monasticism have to justify itself to the outside world?

"I don't think we have an obligation to answer. We welcome all faiths to come see us and that's all the answer we can give. People should love us enough to understand what we're trying to do."

Weston, like Benedictine monasteries elsewhere, has great latitude in how it operates. Weston has chosen to be contemplative rather than taking up the scholarship and teaching that occupies many monks today. It sends its message to the world obliquely, through its oblates who have vowed to obey the monastic requirements of humility and selflessness as much as possible in their daily lives, to serve as undeclared examples of Christian conduct. One oblate is a helicopter pilot in Viet Nam, another a network TV executive. Another donated the priory's maple sugaring equipment.

"We're not democratic or autocratic," said the prior. "We're familial. But a person coming here with a fear of involvement with the world, is unfitted to this life. I've seen people maturing, developing adult qualities, and I've seen the sick get sicker. There is no character trait for the perfect monk. We give applicants psychiatric tests, but that's just to make sure motivation is sound."

Why were they here?

"You don't get a vision, like Paul on the way to Damascus," said Brother Augustine in his pottery workshop, clad in a tan smock, "but there's something mystical in it. I once spent a retreat at a monastery and was bored stiff. Then I made a retreat here and decided to join. Now when I go outside, I can't wait to get back. It's home."

"Why did I join? If you'd been an accountant for six years, you would have, too," Brother Thomas laughed. "Actually I was in London on vacation and a Hyde Park speaker was trying to organize a march on Buckingham Palace to throw out the royal family. A bobby broke it up: 'Awright," he said. 'All 'oo want to march on the palace stands over 'ere and those 'oo don't over 'ere.' I laughed and started talking to a Jesuit next to me. I had been thinking of becoming a monk. He mentioned Weston. I wrote them and they sent back a nice letter. The next thing I knew I was running around the Vermont woods carrying maple sugar buckets. Me who'd never carried anything heavier than a Martini."

CHANCE ENCOUNTER

For Brother Thomas it was a faith, a chance encounter, a place to perfect an art. For himself? For God? Who could tell.

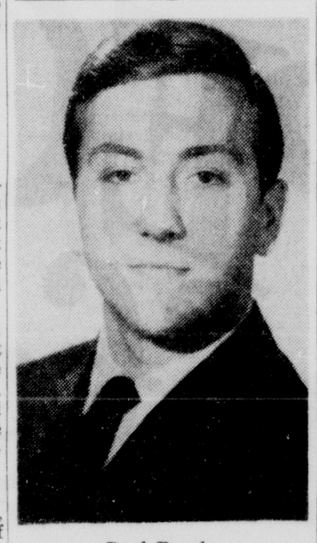

Later there was a rough and rugged game of king of the mountain on a submerged rock in the swimming hole and brothers Thomas and Augustine captured the rock for Canada and flipped Father John into the water with a splash. "What makes you think we're getting rid of our repressions?" cried Brother Thomas. Brother Maur sat in the shallows nursing a bloody nose. Ten minutes later they were all in the chapel in their habits chanting vespers.

After dinner (cold ham, meat loaf), the monks gathered in the recreation room. One of the novitiates tentatively fingered progressive jazz chords on the piano. Father John, his skirts wet to the knees, had just returned from the meadow where he had run barefoot through the sopping hay, sandals in hand, shooing the priory's three heifers away from Brother Columba's newly planted apple seedlings.

"You know," Brother Gregory said in a corner of the room, "we monks succeed only as a group. Outside 99 times out of 100 it's the same thing. Here when some one first comes in, he says, 'you this, you that.' But after a couple of months the 'you' stops. He begins saying 'we'."

The monks filed out to the chapel for Compline, the last hour of the day. Several leaned back against the uptilted wooden seats of the misericord. They sang the Psalms with the same slow measure as they had almost 16 hours before. And why not? Theirs was a chant, a vocation, with no beginning and no ending.

They finished and stood in silence in a small side chapel before a Madonna where Father John sprinkled holy water towards them in a final blessing. Then they retired to their cells. It was shortly after 8 p.m. Soon Weston Priory slept.

MY ANSWER

By Billy Graham

I have a job in which there is involved the handling of considerable sums of money. Some months ago I stole enough to buy a new car and I do not believe it can be traced. But, I am miserable. If I now replace the money I will be suspect. If I confess it I will be fired. What shall I do? G.B.

By now you know the meaning of the Bible verse, "The way of the trangressor is hard." But the very fact that you are miserable and that you have written for advice shows that God's Spirit is moving in your heart.

It is imperative that this stolen money be returned and you will never have forgiveness or peace of mind until it is returned. Not being familiar with your business position I can only advise you in general terms as to the procedure you should follow. It seems to me that your wisest course is to go to your employer and make a full confession and restitution, trusting as you do so that God will guide you and your employer. It is possible that you may lose your job but it is my guess that your employer will forgive you and in his heart be thankful he has someone working for him with the Christian character this confession and restitution will indicate.

Bucs Edge Cubs, Hold League Lead

Mazeroski Launches 3-2 Win With Homer

CHICAGO (AP) — Bill Mazeroski's towering homer leading off the seventh inning cracked a 1-1 tie and launched the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 3-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs Saturday.

The Pirates, ending a three-game losing streak clung to first place in the National League.

Mazeroski's blast into the left field stands—his 12th— broke a pitching duel between the Cubs' Bill Hands, 8-11, and Tommy Sisk, 8-2.

Hands had held the Pirates to five hits until Mazeroski's blow while Sisk had yielded four.

Tempers flared in the cub half of the seventh when catcher Randy Hundley, protesting a called third strike, had a chest-bumping episode with Plate Umpire Harry Wendelstedt and was chased.

Manager Leo Durocher hurried to the plate to try to calm his rookie, who finally stomped to the dugout.

Once there, Hundley was told to get off the bench and go to the locker room by first base Umpire Shag Crawford. This touched off another exchange with Leo interceding before Hundley left for the showers.

The pirates took a 1-0 lead in the third on Jesse Gonder's single, Sisk's sacrifice and Matty Alou's triple.

In the sixth, Billy Williams, who had tripled to the center field wall in the first inning, unloaded his 22nd home run into the right center field bleachers against a stiff wind to tie the game.

Then came Mazeroski's homer, which he followed up with a sacrifice fly in the eighth that put Pittsburgh on top 3-1.

Shortstop Don Kessinger's two-base throwing error in the eighth on Roberto Clemente's roller, a free pass to Willie Stargell and Don Clendenon's slow hopper loaded the bases with one out.

Mazeroski then popped to short center, Kessinger making an over-the-shoulder catch. But Clemente beat the relay to the plate.

That turned out to be the margin of victory when the Cubs scored in the ninth with the aid of an error by first baseman Clendenon.

Cepeda's Single In 13th Gives Cards 3-2 Win From Dodgers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Orlando Cepeda's run-scoring single in the 13th inning gave the St. Louis Cardinals a 3-2 victory over Los Angeles Saturday.

The loss dropped the third-place Dodgers three games behind the National League-leading Pittsburgh Pirates, who beat Chicago 3-2.

With one out in the 13th, Curt Flood singled off Dodger reliever Ron Perranoski. Flood raced to third on Tim McCarver's single and, after Joe Moeller replaced Perranoski, Cepeda came through with a single to center, scoring Flood.

Ron Piche, who pitched the last two innings for St. Louis, was the winner.

Julian Javier's second homer of the game gave the Cardinals a 2-1 edge in the seventh inning but the Dodgers tied it in the ninth when Jim Lefebvre, who had homered earlier, drove in Lou Johnson with a single.

Johnson led off the ninth with a single off St. Louis reliever Nelson Briles and took second as Tommy Davis grounded out. Lefebvre then stroked his run-scoring single to right.

Briles had come on for left-hander Al Jackson, who scattered eight hits over the first seven innings before tiring.

John Pitches Three-Hitter As Chisox Top Indians, 4-1

CLEVELAND (AP) —Tommy John pitched a three hitter and hit his second homer of the season Saturday as the Chicago White Sox trimmed Cleveland 4-1, spoiling George Strickland's 1966 debut as the Indians' manager.

Rocky Colavito singled in the second inning and scored the Indians' run on three wild pitches by John, who then settled down and breezed to his 12th victory. The Chicago southpaw homered in the seventh with the bases empty.

Don Buford singled in the first inning and scored when Leon Wagner bobbled Jerry Adair's double in left field. Doubles by Tommie Agee and Al Weis sent the White Sox ahead 2-1 in the fourth and Adair singled across another run in the fifth

Strickland, who filled in as the Indians' pilot after Birdie Tebbetts suffered a heart attack in 1964, was named interim manager Friday night following Tebbetts' resignation.

New Junior Champ Will Rule Cities

A new Twin Cities' junior golf champ will be crowned Monday with the playing of the Fourth Annual Twin City Junior Golf Tournament over Monroe's Municipal course.

Terry Peddy, who won the tourney last year just behind his brother Wayne who won the year before, is not eligible to participate, although early reports said he would defend his title.

The Ruston High School junior lived in West Monroe at the time of his victory but since moved to Ruston. The tournament is open to residents of Monroe and West Monroe only, ages 8-17.

Play is in boys and girls age brackets.

The competition is expected to net some 30 trophies and cups for the participants, the largest number of awards ever given in the tournament's history, according to club professional Johnny Myers.

The tournament will also give definite recognition to the Twin Cities' girl junior champ.

Contestants have until 8 a.m. Monday to register for the tourney, although they are urged to register by calling the club pro shop today. The 8 a.m. Monday deadline is for those who are not sure they will be able to play until Monday morning.

A tentative tournament schedule calls for:

All boys and girls between the ages of 8-13 to tee off bewteen 8 and 9 a.m.; boys 13-14 between 9-10; and ages 15-17 between 10-11; boys 8-10 will tee off on number five and play five holes; girls 11-13 will tee off on number three and play seven holes; boys 11-17 will play 18 holes.

A hole-in-one contest will be held on number eight and a long driving contest will be conducted off number 10 tee.

The course will be closed to regular play until the last foursome of the tournament has left the tee.

Balls and clubs will be furnished free of charge to players without their own equipment.

Warren Spahn's Suitcase Stolen

FARMINGTON, N.M. (AP) — A suitcase belonging to former pitching great Warren Spahn was taken Thursday night in a Farmington motel lobby.

Spahn said it contained two World Series rings, which he valued at about $400, plus his clothing and a sizable amount of money.

Spahn was in Farmington as a guest of the Connie Mack Baseball World Series which began Friday night.

He and former New York Yankee Andy Carey conducted pitching and hitting clinics for an estimated 250 youngsters.

Boston Cuts Out Raiders

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — The Boston Patriots scored two touchdowns in the fourth quarter to defeat the Oakland Raiders, 21-10, Saturday evening in the American Football League's first doubleheader.

Trailing 10-7 going into the final period, Boston quarterback Babe Parilli threw nine yards to Jim Whalen on the second play of the quarter.

Boston added an insurance touchdown midway in the final quarter when defensive halfback Dick Felt snared a pass thrown by Oakland's Charlie Green and raced 45 yards down the left sideline.

The Patriots opened the game's scoring with 23 seconds left in the first half when quarterback John Huarte culminated an 80-yard drive with a 15-yard pass to Whalen.

Oakland scored first in the third period on a one-yard plunge by Hewitt Dixon. With 52 seconds left in the quarter, Mike Mercer booted a 21-yard field goal, ending a drive which began on the Oakland 2.

An estimated 35,000 watched Boston win its first exhibition game after 17 straight losses dating back to 1962.

Tim Brown To Receive Diploma

MUNCIE, Ind. (AP) — Philadelphia Eagles halfback Tim Brown received his bachelor of science degree in education Friday at Ball State University's summer commencement.

Brown, a native of Knightstown, Ind., left Ball State in 1959 without his degree because he lacked requirements for a double major. But a rule change, effective when Ball State became a university, calls for only one major and a minor, making Brown eligible for a diplomat.

Bears Trip Washington

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Ritchie Petitbon broke a 10-10 tie by running 70 yards with a recovered fumble for a Chicago touchdown Saturday night and the Bears went on to defeat the Washington Redskins 24-10 in a National Football League exhibition game.

Petitbon picked up the ball when Dick Shiner fumbled the pass from center on a field goal attempt late in the third quarter.

The Bears, now 2-1 in exhibitions, turned two fumble recoveries and a pass interception by Doug Buffone into touchdowns.

Gale Sayers, rookie of the year in the NFL last year, scored twice — from the three in the first period and from the two in the fourth. His first touchdown capped an 83-yard drive, begun when Dickie Evy recovered a fumble. The second came after Buffone's theft.

Washington overcame a 7-0 deficit and led 10-7 in the second quarter. Sonny Jurgensen scored on a bootleg from a yard out after triggering a 44-yard push with three pass completions.

Charlie Gogolak, Washington's expensive field-goal kicker, put the Redskins ahead with a 17-yard field goal. Earlier, he had one attempt blocked and was wide on another.

Roger LeClerc of the Bears kicked a 26-yard field goal with 70 seconds left in the half to tie the score at 10-10. Petitbon's run came after the Redskins had moved from their 20 to the Chicago 27.

NON-THROWING QUARTERBACKS

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Five members of Louisiana State University's 1966 football team, all former high school quarterbacks, will not throw a pass in 1966. The five, all members of the Tigers' defensive squad, are Mickey Christian, Magnolia, Ark., defensive end; Mitch Worley, Dallas, Tex., linebacker; Jerry Joseph, University High of Baton Rouge, cornerback; Fred Mixon, Amite, cornerback, and James "Coot" Lambert, Canton, Miss., safety.

Hearing Slated On Prize Fight

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The chairman of the Nevada State Athletic Commission said Saturday that a hearing will be set to consider a protest in the Jose Torres-Eddie Cotton fight.

Chairman George Foley said the protest was lodged on behalf of Cotton, a Seattle, Wash., light heavyweight, by his attorney, Clay Nixon.

Nixon contended that the 14th round of the fight was ended 20 seconds ahead of its scheduled three minute length, thus possibly depriving Cotton of a knockout or other advantage.

Foley said he doubted the commission could meet before mid-September, adding commissioners would have to determine both the facts and whether any remedy exists.

Nixon asked that the fight be declared no contest, Foley said. Torres won a unanimous decision in the 15-round title bout.

Cliff Richey Takes Upset From Roche

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Cliff Richey of Dallas, Tex., upset second-seeded Tony Roche 6-2, 6-3, 7-5 Saturday and moved into the finals of the National Lawn Tennis Hall of Fame tournament opposite Dennis Ralston.

Ralston, this country's Davis Cup ace, top-seeded in the country and No. 1 here, took Arthur Ashe of Los Angeles 4-6, 9-7, 6-2, 62 in the other semifinal.

Richey, No. 3 in the seed here and the national clay court champion, played some of the best tennis of his life in the upset of the left-handed Aussie Roche, who holds the French, Italian and Mexican titles.

He broke service three times in the first set, twice from love-30. In the second set, two sensational backhands enabled him to break in the fifth game, and he also broke in the ninth.

Roche had leads of 2-0 and 3-1 in the third set, but Richey stormed back and won three games in a row. Roche fought back, saved match point four times in the 10th game, then could get only two points in the final two games.

Ralston, from Bakersfield, Calif., served beautifully, but lost his service in the long ninth game of the first set. The lone break in the second set was by Ralston in the 16th game, but he swept through Ashe without trouble in the final two sets.

The hall of fame ceremony also was held, with the induction of three former national champions. They are Frank A. Parker, Jr., Ted Schroeder and the late Navy Lt. Joe Hunt. Aslo inducted was Theodore Roosevelt Pell of Port Washington, N.Y.

Orioles Erupt In 5th To Defeat Tigers, 8-3

DETROIT (AP) —Russ Snyder hit a bases-loaded triple, then scored himself on a wild pitch in a five-run fifth inning that carried the Baltimore Orioles to an 8-3 victory over the Detroit Tigers Saturday.

The triumph snapped a four-game Tiger winning streak and again put the first place Orioles 13½ games in front of Detroit in the American League.

Willie Horton and Mickey Stanley collided while going after Dave Johnson's high fly opening the fifth inning and Horton was charged with an error.

Andy Etchebarren singled to right field and Johnson scored on a single by pitcher Dave McNally. Luis Aparicio walked to load the bases and Snyder hit his triple chasing Tiger starter Denny McLain.

McLain, 14-11 and loser of seven games in his last eight decisions since the All-Star break, was touched for successive homers by Boog Powell and Curt Blefary in the second inning.

Powell was hit on the first joint of his ring finger on the left hand in the fourth inning and gave way to a pinch-hitter in the fifth.

Horton spoiled McNally's shutout bid in the eighth when he homered following Jerry Lumpe's single and a walk to Norm Cash.

The Oriolse had added another run in the sixth when Etchebarren singled, was sacrificed to second and came home on Aparicio's single.

McNally, 13-3 gave way to reliever Eddie Fisher after walking the first two hitters he faced in the ninth.

Phils Squeeze Past New York In 11, 5-4

PHILADELPHIA (AP) —Bill White doubled with two out in the 11th inning and scored on Tony Gonzalez' single, lifting the Philadelphia Phillies past the New York Mets 5-4 Saturday.

The Phillies scored three runs in the seventh with the help of two New York errors for a 4-3 lead but the Mets tied it in the ninth on Cleon Jones' single and a pinch hit double by Ron Swoboda.

White led off the Phils' seventh with an infield hit and Chuck Hiller dropped the throw on Gonzalez' potential double play grounder to third. After Clay Dalrymple sacrificed, Dick Groat scored White with a single to left and Gonzalez also came across on Larrry Elliot's wild throw. Pinch hitter Doug Clemens then singled home the lead run.

Kemp Led Bills Topple Houston

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. AP) — Jack Kemp passed for three touchdowns in the first half Saturday night, one on an 80-yard shot, and led Buffalo to a 28-16 American Football League exhibition victory over Houston.

Kemp, most valuable player in the AFL last year, threw scoring passes of 5 and 88 yards to Elbert Dubenion and passed 18 yards for another to rookie halfback Bobby Burnett of Arkansas.

Kemp hit on 10 of 20 passes for 188 yards and watched from the bench in the second half as Daryl Lamonica added the other Buffalo touchdown on a 28-yard pass to Roookie Alllen Sm of Fort Valley State.

The Oilers scored in the first quarter on Jacky Lee's 12-yard pass to Charlie Henningan and added another touchdown and safety in the fourth period but the rally was too late.

George Blanda capped a 53-yard drive with a 4-yard touchdown to Charles Frazier. The safety came when the Oilers pushed Lamonica out of the end zone.

Swinging Mood Sweeps Feature

CHICAGO (AP) — Swinging Mood, a 3-year-old filly owned by Louis Wolfson of Miami Beach, Fla., led all the way and won the $55,750 Arlington Matron Handicap at Arlington Park Saturday.

Margarethen, 3-1 favorite in the grass race for fillies and mares, finished six lengths behind in second place. Amerivan was third in the field of nine.

Swinging Mood, ridden by Earlie Fires, went the 1⅛ miles under 112 pounds in 1:48 3-5, two-fifths of a second short of the track record held by Hard Rock Man.

Swinging Mood paid $12.80, $6 and $4.40. Margarethen returned $4.40 and $3.40. Amervan's show price was $7.20.

Pokes Drop Boys Of Bay On Tosses

DALLAS (AP) — Don Meredith threw two touchdown passes to Bob Hayes and the Dallas defense was never finer Saturday as the Cowboys beat the Green Bay Packers 21-3.

It was the second straight year the Cowboys defeated the world champion Packers along the National Football League exhibition trail.

A crowd of 75,504 jammed the Cotton Bowl to see if the Cowboys could repeat last season's 21-12 triumph. It was the largest crowd in the exhibition season, bettering the all-star crowd at Chicago by more than 3,000.

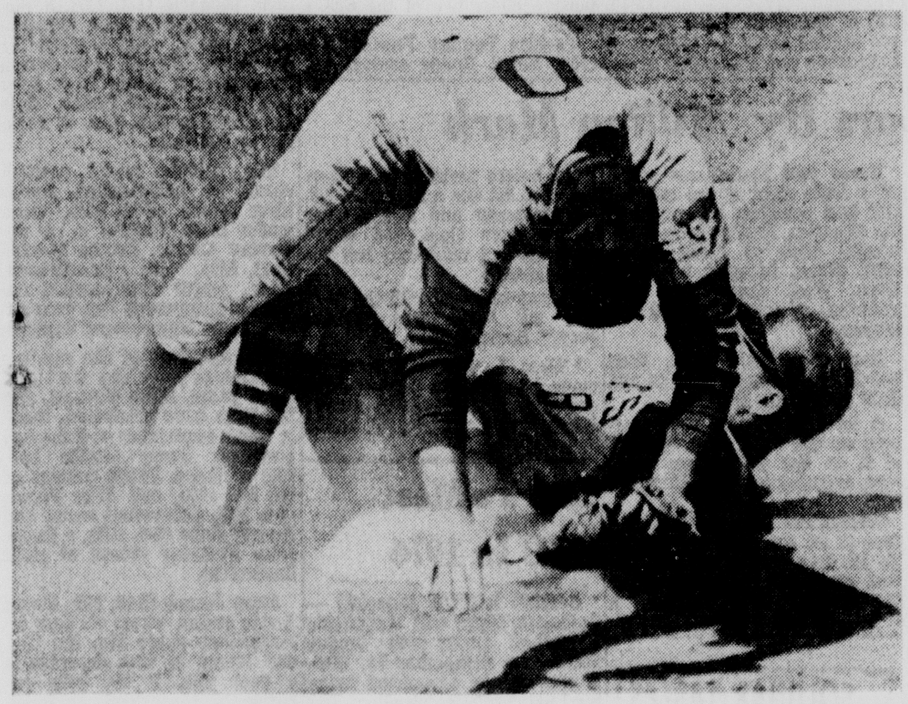

Dallas missed four field goal tries and an 85-yard punt return for a touchdown by Hayes was nullified by a clipping penalty.

Pass interceptions not only halted strong bids for touchdowns by Green Bay but also set up the Dallas touchdown drives that swept 80 and 89 yards. A pass interception by Leroy Jordan set up the other Dallas touchdown.

A pass interception also led to Green Bay's only score — a 12-yard field goal by Don Chandler. Pettis Norman deflected a pass from Meredith and Tom Brown plucked it from the air and ran 13 yards to the Dallas 18. Green Bay could get only to the four.

Meredith's first touchdown shot to Hayes was for 22 yards. His second was for 35.

Bucs Edge Cubs, Hold League Lead

Mazeroski Launches 3-2 Win With Homer

CHICAGO (AP) — Bill Mazeroski's towering homer leading off the seventh inning cracked a 1-1 tie and launched the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 3-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs Saturday.

The Pirates, ending a three-game losing streak clung to first place in the National League.

Mazeroski's blast into the left field stands—his 12th— broke a pitching duel between the Cubs' Bill Hands, 8-11, and Tommy Sisk, 8-2.

Hands had held the Pirates to five hits until Mazeroski's blow while Sisk had yielded four.

Tempers flared in the cub half of the seventh when catcher Randy Hundley, protesting a called third strike, had a chest-bumping episode with Plate Umpire Harry Wendelstedt and was chased.

Manager Leo Durocher hurried to the plate to try to calm his rookie, who finally stomped to the dugout.

Once there, Hundley was told to get off the bench and go to the locker room by first base Umpire Shag Crawford. This touched off another exchange with Leo interceding before Hundley left for the showers.

The pirates took a 1-0 lead in the third on Jesse Gonder's single, Sisk's sacrifice and Matty Alou's triple.

In the sixth, Billy Williams, who had tripled to the center field wall in the first inning, unloaded his 22nd home run into the right center field bleachers against a stiff wind to tie the game.

Then came Mazeroski's homer, which he followed up with a sacrifice fly in the eighth that put Pittsburgh on top 3-1.

Shortstop Don Kessinger's two-base throwing error in the eighth on Roberto Clemente's roller, a free pass to Willie Stargell and Don Clendenon's slow hopper loaded the bases with one out.

Mazeroski then popped to short center, Kessinger making an over-the-shoulder catch. But Clemente beat the relay to the plate.

That turned out to be the margin of victory when the Cubs scored in the ninth with the aid of an error by first baseman Clendenon.

Cepeda's Single In 13th Gives Cards 3-2 Win From Dodgers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Orlando Cepeda's run-scoring single in the 13th inning gave the St. Louis Cardinals a 3-2 victory over Los Angeles Saturday.

The loss dropped the third-place Dodgers three games behind the National League-leading Pittsburgh Pirates, who beat Chicago 3-2.

With one out in the 13th, Curt Flood singled off Dodger reliever Ron Perranoski. Flood raced to third on Tim McCarver's single and, after Joe Moeller replaced Perranoski, Cepeda came through with a single to center, scoring Flood.

Ron Piche, who pitched the last two innings for St. Louis, was the winner.

Julian Javier's second homer of the game gave the Cardinals a 2-1 edge in the seventh inning but the Dodgers tied it in the ninth when Jim Lefebvre, who had homered earlier, drove in Lou Johnson with a single.

Johnson led off the ninth with a single off St. Louis reliever Nelson Briles and took second as Tommy Davis grounded out. Lefebvre then stroked his run-scoring single to right.

Briles had come on for left-hander Al Jackson, who scattered eight hits over the first seven innings before tiring.

John Pitches Three-Hitter As Chisox Top Indians, 4-1

CLEVELAND (AP) —Tommy John pitched a three hitter and hit his second homer of the season Saturday as the Chicago White Sox trimmed Cleveland 4-1, spoiling George Strickland's 1966 debut as the Indians' manager.

Rocky Colavito singled in the second inning and scored the Indians' run on three wild pitches by John, who then settled down and breezed to his 12th victory. The Chicago southpaw homered in the seventh with the bases empty.

Don Buford singled in the first inning and scored when Leon Wagner bobbled Jerry Adair's double in left field. Doubles by Tommie Agee and Al Weis sent the White Sox ahead 2-1 in the fourth and Adair singled across another run in the fifth

Strickland, who filled in as the Indians' pilot after Birdie Tebbetts suffered a heart attack in 1964, was named interim manager Friday night following Tebbetts' resignation.

New Junior Champ Will Rule Cities

A new Twin Cities' junior golf champ will be crowned Monday with the playing of the Fourth Annual Twin City Junior Golf Tournament over Monroe's Municipal course.

Terry Peddy, who won the tourney last year just behind his brother Wayne who won the year before, is not eligible to participate, although early reports said he would defend his title.

The Ruston High School junior lived in West Monroe at the time of his victory but since moved to Ruston. The tournament is open to residents of Monroe and West Monroe only, ages 8-17.

Play is in boys and girls age brackets.

The competition is expected to net some 30 trophies and cups for the participants, the largest number of awards ever given in the tournament's history, according to club professional Johnny Myers.

The tournament will also give definite recognition to the Twin Cities' girl junior champ.

Contestants have until 8 a.m. Monday to register for the tourney, although they are urged to register by calling the club pro shop today. The 8 a.m. Monday deadline is for those who are not sure they will be able to play until Monday morning.

A tentative tournament schedule calls for:

All boys and girls between the ages of 8-13 to tee off bewteen 8 and 9 a.m.; boys 13-14 between 9-10; and ages 15-17 between 10-11; boys 8-10 will tee off on number five and play five holes; girls 11-13 will tee off on number three and play seven holes; boys 11-17 will play 18 holes.

A hole-in-one contest will be held on number eight and a long driving contest will be conducted off number 10 tee.

The course will be closed to regular play until the last foursome of the tournament has left the tee.

Balls and clubs will be furnished free of charge to players without their own equipment.

Warren Spahn's Suitcase Stolen

FARMINGTON, N.M. (AP) — A suitcase belonging to former pitching great Warren Spahn was taken Thursday night in a Farmington motel lobby.

Spahn said it contained two World Series rings, which he valued at about $400, plus his clothing and a sizable amount of money.

Spahn was in Farmington as a guest of the Connie Mack Baseball World Series which began Friday night.

He and former New York Yankee Andy Carey conducted pitching and hitting clinics for an estimated 250 youngsters.

Boston Cuts Out Raiders

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — The Boston Patriots scored two touchdowns in the fourth quarter to defeat the Oakland Raiders, 21-10, Saturday evening in the American Football League's first doubleheader.

Trailing 10-7 going into the final period, Boston quarterback Babe Parilli threw nine yards to Jim Whalen on the second play of the quarter.

Boston added an insurance touchdown midway in the final quarter when defensive halfback Dick Felt snared a pass thrown by Oakland's Charlie Green and raced 45 yards down the left sideline.

The Patriots opened the game's scoring with 23 seconds left in the first half when quarterback John Huarte culminated an 80-yard drive with a 15-yard pass to Whalen.

Oakland scored first in the third period on a one-yard plunge by Hewitt Dixon. With 52 seconds left in the quarter, Mike Mercer booted a 21-yard field goal, ending a drive which began on the Oakland 2.

An estimated 35,000 watched Boston win its first exhibition game after 17 straight losses dating back to 1962.

Tim Brown To Receive Diploma

MUNCIE, Ind. (AP) — Philadelphia Eagles halfback Tim Brown received his bachelor of science degree in education Friday at Ball State University's summer commencement.

Brown, a native of Knightstown, Ind., left Ball State in 1959 without his degree because he lacked requirements for a double major. But a rule change, effective when Ball State became a university, calls for only one major and a minor, making Brown eligible for a diplomat.

Bears Trip Washington

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Ritchie Petitbon broke a 10-10 tie by running 70 yards with a recovered fumble for a Chicago touchdown Saturday night and the Bears went on to defeat the Washington Redskins 24-10 in a National Football League exhibition game.

Petitbon picked up the ball when Dick Shiner fumbled the pass from center on a field goal attempt late in the third quarter.

The Bears, now 2-1 in exhibitions, turned two fumble recoveries and a pass interception by Doug Buffone into touchdowns.

Gale Sayers, rookie of the year in the NFL last year, scored twice — from the three in the first period and from the two in the fourth. His first touchdown capped an 83-yard drive, begun when Dickie Evy recovered a fumble. The second came after Buffone's theft.

Washington overcame a 7-0 deficit and led 10-7 in the second quarter. Sonny Jurgensen scored on a bootleg from a yard out after triggering a 44-yard push with three pass completions.

Charlie Gogolak, Washington's expensive field-goal kicker, put the Redskins ahead with a 17-yard field goal. Earlier, he had one attempt blocked and was wide on another.

Roger LeClerc of the Bears kicked a 26-yard field goal with 70 seconds left in the half to tie the score at 10-10. Petitbon's run came after the Redskins had moved from their 20 to the Chicago 27.

NON-THROWING QUARTERBACKS

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Five members of Louisiana State University's 1966 football team, all former high school quarterbacks, will not throw a pass in 1966. The five, all members of the Tigers' defensive squad, are Mickey Christian, Magnolia, Ark., defensive end; Mitch Worley, Dallas, Tex., linebacker; Jerry Joseph, University High of Baton Rouge, cornerback; Fred Mixon, Amite, cornerback, and James "Coot" Lambert, Canton, Miss., safety.

Hearing Slated On Prize Fight

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The chairman of the Nevada State Athletic Commission said Saturday that a hearing will be set to consider a protest in the Jose Torres-Eddie Cotton fight.

Chairman George Foley said the protest was lodged on behalf of Cotton, a Seattle, Wash., light heavyweight, by his attorney, Clay Nixon.

Nixon contended that the 14th round of the fight was ended 20 seconds ahead of its scheduled three minute length, thus possibly depriving Cotton of a knockout or other advantage.

Foley said he doubted the commission could meet before mid-September, adding commissioners would have to determine both the facts and whether any remedy exists.

Nixon asked that the fight be declared no contest, Foley said. Torres won a unanimous decision in the 15-round title bout.

Cliff Richey Takes Upset From Roche

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Cliff Richey of Dallas, Tex., upset second-seeded Tony Roche 6-2, 6-3, 7-5 Saturday and moved into the finals of the National Lawn Tennis Hall of Fame tournament opposite Dennis Ralston.

Ralston, this country's Davis Cup ace, top-seeded in the country and No. 1 here, took Arthur Ashe of Los Angeles 4-6, 9-7, 6-2, 62 in the other semifinal.

Richey, No. 3 in the seed here and the national clay court champion, played some of the best tennis of his life in the upset of the left-handed Aussie Roche, who holds the French, Italian and Mexican titles.

He broke service three times in the first set, twice from love-30. In the second set, two sensational backhands enabled him to break in the fifth game, and he also broke in the ninth.

Roche had leads of 2-0 and 3-1 in the third set, but Richey stormed back and won three games in a row. Roche fought back, saved match point four times in the 10th game, then could get only two points in the final two games.

Ralston, from Bakersfield, Calif., served beautifully, but lost his service in the long ninth game of the first set. The lone break in the second set was by Ralston in the 16th game, but he swept through Ashe without trouble in the final two sets.

The hall of fame ceremony also was held, with the induction of three former national champions. They are Frank A. Parker, Jr., Ted Schroeder and the late Navy Lt. Joe Hunt. Aslo inducted was Theodore Roosevelt Pell of Port Washington, N.Y.

Orioles Erupt In 5th To Defeat Tigers, 8-3

DETROIT (AP) —Russ Snyder hit a bases-loaded triple, then scored himself on a wild pitch in a five-run fifth inning that carried the Baltimore Orioles to an 8-3 victory over the Detroit Tigers Saturday.

The triumph snapped a four-game Tiger winning streak and again put the first place Orioles 13½ games in front of Detroit in the American League.

Willie Horton and Mickey Stanley collided while going after Dave Johnson's high fly opening the fifth inning and Horton was charged with an error.

Andy Etchebarren singled to right field and Johnson scored on a single by pitcher Dave McNally. Luis Aparicio walked to load the bases and Snyder hit his triple chasing Tiger starter Denny McLain.

McLain, 14-11 and loser of seven games in his last eight decisions since the All-Star break, was touched for successive homers by Boog Powell and Curt Blefary in the second inning.

Powell was hit on the first joint of his ring finger on the left hand in the fourth inning and gave way to a pinch-hitter in the fifth.

Horton spoiled McNally's shutout bid in the eighth when he homered following Jerry Lumpe's single and a walk to Norm Cash.

The Oriolse had added another run in the sixth when Etchebarren singled, was sacrificed to second and came home on Aparicio's single.

McNally, 13-3 gave way to reliever Eddie Fisher after walking the first two hitters he faced in the ninth.

Phils Squeeze Past New York In 11, 5-4

PHILADELPHIA (AP) —Bill White doubled with two out in the 11th inning and scored on Tony Gonzalez' single, lifting the Philadelphia Phillies past the New York Mets 5-4 Saturday.

The Phillies scored three runs in the seventh with the help of two New York errors for a 4-3 lead but the Mets tied it in the ninth on Cleon Jones' single and a pinch hit double by Ron Swoboda.

White led off the Phils' seventh with an infield hit and Chuck Hiller dropped the throw on Gonzalez' potential double play grounder to third. After Clay Dalrymple sacrificed, Dick Groat scored White with a single to left and Gonzalez also came across on Larrry Elliot's wild throw. Pinch hitter Doug Clemens then singled home the lead run.

Kemp Led Bills Topple Houston

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. AP) — Jack Kemp passed for three touchdowns in the first half Saturday night, one on an 80-yard shot, and led Buffalo to a 28-16 American Football League exhibition victory over Houston.

Kemp, most valuable player in the AFL last year, threw scoring passes of 5 and 88 yards to Elbert Dubenion and passed 18 yards for another to rookie halfback Bobby Burnett of Arkansas.

Kemp hit on 10 of 20 passes for 188 yards and watched from the bench in the second half as Daryl Lamonica added the other Buffalo touchdown on a 28-yard pass to Roookie Alllen Sm of Fort Valley State.

The Oilers scored in the first quarter on Jacky Lee's 12-yard pass to Charlie Henningan and added another touchdown and safety in the fourth period but the rally was too late.

George Blanda capped a 53-yard drive with a 4-yard touchdown to Charles Frazier. The safety came when the Oilers pushed Lamonica out of the end zone.

Swinging Mood Sweeps Feature

CHICAGO (AP) — Swinging Mood, a 3-year-old filly owned by Louis Wolfson of Miami Beach, Fla., led all the way and won the $55,750 Arlington Matron Handicap at Arlington Park Saturday.

Margarethen, 3-1 favorite in the grass race for fillies and mares, finished six lengths behind in second place. Amerivan was third in the field of nine.

Swinging Mood, ridden by Earlie Fires, went the 1⅛ miles under 112 pounds in 1:48 3-5, two-fifths of a second short of the track record held by Hard Rock Man.

Swinging Mood paid $12.80, $6 and $4.40. Margarethen returned $4.40 and $3.40. Amerivan's show price was $7.20.

Pokes Drop Boys Of Bay On Tosses

DALLAS (AP) — Don Meredith threw two touchdown passes to Bob Hayes and the Dallas defense was never finer Saturday as the Cowboys beat the Green Bay Packers 21-3.

It was the second straight year the Cowboys defeated the world champion Packers along the National Football League exhibition trail.

A crowd of 75,504 jammed the Cotton Bowl to see if the Cowboys could repeat last season's 21-12 triumph. It was the largest crowd in the exhibition season, bettering the all-star crowd at Chicago by more than 3,000.

Dallas missed four field goal tries and an 85-yard punt return for a touchdown by Hayes was nullified by a clipping penalty.

Pass interceptions not only halted strong bids for touchdowns by Green Bay but also set up the Dallas touchdown drives that swept 80 and 89 yards. A pass interception by Leroy Jordan set up the other Dallas touchdown.

A pass interception also led to Green Bay's only score — a 12-yard field goal by Don Chandler. Pettis Norman deflected a pass from Meredith and Tom Brown plucked it from the air and ran 13 yards to the Dallas 18. Green Bay could get only to the four.

Meredith's first touchdown shot to Hayes was for 22 yards. His second was for 35.

SAN FRANCISCO right hander Gaylord Perry delivers to Atlanta Braves Eddie Mathews in the first inning Saturday on his way to becoming first 20 game winner in National League. Perry pitched Giants to 6-1 victory over the Braves. (AP Wirephoto)

Perry Gets 20th Win

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Gaylord Perry, given home run support by Willie Mays and Willie McCovey, became the first 20-game winner in the major leagues Saturday by checking the Atlanta Braves 6-1 on a five-hitter.

Mays crashed his sixth homer in the last eight games and McCovey blasted a two-run homer, helping Perry boost his record to 20-2 and keeping the Giants within percentage points of the National League lead. They are two points behind first place Pittsburgh, which edged Chicago 3-2 Saturday

In addition to the most victories, Perry has the best winning percentage, .909, of any starting pitcher in the majors.

The slender right-hander had never won more than 12 games in any of his previous seasons with the Giants. His record last year was 8-12.

He was 0-7 lifetime against Atlanta before this season but has beaten the Braves twice without a loss this year.

Hal Lanier drove in three runs with two singles and a triple in the Giants' 10-hit attack against loser Tony Cloninger and two successors.

Mays' 32nd home run gave the Giants a 2-0 lead in the third and he opened the fifth with a double before McCovey drilled his 25th homer.

Lanier broke the game open in the seventh with his third hit, a two-run triple that scored McCovey and Haller.

McCovey opened the second with a single and was forced by Tom Haller for the second out. Two wild pitches moved Haller to third before Lanier singled for the first run.

Mays' home run, his sixth in eight games on the Giants' current home stand, made it 2-0 in the third.

Singles by Ed Mathews, Rico Carty and Mack Jones produced an Atlanta run in the fourth.

Mays opened the fifth with a double into the left field corner and McCovey drilled the next pitch over the right field fence for his 25th home run of the season.

When Haller singled, an out later, Jay Ritchie relieved Cloninger, who was tagged for eight of the Giants' 10 hits.

Thanks to Lanier, Perry had a four-hitter going into the eighth. The second baseman took a bloop hit away from Joe Torre in the fourth with a good running catch. Then, in the seventh, Lanier made a lunging dive to spear Ty Cline's line drive.

Yanks Score 7 In First, Topple Kansas City, 8-5

NEW YORK (AP) — Bobby Richardson singled twice in a seven-run first-inning explosion that powered the New York Yankees to an 8-5 victory over Kansas City Saturday night.

Five hits, three walks and a hit batsman contributed to the Yankees' biggest inning of the season and helped right-hander Mel Stottlemyre struggle to his 11th victory in 25 decisions.

Gil Blanco, the A's starter, walked Roy White, was clipped for Richardson's first single and hit Tom Tresh with a pitch, loading the bases in the first. Clete Boyer rapped a two-run single, Elston Howard singled a run across and Lou Clinton delivered another with a double before Ken Sanders replaced Blanco.

A bases-loaded walk to Stottlemyre, a ground out and Richardson's second hit drove in the last three runs in the inning.

Clinton boosted the Yanks' lead to 8-0 with a second-inning homer.

Better Defense Could Get Tigers Over Rough Spots

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Defense may not be a cure-all for Louisiana State's problems, but better defensive play by the Tigers could help Charley McClendon's Bayou Bengals get over some rough spots that the 1966 schedule is certain to provide.

In 1965 combat, LSU's Tigers surrendered 157 points and 2,462 yards, a defensive effort that was inconsistent and disappointing to say the least.

One of McClendon's major aims for '66 is to develop a defense that will improve on the '65 performance in the face of talented offensive quarterbacks like Mike Fair of South Carolina, Bill Miller of Miami, Steve Spurrier of Florida and Jody Graves of Ole Miss.

There is little question of the steem that McClendon and other Southeastern Conference coaches have for the value of a sound defense. "A good offense certainly compliments your defense because you have the ability to control the football," McClendon says. "But if you can't stop the other team, you don't have much chance of winning."

McClendon is looking for better defensive play in 1966. "For one thing we'll have more speed this year and that should help."

Although there are some gaps to be filled and depth to be developed at several positions, the 14 defensive lettermen returning from '65 should form the nucleus of the starting unit for the coming season.

At left end there's 6-1, 215-pound junior John Garlington of Hodge. His rugged end play was climaxed by a sterling performance in the Cotton Bowl. If he continued to improve the only problem at that position would be a lack of experienced depth.

The right end job should fall to junior letterman Mike Robichaux (6-1, 205) of Thibodaux, whos excellent speed helped him make some big plays as a sophomore. Backing him up is letterman Wayne Sessions (5-10, 195) of Springhill. Tiger coaches are excited about the tandem of Robichaux and Garlington at defensive ends, two of the SEC's finest.

Tackles Tommy Fussell (6-1, 230), Baton Rouge senior, and John Demarie (6-2, 230), a senior from Lake Charles, figure to be a pair of solid starters for the Tigers. Fussell is supported by letterman junior Jack Dyer (6-2, 220) of Baton Rouge, while an all-sophomore cast is backing up Demarie.

The middle guard position should be well-manned. Senior Mike Duhon (5-11, 205), stock leader from Sulphur is a returning starter. Ronnie Manton (5-11, 220), the Brookhaven, Miss., junior who handled the kickoff assignment last year offers some experienced depth.

Although both of the starting linebackers from the Cotton Bowl game, Mike Vincent, and Bill Bass have graduated, there is some experience at these key positions. Benny Griffin (6-0, 205) of Baton Rouge returns at the left side, and Mike Pharis (6-0, 205), Shreveport senior and Ronald Jeter (5-9, 205), a junior from Ferriday return at right linebacker.

Jerry Joseph (5-10, 175), Baton Rouge senior, whose six pass interceptions made him the Tigers' leader in that department a year ago, is the only experienced cornerback on hand. He was a pre-season All-SEC selection, but depth at left cornerback will be provided by sophomores. At right cornerback every candidate is a sophomore.

Leonard Neumann (5-10, 170), a senior from Tallulah, and Sammy Grezaffi (5-10, 170), a junior from New Roads, provide the experinece at the safety positions. But both will look to in experienced players for relief.

Neumann is a hard-hitting competitor and a leader in the defensive secondary. Grezaffi's exceptional speed makes him a threat with punt returns and errant passes, and his presence in the secondary should help the Tiger defensive perimeter be one of the fastest in the SEC.

Buckpasser Soars By Million Mark

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) — Buckpasser became a millionaire Saturday, coming from far off the pace in a stretch drive to win the $82,600 Travers at Saratoga Race Course.

The son of Tom Fool-Busanda, carrying the black silks of Ogden Phipps, earned $53,690 for his ninth straight victory in 10 starts this year and boosted his bank account to $1,038,369 as he joined thoroughbred racing's most exclusive club.

Only Kelso, Round Table, Nashua, Carry Back and Citation won more than $1 million, and Buckpasser became the first 3-year-old to be admitted to the group. He did it by matching the track record of 2:01 3-5 for the 1 ¼ miles.

The three-quarter-length triumph over Reginald Webster's Amberoid, winner of the Belmont Stakes, came after Buckpasser's many backers in the crowd of 28,014, had all but given up hope.

He was far, far back in the early going and about four lengths off the pace as the field swung into the home stretch with one-quarter-mile remaining, with Amberoid running like a wild horse on the front end.

Sports add 21-2 Buckpasser

Then Braulio Baeza gave Buckpassser a crack of his whip, and the big bay took off. He quickly picked up Abe's Hope and Buffle and drew level with Amberoid with a little more than one-eighth mile remaining. For a couple of strides the pair raced even and then Buckpasser took off again.

Baeza said Buckpasser eased off a little right at the end but still had complete command of the situation. Buffle finished 3½ lengths back of Amberoid in third place, followed by Abe's Hope, Fast Count and Stupendous, a stablemate of the winner.

Buckpasser paid $2.60, $2.20 and $2.20. Amberoid paid $4 and $2.20 and Buffle $2.20.

A total of $343,433 was wagered on the race, with $266,940 of it on the Buckpasser combine, creating a $38,256.20 minus pool.

Stupendous was put into the race to set the pace and he did his job to a perfection. He carried the small field through a 23 1-5-second first quarter, a 47 2-5 half and a 1:11 2-5 six furlongs before yielding to Amberoid, who hit the mile in 1-36 2-5.

Buckpasser and Baeza were biding their time and didn't start moving until they left the back stretch.

"I was satisfied with the pace and my horse was running easy," Baeza said.

'When I asked my horse to move between the three-eighths and the quarter pole he moved faster than I wanted. He really took off."

Perry Gets 20th Win

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Gaylord Perry, given home run support by Willie Mays and Willie McCovey, became the first 20-game winner in the major leagues Saturday by checking the Atlanta Braves 6-1 on a five-hitter.

Mays crashed his sixth homer in the last eight games and McCovey blasted a two-run homer, helping Perry boost his record to 20-2 and keeping the Giants within percentage points of the National League lead. They are two points behind first place Pittsburgh, which edged Chicago 3-2 Saturday

In addition to the most victories, Perry has the best winning percentage, .909, of any starting pitcher in the majors.

The slender right-hander had never won more than 12 games in any of his previous seasons with the Giants. His record last year was 8-12.

He was 0-7 lifetime against Atlanta before this season but has beaten the Braves twice without a loss this year.

Hal Lanier drove in three runs with two singles and a triple in the Giants' 10-hit attack against loser Tony Cloninger and two successors.

Mays' 32nd home run gave the Giants a 2-0 lead in the third and he opened the fifth with a double before McCovey drilled his 25th homer.

Lanier broke the game open in the seventh with his third hit, a two-run triple that scored McCovey and Haller.

McCovey opened the second with a single and was forced by Tom Haller for the second out. Two wild pitches moved Haller to third before Lanier singled for the first run.

Mays' home run, his sixth in eight games on the Giants' current home stand, made it 2-0 in the third.

Singles by Ed Mathews, Rico Carty and Mack Jones produced an Atlanta run in the fourth.

Mays opened the fifth with a double into the left field corner and McCovey drilled the next pitch over the right field fence for his 25th home run of the season.

When Haller singled, an out later, Jay Ritchie relieved Cloninger, who was tagged for eight of the Giants' 10 hits.

Thanks to Lanier, Perry had a four-hitter going into the eighth. The second baseman took a bloop hit away from Joe Torre in the fourth with a good running catch. Then, in the seventh, Lanier made a lunging dive to spear Ty Cline's line drive.

Yanks Score 7 In First, Topple Kansas City, 8-5

NEW YORK (AP) — Bobby Richardson singled twice in a seven-run first-inning explosion that powered the New York Yankees to an 8-5 victory over Kansas City Saturday night.

Five hits, three walks and a hit batsman contributed to the Yankees' biggest inning of the season and helped right-hander Mel Stottlemyre struggle to his 11th victory in 25 decisions.

Gil Blanco, the A's starter, walked Roy White, was clipped for Richardson's first single and hit Tom Tresh with a pitch, loading the bases in the first. Clete Boyer rapped a two-run single, Elston Howard singled a run across and Lou Clinton delivered another with a double before Ken Sanders replaced Blanco.

A bases-loaded walk to Stottlemyre, a ground out and Richardson's second hit drove in the last three runs in the inning.

Clinton boosted the Yanks' lead to 8-0 with a second-inning homer.

LSU To Meet OSU In 1976

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Louisiana State will inaugurate a football series with Oregon State here September 18, 1976, it was jointly announced today by LSU athletic director Jim Corbett and OSU's athletic director James Barratt.

Not only will it be the Tigers' first meeting with the Beavers of Corvallis, Ore., but LSU's first football competition against a West Coast team since the 1938 Sugar Bowl game with Santa Clara.

It is the third inter-sectional series of note that Corbett lined up recently. The Tiger athletic director previously announced a two-game home-and-home arrangement with both Notre Dame, beginning in 1970, and the University of Wisconsin, beginning in 1971.

The date of LSU's return game with Oregon State in Corvallis wasn't announced.

Brother Acts Trend In Greenie's Camps

NEW ORLEANS (Special) — Brother acts seem to be the new trend in football leadership at Tulane, which has seen two outstanding sets of brothers serving as team captains less than a decade.

The current member of that select group is senior end Jerry Colquette, tri-captain of the 1966 Green Wave along with Lanis O'Steen and Pete Johns. Jerry's older brother, Ernie, was captain of the 1962 Tulane gridders.

Ernie, a 220-pound tackle, earned three varsity letters, represented Tulane in the North-South Game and the All-America Bowl, and brought such rave notices in the Green Wave brochure as "probably the best all-around football player on the squad."

"Little brother" Jerry is doing all right for himself, too. He led the team in pass receiving and ranked second in the Southeastern Conference in that department last year, outdone only by Florida All-American Charley Casey. A 190-pound end from DeRidder, La., Jerry stands a good chance for national recognition as the Green Wave enters its first season as a major Southern independent this fall.

The other brother combination of recent vantage was Claude "Boo" Mason, co-captain with Jim Blount in 1958, and Tommy Mason, captain of the 1960 Tulane troop. "Boo" was a 165-pound halfback and earned three varsity letters. Tommy emerged as the most honored player in modern Tulane history. He was named All-American and first team All-SEC, and took the Green Wave colors to the East-West Shrine Game, the Hula Bowl, the Coaches' All-American Game, and the College All-Star Game. Tommy is currently an established performer in the pro ranks with the Minnesota Vikings.

With talent like the Masons and the Colquettes, Tulane mentor Jim Pittman certainly has no objections to "keeping it in the family."

Koufax Talks Of Retirement

LOS ANGELES (AP) —Sandy Koufax says he's more concerned with helping the Los Angeles Dodgers win the National League pennant than he is with his painful arthritic left elbow.

But he admits that the pain is so great that he's considering retirement.

"It's a matter of how long I can stand the pain," Koufax said. "It's a decision I won't make until I have to.

"The main thing on my mind now is to help the Dodger win another pennant."

The tall left-hander who has 19 victories this season and four career no-hitters, insists he'll pitch Sunday against St. Louis and Ray Washzurn.

Wednesday night against Cincinnati, he left the game in the fifth inning after suffering great pain. This was followed by a shot of cortisone, his second within the month, designed to inhibit pain and swelling.

At 30, Koufax draws an annual salary well over $100,000 and has a sparkling record that includes two Cy Young awards. Last season he won 26 games as the Dodgers won the pennant and two more games in their World Series triumph.

He first learned of the arthritic condition in March, 1965, and since then, as Dodger physician Dr. Robert Kerlan has put it, "must feel twinges with every pitch."

"They said it would get progressively worse," Koufax said, "and it has."

Koufax loosened up on the sidelines Friday and scheduled some running Saturday, adding, "I'll still start against St. Louis today."

Angels Snap Losing Skein On 5-4 Note

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eighth-inning singles by Ed Kirkpatrick and Lew Burdette drove in two runs and helped the California Angels break a five-game losing streak Saturday afternoon with a 5-4 victory over the Washington Senators.

Starter George Brunet of the Angels took a three-run lead into the bottom of the seventh, but the Senators tied it 3-3, with the big hit a two-run triple by pinch hitter Willie Kirkland off Jay Johnston's glove.

Bob Rodgers opened the eighth for the Angels with a single and after being sacrificed to second was safe at third on an error by Ed Brinkman on Paul Schaal's grounder. Dick Lines relieved Casey Cox and Kirkpatrick and Burdette drove in runs with singles.

Defense Pleases Kentucky Coach

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky Coach Charlie Bradshaw was pleased with the defense, but worried over the failure of one of his stars to show up as his football team began its fall drills Saturday.

Bradshaw said he had no idea of the whereabouts of Frank Antonini, currently rated as the second team fullback.

Antonini, of Ambridge, Pa., attended a briefing session earlier this week, the coach said, but failed to appear for Friday's picture session or Saturday's twin workouts.

Bradshaw said his defensive unit "is in better shape and showed more pride than the offense" in the opening day practice. He added that the defensive backs were the best group on the field.

In the defensive secondary for Kentucky are senior Jerry Davis at safety and sophomores Al Phaneuf, Dick Lyons and Bill Jansen.

OUACHITA PARISH Sheriff Bailey Grant will again serve as master of ceremonies for the annual Optimist Club gun safety clinic. The two sponsoring clubs have set two separate dates for the event in an effort to give more people a chance to attend.

On Two Dates

Optimist Making Gun Clinic Plans

Plans are being made for two dates of the annual gun and archery safety clinic, sponsored by the Optimist clubs of Monroe and West Monroe.

Clinic dates are Sept. 24 and 25, a Saturday and Sunday. Officials said the two dates were chosen to allow greater attendance. The two days come between the split dove season and the opening of squirrel season.

The clinic is sponsored jointly by the Optimist Club of Greater Monroe and the Twin Cities Optimist Club. Presidents Sheldon Ray and Bob Jackson have appointed LeRoy McGee, Dan LeMoine and Jim H. Branch Jr., as co-chairmen of the event.

According to McGee, spokesman for the chairmen, Ouachita Parish Sheriff Bailey Grant will again serve as clinic master.

Winchester will present a demonstration of firepower of various types of firearms while stressing the safety factors that need to be observed.

The Louisiana Wildlife and Fisheries Commission will supply instructors for safety instructions to small groups so that all youngsters will be able to get individual attention.

The new addition of the archery clinic will include members of local archery clubs and will feature an exhibition by the famous Ben Pearson archery group.

Monroe Zoo Director Kit Beecher will also be on hand to demonstrate the various types of snakes in the Northeast Louisiana area, how to recognize them in their natural habitat, and first aid measures taken in the event of snake bite.

Optimist officials reminded the clinic is free and aimed primarily at the youngsters although parents are urged to attend also.

For those who do not have transportation, the Optimist clubs willl make travel arrangements.

Jo Prentice Scores 73, Takes Lead

MUKWONAGO, Wis. (AP) — Pretty Jo Ann Prentice scored second consecutive 73 to forge a one-stroke lead Saturday in the third round of the $10,000 Women's Western Open Golf Tournament.

The round was marked by a spectacular blow-up by Marlene Bauer Hagge who shot a 15-over par 9 to fall from a first-place tie with Mickey Wright into the ranks of the also-rans.

Miss Wright shot a one-over par 76 after bogeying the 18th hole and slipped into second place with a 226 on the 6,415-yard Rainbow Springs County Club course.

Miss Prentice, of Pensacola, Fla., seeking her first tournament victory of the season, takes a 225 total into Sunday's final round.

Jo Ann, who had a 79 in the opening round, tied Miss Wright when she pitched out of marsh grass to within four feet of the cup on the 12th hole. She sank the putt for a birdie four.

Miss Wright came back with a birdie on the 16th hole after she and Miss Prentice, playing in the same threesome, had bogeyed the troublesome, creek-crossed No. 15 hole.

Mickey had a chance to maintain her share of the lead on the 18th, but her four-foot par putt curled away from the cup.

Mrs. Hagge, who had turned in strong 76 and 74 rounds to jump into a first-place tie, had a nightmarish afternoon.

She collected 12 bogeys and a triple bogey. Most of her problems stemmed from inability to sink putts.

Kathy Whitworth, who came back into contention with a one-under par 74 for a 227 total, was playing in Mrs. Hagge's threesome.

"She couldn't make a putt to save her soul," Kathy said.

"It may seem hard to believe, but I hit the ball a lot better than the score indicates," Mrs. Hagge said. "I just wasn't putting."

Rain Again Postpones Legion Meet

SHERIDAN, Wyo. (AP) —The American Legion Region Seven baseball tournament was halted by rain again today Saturday.

The game between Klamath Falls, Ore., and Anchorage, Alaska, was suspended after six innings with Anchorage leading 4-3.

The rain stopped late Saturday afternoon and helicopters were brought in to dry the outfield grass with the wash from their rotor blades.

The infield was convered each time the rain started.

The tournament is now two days behind schedule and authorities have scheduled a full day for today.

Klamath Falls and Anchorage will resume their game at 12:30 p.m, Yakima, Wash., will play Billings Mont., at 1:30 p.m. and Lewiston, Idaho will play Casper, Wyo., at 5:30.

At 8:30 p.m. the loser of the Klamath Fall - Anchorage game will play the loser of the Yakkkima - Billings game.

The tournament must be completed in time for the regional champions to start in the Little World Series of Baseball Saturday. Estimated completion day is Wednesday — or possibly Thursday.

Bob McCullough Quits Broncos

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Veteran lineman Bob McCullough has announced a neck injury has forced him to quit the Denver Broncos and professional football.

McCullough, who is 25, said four doctors told him he could be paralyzed for life if he reinjures his neck. He has separated vertabrae in his neck four times, mostly recently in practice two weeks ago.

Browns Roll To Easy Win Over Falcons

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Cleveland turned back four Atlanta threats set up by the Browns' offensive errors and rolled to a 42-3 conquest of the Falcons behind the passing of Frank Ryan and the running of Leroy Kelly in an exhibition football game Saturday night.

The whipping was the worst ever for the Falcons, the National Football League's newest entry, which has lost all four of its preseason tests.

Rookie linebacker Tommy Nobis intercepted two passes, halfback Ron Smith picked off one and rookie Nick Rassas recovered a fumble—alll deep in Cleveland territory—but the Falcons never were able to move the mighty Brown line.

Ryan hit rookie end Milt Morin of Massachusetts on a 70-yard scoring pass and tossed a 9-yard touchdown strike to Kelly in the first half, starting the Browns to their second exhibition victory in three tests.

Before he was relieved early in the third quarter, Ryan had hit on eight of 18 passes for 268 yards.

Quarterback Jim Ninowski guided the Browns to their next two scores, tossing an 11 - yard touchdown pass to Ralph Smith and directing a 58-yard march capped by halfback Charley Scales' four - yard scoring plunge.

Scales wrapped up the scoring with a 28-yard touchdown run with two minutes left, after Kelly set up a Cleveland touchdown by returning a punt 70 yards to the Falcons' five.

Keino Runs 2nd Fastest Mile—Not Ready For Ryun

LONDON (AP) — Kenya's Kipchoge Keino ran the second fastest mile ever Saturday — 3:53.4 — but said afterward he didn't think he was ready to challenge Jim Ryun's world record.

"I wouldn't mind meeting Ryun," the 26-year-old policeman said. "But I don't believe I'll be a really fast miler because I can't do the half-mile fast enough."

Ryun, 19-year-old University of Kansas freshman, ran the mile in 3:51.3 on July 17 at Berkeley, Calif.

Keino's mile, run with meager opposition, featured an international track and field meet at White City Stadium in which American aces shared honors with recent gold medal winners in the Commonwealth Games at Jamaica.

Jim Hines of Oakland, Calif., 21-year-old student at Texas South University in Houston, won the 100 meters in 10.5 seconds and lost the 200 in a photo finish with Marian Dudziak of Poland in 21 seconds flat.

Tommy Smith, a 22-year-old student from Lemore, Calif., captured the 400 members in 45.3 seconds, a British All-Comers record and beat out Trinidad's Wendell Mottley, a former Yale man who won the 440-yard gold medal at Jamaica. Mottley, leading most of the way, clocked :45.7.

Hines said he would have done better if the track hadn't been too heavy. "I like things a bit more bouncy so that I can bring out my full power," he added.

There was speculation that Keino would make a bid to crack Ryun's month-old record but, even if he had been so-moved, conditions were against him.

The competition was very weak. Keino said he was tired from the recent Commonwealth Games at which he won both the mile and three miles. And he was bothered by the wind.

He won by 50 yards over Britain's Derek Graham, clocked in 3:59.2, with Alan Simpson, another Englishman, third in 3:59.8, and Ralph Duboll of Australia fourth in 4:00.5. Tim Danielson, a 17-year-old American schoolboy from Chula Vista, Calif., was seventh and last in 4:11.3.

Keino's time for the first lap was 60.1 seconds and he hit the halfmile 10 yards in front in 1:58.1. Simpson tried to stay with the flying Kenyan but soon fell back. Keino, pulling away, hit the three-quarters in 2:55. He got a great ovation as he broke the tape.

The time bettered the listed world record of 3:53.6 set by France's Michel Jazy but fell 2 1-10 seconds below Ryun's mark.

"I didn't think the world record was possible because I was beginning to feel the effect of a strong wind at the end of the first lap," Keino said. "The wind bothered me. I didn't have the finishing kick I needed for the world record."

He also blamed his lack of early pace. "I'd appreciate it if someone ran ahead of me for the first half and then perhaps I could do something," he said.

Full Schedule Set At Track

A full schedule of stock car racing will be offered at West Monroe's Traweek Speedway today, beginning with time trials at 1:30 o'clock.

Actual races will begin at 2 o'clock or shortly thereafter, depending on time necessary to complete the time trials.

Races offered will include the fast and slow features, fast and slow heats, plus trophy dashes.

The track is just off the Jonesboro road near Cheniere creek.

Defense Pleases Kentucky Coach

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky Coach Charlie Bradshaw was pleased with the defense, but worried over the failure of one of his stars to show up as his football team began its fall drills Saturday.

Bradshaw said he had no idea of the whereabouts of Frank Antonini, currently rated as the second team fullback.

Antonini, of Ambridge, Pa., attended a briefing session earlier this week, the coach said, but failed to appear for Friday's picture session or Saturday's twin workouts.

Bradshaw said his defensive unit "is in better shape and showed more pride than the offense" in the opening day practice. He added that the defensive backs were the best group on the field.

In the defensive secondary for Kentucky are senior Jerry Davis at safety and sophomores Al Phaneuf, Dick Lyons and Bill Jansen.

Jo Prentice Scores 73, Takes Lead

MUKWONAGO, Wis. (AP) — Pretty Jo Ann Prentice scored second consecutive 73 to forge a one-stroke lead Saturday in the third round of the $10,000 Women's Western Open Golf Tournament.

The round was marked by a spectacular blow-up by Marlene Bauer Hagge who shot a 15-over par 9 to fall from a first-place tie with Mickey Wright into the ranks of the also-rans.

Miss Wright shot a one-over par 76 after bogeying the 18th hole and slipped into second place with a 226 on the 6,415-yard Rainbow Springs County Club course.

Miss Prentice, of Pensacola, Fla., seeking her first tournament victory of the season, takes a 225 total into Sunday's final round.

Jo Ann, who had a 79 in the opening round, tied Miss Wright when she pitched out of marsh grass to within four feet of the cup on the 12th hole. She sank the putt for a birdie four.

Miss Wright came back with a birdie on the 16th hole after she and Miss Prentice, playing in the same threesome, had bogeyed the troublesome, creek-crossed No. 15 hole.

Mickey had a chance to maintain her share of the lead on the 18th, but her four-foot par putt curled away from the cup.

Mrs. Hagge, who had turned in strong 76 and 74 rounds to jump into a first-place tie, had a nightmarish afternoon.

She collected 12 bogeys and a triple bogey. Most of her problems stemmed from inability to sink putts.

Kathy Whitworth, who came back into contention with a one-under par 74 for a 227 total, was playing in Mrs. Hagge's threesome.

"She couldn't make a putt to save her soul," Kathy said.

"It may seem hard to believe, but I hit the ball a lot better than the score indicates," Mrs. Hagge said. "I just wasn't putting."

Bob McCullough Quits Broncos

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Veteran lineman Bob McCullough has announced a neck injury has forced him to quit the Denver Broncos and professional football.

McCullough, who is 25, said four doctors told him he could be paralyzed for life if he reinjures his neck. He has separated vertabrae in his neck four times, mostly recently in practice two weeks ago.

OUACHITA PARISH Sheriff Bailey Grant will again serve as master of ceremonies for the annual Optimist Club gun safety clinic. The two sponsoring clubs have set two separate dates for the event in an effort to give more people a chance to attend.

On Two Dates

Optimist Making Gun Clinic Plans

Plans are being made for two dates of the annual gun and archery safety clinic, sponsored by the Optimist clubs of Monroe and West Monroe.

Clinic dates are Sept. 24 and 25, a Saturday and Sunday. Officials said the two dates were chosen to allow greater attendance. The two days come between the split dove season and the opening of squirrel season.

The clinic is sponsored jointly by the Optimist Club of Greater Monroe and the Twin Cities Optimist Club. Presidents Sheldon Ray and Bob Jackson have appointed LeRoy McGee, Dan LeMoine and Jim H. Branch Jr., as co-chairmen of the event.

According to McGee, spokesman for the chairmen, Ouachita Parish Sheriff Bailey Grant will again serve as clinic master.

Winchester will present a demonstration of firepower of various types of firearms while stressing the safety factors that need to be observed.

The Louisiana Wildlife and Fisheries Commission will supply instructors for safety instructions to small groups so that all youngsters will be able to get individual attention.

The new addition of the archery clinic will include members of local archery clubs and will feature an exhibition by the famous Ben Pearson archery group.

Monroe Zoo Director Kit Beecher will also be on hand to demonstrate the various types of snakes in the Northeast Louisiana area, how to recognize them in their natural habitat, and first aid measures taken in the event of snake bite.

Optimist officials reminded the clinic is free and aimed primarily at the youngsters although parents are urged to attend also.

For those who do not have transportation, the Optimist clubs willl make travel arrangements.

Rain Again Postpones Legion Meet

SHERIDAN, Wyo. (AP) —The American Legion Region Seven baseball tournament was halted by rain again today Saturday.

The game between Klamath Falls, Ore., and Anchorage, Alaska, was suspended after six innings with Anchorage leading 4-3.

The rain stopped late Saturday afternoon and helicopters were brought in to dry the outfield grass with the wash from their rotor blades.

The infield was convered each time the rain started.

The tournament is now two days behind schedule and authorities have scheduled a full day for today.

Klamath Falls and Anchorage will resume their game at 12:30 p.m. Yakima, Wash., will play Billings Mont., at 1:30 p.m. and Lewiston, Idaho will play Casper, Wyo., at 5:30.

At 8:30 p.m. the loser of the Klamath Fall - Anchorage game will play the loser of the Yakkkima - Billings game.

The tournament must be completed in time for the regional champions to start in the Little World Series of Baseball Saturday. Estimated completion day is Wednesday — or possibly Thursday.

Browns Roll To Easy Win Over Falcons

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Cleveland turned back four Atlanta threats set up by the Browns' offensive errors and rolled to a 42-3 conquest of the Falcons behind the passing of Frank Ryan and the running of Leroy Kelly in an exhibition football game Saturday night.

The whipping was the worst ever for the Falcons, the National Football League's newest entry, which has lost all four of its preseason tests.

Rookie linebacker Tommy Nobis intercepted two passes, halfback Ron Smith picked off one and rookie Nick Rassas recovered a fumble—alll deep in Cleveland territory—but the Falcons never were able to move the mighty Brown line.

Ryan hit rookie end Milt Morin of Massachusetts on a 70-yard scoring pass and tossed a 9-yard touchdown strike to Kelly in the first half, starting the Browns to their second exhibition victory in three tests.

Before he was relieved early in the third quarter, Ryan had hit on eight of 18 passes for 268 yards.

Quarterback Jim Ninowski guided the Browns to their next two scores, tossing an 11 - yard touchdown pass to Ralph Smith and directing a 58-yard march capped by halfback Charley Scales' four - yard scoring plunge.

Scales wrapped up the scoring with a 28-yard touchdown run with two minutes left, after Kelly set up a Cleveland touchdown by returning a punt 70 yards to the Falcons' five.

Keino Runs 2nd Fastest Mile—Not Ready For Ryun

LONDON (AP) — Kenya's Kipchoge Keino ran the second fastest mile ever Saturday — 3:53.4 — but said afterward he didn't think he was ready to challenge Jim Ryun's world record.

"I wouldn't mind meeting Ryun," the 26-year-old policeman said. "But I don't believe I'll be a really fast miler because I can't do the half-mile fast enough."

Ryun, 19-year-old University of Kansas freshman, ran the mile in 3:51.3 on July 17 at Berkeley, Calif.

Keino's mile, run with meager opposition, featured an international track and field meet at White City Stadium in which American aces shared honors with recent gold medal winners in the Commonwealth Games at Jamaica.

Jim Hines of Oakland, Calif., 21-year-old student at Texas South University in Houston, won the 100 meters in 10.5 seconds and lost the 200 in a photo finish with Marian Dudziak of Poland in 21 seconds flat.

Tommy Smith, a 22-year-old student from Lemore, Calif., captured the 400 members in 45.3 seconds, a British All-Comers record and beat out Trinidad's Wendell Mottley, a former Yale man who won the 440-yard gold medal at Jamaica. Mottley, leading most of the way, clocked :45.7.

Hines said he would have done better if the track hadn't been too heavy. "I like things a bit more bouncy so that I can bring out my full power," he added.

There was speculation that Keino would make a bid to crack Ryun's month-old record but, even if he had been so-moved, conditions were against him.

The competition was very weak. Keino said he was tired from the recent Commonwealth Games at which he won both the mile and three miles. And he was bothered by the wind.

He won by 50 yards over Britain's Derek Graham, clocked in 3:59.2, with Alan Simpson, another Englishman, third in 3:59.8, and Ralph Duboll of Australia fourth in 4:00.5. Tim Danielson, a 17-year-old American schoolboy from Chula Vista, Calif., was seventh and last in 4:11.3.

Keino's time for the first lap was 60.1 seconds and he hit the halfmile 10 yards in front in 1:58.1. Simpson tried to stay with the flying Kenyan but soon fell back. Keino, pulling away, hit the three-quarters in 2:55. He got a great ovation as he broke the tape.

The time bettered the listed world record of 3:53.6 set by France's Michel Jazy but fell 2 1-10 seconds below Ryun's mark.

"I didn't think the world record was possible because I was beginning to feel the effect of a strong wind at the end of the first lap," Keino said. "The wind bothered me. I didn't have the finishing kick I needed for the world record."

He also blamed his lack of early pace. "I'd appreciate it if someone ran ahead of me for the first half and then perhaps I could do something," he said.

Full Schedule Set At Track

A full schedule of stock car racing will be offered at West Monroe's Traweek Speedway today, beginning with time trials at 1:30 o'clock.

Actual races will begin at 2 o'clock or shortly thereafter, depending on time necessary to complete the time trials.

Races offered will include the fast and slow features, fast and slow heats, plus trophy dashes.

The track is just off the Jonesboro road near Cheniere creek.

MOSCOW (AP) — Mrs. Ann Haydon-Jones of Britain and Betty Stove of The Netherlands won the women's doubles title of the Moscow international tennis tournament Saturday, defeating Judy Tegart of Australia, and Anna Dmitieva of Russia, 6-4, 2-6, 6-3.

'Struggling' 68, 'Routine' 69 Tie

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Wes Ellis Jr. shot a "struggling" 68 and Art Wall Jr. a "routine"69 to tie Saturday for the 54-hole lead in the $100,000 Insurance City Open Golf Tournament with 15-under-par totals of 198.

Wall had shot 65-64 to lead the first two rounds at the par-71 Wethersfield Country Club, while Ellis had 65-65. Although they left the sensational scoring to others Saturday, they hold a four-stroke edge going into the final 18 holes today.

Billy Casper and George Archer shot seven-under-par 64's to be the closest challengers along with Julius Boros at 202. Boros had 70 Saturday after earlier rounds of 67-65.

Another 64 was turned in by 24-year-old Steve Oppermann of San Francisco. The second-year pro said it was his best round ever.

It put Oppermann at 204 in a tie with another relative newcomer to the tour, 39-year-old Ed Griffiths of Fort Myers, Fla. Griffiths had 69 Saturday.

Arnold Palmer shot 70 after previous rounds of 68 and 67. He is tied with PGA champion Al Geiberger and four others at 205.

Wall and Ellis traded the lead through the day, and Ellis moved in front with an 18-foot putt dropped on the last hole. Wall, who said, "I was trying not to three-putt," rolled in a 35-footer to earn the tie.

Casper, the U.S. Open champion and top money winner at $99,315 this year, had his best round ever at Wethersfield as he made a strong move to defend the Insurance City title he won last year.

While Wall and Ellis dueled with pars and an occasional birdie, Casper and his playing partner Archer staged a match in birdie putts. Casper made nine birdies, ranging from four inches to 14 feet, but he carded two bogeys. Archer, 26, lives on a cattle ranch at Gilroy, Calif. He played the most consistent round of the day, hitting every green in the regulation number of strokes.

His longest of seven birdies went in from 13 feet. Ellis, who can't swing hard at a shot because of a rib injury, had to one-putt for pars on several holes near the finish.

"I was really struggling, but I blew one hole," Ellis said, referring to the par 5 14th where he hit a widge into a sand trap and took a bogey.

Wall had a similar affliction on the 16th hole, also taking a bogey six. However, Wall said, "I thought I played pretty well today, it was a routine round."

Guessing Game For Successor Begins

CLEVELAND (AP) — The guessing game over who will manage the Cleveland Indians next season started Saturday on the heels of Birdie Tebbetts' resignation.

Tebbetts walked into the clubhouse Friday night as the Indians were celebrating their 3-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox and told the players it was his last game as their manager.

A few minutes later, General Manager Gabe Paul told a news conference that Tebbetts had resigned and George Strickland, 40, third base coach under Tebbetts, had been named as manager for the remainder of the season.

"George and I haven't even talked about next year—we are not even thinking about next year now," Paul replied when asked if Strickland would continue as manager next season.

Guesses today on who would be managing the Indians in 1967 included Johnny Lippon, manager of the Indians' Portland farm club; Bob Kennedy, former Cleveland player and now a manager in the Los Angeles Dodgers' chain; Johnny Keane, who piloted the St. Louis Cardinals to a pennant two years ago was fired as manager of the New York Yankees this season, and Strickland.

Strickland managed the club the first three months of the 1964 season after Tebbetts suffered a heart attack on April 1, a few days before the season opened. The Indians were in eighth place with a 34-42 record on July when Tebbetts took over again and he guided them to a die for sixth place with Minnesota.

Tebbetts, 53, was in his fourth season as manager of the Indians. They finished in a fifth-place tie in 1963, his first year; deadlocked for sixth in 1964 and were fifth last year.

Before coming to Cleveland, he had managed the Cincinnati Reds and the Milwaukee Braves.

He started his major league playing career as a catcher with the Detroit Tigers in 1937 and ended it with the Indians in 1952.

Strickland played shortstop for the Pittsburgh Pirates before coming to the Indians in 1952. He retired as a player in 1959, did some scouting for the Indians and then joined the Minnesota coaching staff in 1962. He returned to Cleveland as a coach the following year.

Tebbetts had been under criticism from the fans recently, but Paul said the switch in managers was not made because of prsesure.

"Pressure is part of the game of baseball and you learn to live with it," he said. "Decisions are made for the good of the team."

Paul said he and Tebbetts had discussed the managerial matter late Friday and "it was his feeling that for the good of baseball and for all concerned, he should not return in 1967. I agreed to permit him to leave immediately."

Jack Hernon Jr. Dies In Hospital

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Jack Hernon Jr., 48, baseball writer for the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette since 1949, died Friday night in Allegheny General Hospital.

Hernon became ill last February. He covered the Pirates only on home games this season while another writer made the trips.

Hernon once served as president of the Pittsburgh chapter of the Baseball Writers Association. He saw action with the Navy in the South Pacific during World War II.

His father, the late Jack Hernon Sr., covered the Pirates for the Post-Gazette in the 1920s and 1930s.

New Track To Be Built At McNeese

LAKE CHARLES (Special) — An eight lane, grasstex all-weather track will be constructed at McNeese State College in the near future.

It was recently announced by the State Bond and Building Commission that Bartley Incorporated of New Orleans had been awarded a contract to build the track, believed to be the first of its kind in Louisiana.

Although no starting date for the construction of the track has been set, completion of the project is to be 60 days after it is started.

The track will be constructed on the west side of the McNeese State football stadium, encircling the practice football field and will also include runways and pits for all field events.

The eight lane, quartermile oval will be the first home track for the Cowboys who in the past have had to patronize various local high school tracks.

All lanes, pits, runways, and weight circles will be built according to specifications set down by the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Surfacing for the runways for the pole vault, broad jump-triple junp and high jump will also be of Grasstex, an engineered recreational pavement that is waterproof, durable and requires minimum maintenance.

The shot put and discus circles will be constructed of reinforced concrete.

Construction of the track is expected to be completed for usage in the spring.

13 Texans On Tulane Varsity Unit

NEW ORLEANS (Special) — Texas has the largest out-of-state delegationon Tulane's 1966 football team. Of the 64 varsity players expected to report to Head Coach Jim Pittman when pre-season workouts begin Sept. 1, 13 will be from the Lone Star State. Texas is also the home ground of 18 of the 40 freshman gridders at Tulane.

Ohio ranks second on the varsity list, providing five players, while four Green Wave gridders are from Kentucky and three are from Alabama.

Tennessee, Illinois, Michigan, and Florida have contributed two piece, and South Carolina, Oklahoma, Kansas, and Mississippi are each represented by one player. Mexico is the only foreign country represented.

That gives Tulane a total of 38 varsity gridders from 13 states other than Louisiana. The home state has provided 26 members of the squad, representing 17 different cities.

NewOrleans leads the Louisiana list with six, while four are from Houma and two are from Chalmette. Other cities represented are Abbeville, Amite, Baton Rouge, Crowley, Clinton, Denham Springs, DeRidder, Hackberry, Hammond, Homer, Jena, Jennings, New Iberia, and Roseland.

Grid Ducats For La. Tech Now On Sale

RUSTON (Special) — Football season tickets for Louisiana Tech's 1966 home schedule are now available for purchase by holders of space last year, Athletic Director Joe Aillet has announced.

Aillet said that options to renew space may be exercised at the Athletic Office in Memorial Gymansium until Saturday, August 27, after which tickets will be placed on sale to the general public on a first-come, first-served basis. The office is open Monday through Friday from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Cost of the tickets is $6.00 per season book for reserved seats and $7.50 per book for box seats, Aillet said. Applicants exercising options by mail should include 25 cents for handling and mailing charges.

Tech faces its most curtailed home slate in modern times this season, with only two games slated for the home turf. McNeese State's Cowboys will be met here at 7:30 p.m., October 1, and the annual Homecoming feature will take place at 2:00 p.m., November 5, with the Lions of Southeastern as guests. The annual State Fair struggle with Northwestern State College in Shreveport on October 23, although listed as Tech "home" game, is not included in season books.

Honda Takes 3 Wins In Series

DUNDROD, Northern Ireland (AP) —Britain's Mike Hailwood won the 500 c.c. motorcycle race on a Honda Saturday, giving the Japanese factory three victories in the Ulster Grand Prix series.

Hailwood's triumph kept alive his chance of retaining the 500 c.c. world chamiponship he has held since 1962 and his hopes of becoming the first man ever to hold three titles in one year.

Hailwood zipped around the 15 laps of the 7½-mile Dundrod circuit at a record average speed of 102.44 miles an hour, eclipsing his own record of 99.29 set in 1963. He now has 22 points toward the world championship compared to 34 for Italy's Giacomo Agostini. Hailwood already has clinched two other class titles.

Agostini finished second in the race on a M.V., negotiating the course at an average speed of 100.14.

13 Texans On Tulane Varsity Unit

NEW ORLEANS (Special) — Texas has the largest out-of-state delegationon Tulane's 1966 football team. Of the 64 varsity players expected to report to Head Coach Jim Pittman when pre-season workouts begin Sept. 1, 13 will be from the Lone Star State. Texas is also the home ground of 18 of the 40 freshman gridders at Tulane.

Ohio ranks second on the varsity list, providing five players, while four Green Wave gridders are from Kentucky and three are from Alabama.

Tennessee, Illinois, Michigan, and Florida have contributed two piece, and South Carolina, Oklahoma, Kansas, and Mississippi are each represented by one player. Mexico is the only foreign country represented.

That gives Tulane a total of 38 varsity gridders from 13 states other than Louisiana. The home state has provided 26 members of the squad, representing 17 different cities.

NewOrleans leads the Louisiana list with six, while four are from Houma and two are from Chalmette. Other cities represented are Abbeville, Amite, Baton Rouge, Crowley, Clinton, Denham Springs, DeRidder, Hackberry, Hammond, Homer, Jena, Jennings, New Iberia, and Roseland.

Helen Sherrouse Tourney Slated

Plans are being completed for the annual Helen Sherrouse Ladies Invitational golf tournament at Bayou DeSiard in September.

The one-day affair will be held over the DeSiard layout Sept. 21, with Mrs. David Garrett defending her title.

Mrs. Garrett won the tourney last year after rain cut the scheduled 18 hole play to nine holes.

The tournament is again scheduled for 18 holes.

'Struggling' 68, 'Routine' 69 Tie

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Wes Ellis Jr. shot a "struggling" 68 and Art Wall Jr. a "routine"69 to tie Saturday for the 54-hole lead in the $100,000 Insurance City Open Golf Tournament with 15-under-par totals of 198.

Wall had shot 65-64 to lead the first two rounds at the par-71 Wethersfield Country Club, while Ellis had 65-65. Although they left the sensational scoring to others Saturday, they hold a four-stroke edge going into the final 18 holes today.

Billy Casper and George Archer shot seven-under-par 64's to be the closest challengers along with Julius Boros at 202. Boros had 70 Saturday after earlier rounds of 67-65.

Another 64 was turned in by 24-year-old Steve Oppermann of San Francisco. The second-year pro said it was his best round ever.

It put Oppermann at 204 in a tie with another relative newcomer to the tour, 39-year-old Ed Griffiths of Fort Myers, Fla. Griffiths had 69 Saturday.

Arnold Palmer shot 70 after previous rounds of 68 and 67. He is tied with PGA champion Al Geiberger and four others at 205.

Wall and Ellis traded the lead through the day, and Ellis moved in front with an 18-foot putt dropped on the last hole. Wall, who said, "I was trying not to three-putt," rolled in a 35-footer to earn the tie.

Casper, the U.S. Open champion and top money winner at $99,315 this year, had his best round ever at Wethersfield as he made a strong move to defend the Insurance City title he won last year.

While Wall and Ellis dueled with pars and an occasional birdie, Casper and his playing partner Archer staged a match in birdie putts. Casper made nine birdies, ranging from four inches to 14 feet, but he carded two bogeys. Archer, 26, lives on a cattle ranch at Gilroy, Calif. He played the most consistent round of the day, hitting every green in the regulation number of strokes.

His longest of seven birdies went in from 13 feet. Ellis, who can't swing hard at a shot because of a rib injury, had to one-putt for pars on several holes near the finish.

"I was really struggling, but I blew one hole," Ellis said, referring to the par 5 14th where he hit a widge into a sand trap and took a bogey.

Wall had a similar affliction on the 16th hole, also taking a bogey six. However, Wall said, "I thought I played pretty well today, it was a routine round."

At the end of 54 holes there were 61 players under par figures. The lead score of 198 ties for the lowest three-round total on the pro tour this year, which was set by Gene Littler at Memphis.

Surveying his position in the field, Palmer said after his round, "I can think of a lot of tournaments where my 205 would be a good score. But this isn't the place."

New Track To Be Built At McNeese

LAKE CHARLES (Special) — An eight lane, grasstex all-weather track will be constructed at McNeese State College in the near future.

It was recently announced by the State Bond and Building Commission that Bartley Incorporated of New Orleans had been awarded a contract to build the track, believed to be the first of its kind in Louisiana.

Although no starting date for the construction of the track has been set, completion of the project is to be 60 days after it is started.

The track will be constructed on the west side of the McNeese State football stadium, encircling the practice football field and will also include runways and pits for all field events.

The eight lane, quartermile oval will be the first home track for the Cowboys who in the past have had to patronize various local high school tracks.

All lanes, pits, runways, and weight circles will be built according to specifications set down by the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Surfacing for the runways for the pole vault, broad jump-triple junp and high jump will also be of Grasstex, an engineered recreational pavement that is waterproof, durable and requires minimum maintenance.

The shot put and discus circles will be constructed of reinforced concrete.

Construction of the track is expected to be completed for usage in the spring.

Grid Ducats For La. Tech Now On Sale

RUSTON (Special) — Football season tickets for Louisiana Tech's 1966 home schedule are now available for purchase by holders of space last year, Athletic Director Joe Aillet has announced.

Aillet said that options to renew space may be exercised at the Athletic Office in Memorial Gymansium until Saturday, August 27, after which tickets will be placed on sale to the general public on a first-come, first-served basis. The office is open Monday through Friday from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Cost of the tickets is $6.00 per season book for reserved seats and $7.50 per book for box seats, Aillet said. Applicants exercising options by mail should include 25 cents for handling and mailing charges.

Tech faces its most curtailed home slate in modern times this season, with only two games slated for the home turf. McNeese State's Cowboys will be met here at 7:30 p.m., October 1, and the annual Homecoming feature will take place at 2:00 p.m., November 5, with the Lions of Southeastern as guests. The annual State Fair struggle with Northwestern State College in Shreveport on October 23, although listed as Tech "home" game, is not included in season books.

Record-Setter From Grambling

GRAMBLING (Special) — Gazelle gaited Lennox Yearwood, a Grambling College sophomore from the West Indies, was a member of the Trinidad and Tobago team that set a world record in the mile relay Saturday in the British Empire games in Kingston, Jamacia.

The speedy quartet covered the distance in 3:02.8 to erase the previous record of 3:04.5 held jointly by U. S., teams from Arizona State, Oregon State and the Southern University Track Club.

Wendell Mottley, 440-yard gold medalist in the British Empire games, anchored the team with a sizzling 44.5. Yearwood led off with 47.8, followed by Kent Bernard, 45.7, and Ed Roberts, 44.8, to complete the record effort.

Yearwood plans to return to Grambling on Sept. 19.

COMIN' UP AFIELD

Background Of Wildlife

With Paul Martin

Dr. Leslie L. Glasgow, new director of the Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries Commission, has a background of dedication to wildlife. It is his profession. He becomes something of a rarity — an appointee to a somewhat political post who is trained for the job he is required to do.

Dr. Glasgow, professor of wildlife management at LSU since 1948, Tuesday was sworn in as the new LWLFC director, succeeding resigned Joe Hair.

"I am particularly gratified by the response from the general public on my apppointment and intend to be very aggressive in handling the affairs of the office," Dr. Glasgow said. "I will do everything I possibly can to give the people of Louisiana a good, sound wildlife program."

A native of Portland, Ind., Dr. Glasgow graduated in 1942 from Purdue University with a bachelor of science degree in forestry and wildlife management; received a master of science degree in wildlife conservation from University of Maine in 1948, and a doctorate in game management from Texas A. and M. in 1958.

He joined the school of forestry and wildlife management at LSU in 1948, and was granted his full professorship at LSU in 1964.

His dedicated interest in wise use and management of Louisiana's wildlife resources earned the Louisiana Outdoor Writers Association's "Outstanding Conservationist Award" for Dr. Glasgow in 1958.

Some of his research publications include the woodcock in Louisiana, the barn owl, nutria, effects of pesticides on wildlife populations and ecological studies of the Louisiana marshes.

We can recall no director for Louisiana who ever had the background with training for the job.

Dr. Glasgow could bring a new era to Louisiana's outdoors. He'll need cooperation from our sportsmen. May he be free of political shackles to run the commission to the best interests of us all.

Two Mallards Now

Duck hunters will get a little more shooting time this season, plus a little better bag limit now that federal regulations, which had the hunter limited to one mallard a day a year ago, will allow two mallards in the bag this season.

States are permitted to select dates for straight or split seasons, and as soon as the LWLFC selects its dates, the waterfowl hunter can begin making plans.

With a little better season promised, many blind owners will be getting busy soon getting their locations in shape.

We see by the advertisements the past several days that sporting goods dealers are already well ahead of everybody else in preparing for the season. They're dressing up their shop displays, and the ads already are offering a varity of guns, bows, ammo, decoys, hunting knives, outdoor clothing and accessories.

We're just about two weeks away from the start of the hunting season with opening of dove season, Saturday, Sept. 3, at 12 o'clock noon. Two weeks later the special teal season opens, Sept. 17, for waterfowlers

Home From Alaska

Correspondent Janice Clark at Crossett, Ark., supplies this story of big game hunters Fred Smith, Crossett, and his 18-year-old son, Dean, who are back home after a two-week trip to Alaska:

"Fred, who received his pilot's license a year ago, flew his Cesna 182 single-engine plane up more than 200 miles above the Arctic Circle, where he and his son each bagged a caribou. They gave the skin and meat to Indians who live in Arctic Village, and returned with the fur-coated antlers. Fred had to split his rack to get it in the plane, but Dean's came home intact.

"While in Alaska they also fished, and Dean realized a lifelong ambition to pan for gold. They caught many fish, but found no gold.

"In the little town of Arctic Village there was one church built of logs with a sod roof, designed with a belfry topped with a wooden cross. The door was wired shut. The two didn't disturb the wire, but looked in the window, seeing an altar cloth made of white moosehide with designs embroidered in beads.

"The little Episcopal church is the only one in the isolated village, and all the Indians living there belong to it.

"There were several narrow squeaks on the 9,000 mile flight. Several times clouds forced them to fly low, and they found themselves boxed into canyons and had to fly up through the clouds to clear mountains. Once their wings iced up, forcing them down over mountainous country where warmer air deiced them. Both Fred and Dean say the scenery alone made the entire trip worthwhile."

Some Dates To Remember

The Optimist Club's annual gun and archery safety clinic — archery is being added for the first time this year — is scheduled here for September 24-25. The Optimist Club of Greater Monroe and the Twin Cities Optimist Club co-sponsor the event. Sheriff Bailey Grant will again be clinic master. Kit Beecher will return with his snake demonstrations.

This clinic is free to area youth. This time the youths are being urged to bring their parents. Two sessions are offered with the hope all youngsters who'll ever handle a gun or a bow or run a possible risk of contact with snakes in the wild can attend at least one session.

The Abbeville Kiwanis Tarpon and Fishing Rodeo at Intercoastal City will be on Labor Day weekend, Sept. 3-4-5. Trophies will be offered for just about every fish that can be caught in the Gulf.

Area archers, with several from Tupawek Bowmen, will participate today in the Longview, Tex., archery tournament. Tupawek archers also are planning for the Sept. 11 meet at Pine Bluff, Ark.

The Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries Commission holds its first regular meeting with new director Dr. Leslie Glasgow at New Orleans Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock, Room 226 LWLFC building.

The Outdoor Scoreboard

RAYMOND T. KUHN, West Monroe, makes his own artificial bait, "Cheniere Lure," and right now when a lot of folks are having a hard time catching Cheniere fish because the fish locations and habits have been changed by the drawdown, RAYMOND is proving the bass can be caught.

He fished Cheniere four days the past week, according to the EADS BOAT DOCK scorekeeper, taking five bass the first day, 11 the next, the 15 limit the next, and 12 on the fourth try. This 43-bass score for four trips is good enough in anybody's lake.

MILLER CHRISTIE also worked Cheniere for seven bass early in the week, one hitting six pounds.

Chalk up Black Bayou limits for BOB GREENLEE, SAM DANNA and PAUL DANNA, bass; and IVY SMITH, AMOS THOMPSON and W. A. and MRS. STEWART, crappie. The STEWARTS were back again for 70 more. Other good Black Bayou catches included WESLEY and RUBY LINER, 70 crappie; WESLEY again with CHARLIE MORRIS, 55 crappie; C. A. SMITH and J. W. WOMACK, Bastrop, 75 crappie; R. H. SPELLS and E. B. ROBERTS, 85 crappie; ALDIN "BUTCH" MARTIN, 60 bream; CHARLES RAY PAYNE, 42 bream; L. L. and MRS. DECELLE, 75 bream; STEVE JOINER, eight bass.

The Bussey Brake yield included limits for SPEEDY GOODNIGHT, Bastrop, bass; M. H. LARY, Monroe, bass; AND MRS. MARLEY PING, Bastrop, bream. Other takes were M. C. and MRS. FINLEY, Crossett, Ark., 180 bream; RAY TERRELL, El Dorado, Ark., 45 crappie; BILL TAYLOR, Bastrop, 95 bream.

Bass fishing has been slow in Lake Providence, but VACEL RAZER hooked nine.

MRS. T. L. McKEITHEN and MRS. F. T. BEAKLEY, Ferriday, took 12 bass in Lake Concordia Tuesday. MRS. McKEITHEN went back for nine more Friday morning, using a white H. and H. Bass limits were taken by PETE HATHAWAY and JAMES WHITE, Alexandria, at Concordia.

TRIG GILKEY showed four nice bass from Moon Lake here.

Lake D'Arbonne catches included limits for J. B. GREEN, West Monroe, HORACE TURNER, El Dorado, A. H. HUNT, E. E. GIBSON and DR. RIVENBACKER, Haynesville; MRS. HATTIE HAMILTON, Houston, Houston, Tex., and MRS. JOHN BETTELL, Bernice, and DONNIE TUCKER, Farmerville, all crappie.

BILL LEWIS, Haynesville, showing he's glad to be home from Viet Nam, fished out of D'Arbonne Village seven of last eight days, reported score two days, 50 bream each time.

Other good D'Arbonne catches: JACK ODOM, Ruston, 12 bass up to 3½ pounds; SAMMY McGUIRE, Simsboro, 30 bream and 25 crappie; JOHN GLORE, Monroe, 45 crappie; CALVIN and MRS. PROHRO, El Dorado, 40 crappie and 12 bass; GEORGE and MRS. COWTHRON, Arcadia, filled ice box crappie and bream; MILTON KILPATRICK, Arcadia, 65 bream; A. H. HUNT, Haynesville, and W. E. ROGER HANDY, Detroit, Mich., 20 bream, 30 crappie; LUCILLE PARRMORE and ANN BRAZZEL, Brunswick, Ga., 60 crappie, 25 bream; W. E. BROWNING, Shreveport, 60 bream; DONALD WRIGHT, Springhill, and BILLY RAY LEWIS, Haynesville, 111 bream; MAURICE DAUGHTERY and J. O. DAUGHTERY, Shreveport, 16 bass up to two pounds; T. W. JONES and T. H. Jones, Haynesville, 81 crappie.

Ron Brand's Single Drops Cincinnatti

HOUSTON (AP) — Ron Brand's two-run single capped a three-run rally in the eighth inning that gave the Houston Astros a 5-2 victory over Cincinnati Saturday night.

The Astros mounted their winning rally after Cincinnati's Jim O'Toole retired the first two men he faced in the eighth. Chuck Harrison then doubled to left and Dave Nicholson drew an intentional walk. When O'Toole also walked Rusty Staub, filling the bases, he was replaced by Don Nottebart.

Nottebart hit Bob Aspromonte with a pitch, forcing in the tie-breaking run, and Brand followed with a single to center scoring Nicholson and Staub.

Vikings Get Victory Over Rams, 24-10

MINNEAPOLIS - ST. PAUL (AP) — Fran Tarkenton rifled three touchdown passes, after a driving rain much of the time throttled both teams' running games, leading the Minnesota Vikings to a 24-10 victory over the Los Angeles Rams Saturday night in an exhibition football game.

Tarkenton, able to complete only nine of 21 passes because of the almost constant rain, connected with Tommy Mason on an 88-yard pass and run in the first quarter.

He later hit Tom Hall from the six-yard line and Bill Brown from the 15 in the second and fourth periods as the Vikings remained unbeaten in 14 straight National Football League exhibitions.

Fred Cox added three extra points and contributed a 46-yard field goal in the third period.

Roman Gabriel, recovered from the shock of an auto accident last Wednesday night in which Rams end Marlin McKeever lost a finger, completed 12 of 16 passes for 119 yards, but had trouble keeping Los Angeles' offense clicking consistently.

Gabriel drove the Rams 67 yards in 10 plays in the second quarter and kept the ball himself for the final yard to score Los Angeles' only touchdown.

Gabriel also directed the Rams 60 yards in the third quarter, when Bruce Gossett booted a 13-yard field goal after Gabriel's third-down pass from the seven overshot Tommy McDonald.

Bill Munson replaced Gabriel in the fourth quarter and hit seven of 10 passes for 88 yards but failed to mount a sustained drive.

Greenville Action Cut To 36 Holes

GREENVILLE, Miss. (Special) — A downpour which plastered Greenville with two inches of rain in as many hours washed out the third round of the Greenville Golf and Country Club championship here Saturday.

Several good scores were wiped off the cards including a five under par effort by Glen Walker of Monroe.

Defending champion Clayton Cole of Monroe and John Sample of Baton Rouge are tied for the lead going into today's final round.

Both own three under 69's and today's final 18 will cut the tourney from 54 to 36 holes.

Walker was five under going into the 12th hole.

Several other Monroe golfers have performed well throughout the tournament and remain within striking distance for the championship.

Cole has won two consecutive titles here and is seeking his third.

Liston Closer To Return Bout

GOTEBORG, Sweden (AP) — Sonny Liston was a giant step closer to a possible return match with Cassius Clay Saturday after an impressive third round knockout of Amos Johnson.

Liston weighed 218 pounds for his bout with Johnson, 200, Friday night, but was much faster than he had been in July when he knocked out German Gerhard Zech in seven rounds — the first step on his comeback.

He backed the retreating Johnson into a corner in the first round and gave him a merciless two-handed beating. In the second, he opened a cut over Johnson's left eye, knocked him down for two eight-counts and the Medina, Ohio, pro was saved only by the bell. A right uppercut at 1:48 of the third ended it.

The two bouts in Sweden hav been Liston's only fights since he lost his two heavyweight championship bouts to Clay.

College Football Trend To 'I'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The "I's" have it for college football, 1966 style.

Texas, Oklahoma, Syracuse and Utah head the mounting converts to the tandem offensive alignment which will be so much in evidence next month.

The I of Texas, where the winged-T once was law, will be cast upon rivals to attain more deception. Jim Mackenzie, Oklahoma's new head coach, hopes it will lead to fewer fumbles and mistakes.

But, generally, the parade is underway because nothing succeeds like success.

Notre Dame just missed a perect 1964 campaign outfitted with a new I. Arkansas blitzed its regular 1965 schedule 10-0 after which Frank Broyles admitted "I adopted the I when I saw how successfully John McKay at Southern California was with it."

Syracuse's Ben Schwartzwalder, long a wing-T exponent, hopes to ride the I — and halfback Floyd Little's legs — to the eastern title. The Orange will still put the ball in play from an unbalanced line.

New coaches Mike Giddings (imported from Southern Cal) at Utah, Doc Urich at Buffalo, Jim Carlen at West Virginia, Frank Jones at Richmond and Paul Dietzel at South Carolina brought the I with them. Ohio University and Wichita are also in the migration; North Carolina State and Villanova will use more I with their T's while Princeton and Western Michigan are blending larger doses of I into the single wing.

Texas' Darrell Royal says he made the switch "for rollout purposes."

"To get four blockers in front of the quarterback, we used to have to send a tailback in motion behind the fullback," he said. "This was a tipoff that we were going to roll out. You can go either way from the I and use your fullback as a lead blocker to any place in the line."

McKenzie says the I permits a strong off-tackle attack both ways, good blocking, sends three quick receivers into the wide side of the field and, because the ball is handed off deeper in the backfield, it should result in fewer fumbles.

Wheter it's called the I, wide-I, roving-I, shifty-I or the jaundiced I, the idea is to spread defenses as thin as possible.

There will be more sprint-out quarterback passes, halfback-option throws, and sweeps off offensive formations already giving the defense headaches with an end split wide on one side and flanker on the other in many cases.

In the second year of the return of unlimited substitution, there will be more multiple offenses and a greater variety of defenses. The players have been unable to specialize and absorb more of their assigned art. Teams like Texas and Arkansas, which had kept the two-way player in 1965, are now going all the way in the division of labor.

Defenses are being retooled to get to the runner before he can turn the corner or to the passer before he can throw. Kentucky is scrapping its 4-4 for a 5-3-3 setup.

The trend toward the free-lance 'rover,' such as Big Ten champion Michigan State (George Webster) and unbeaten, untied Dartmouth (Steve Luxford) employed, is accelerating. For instance, Arizona has joined the bandwagon and Georgia Tech has switched tailback Giles Smith to the key position in its new Tech Wrecker, 4-3-4, setup. Whatever the label, the player is sort of a half linebacker, half safety man who needs speed and a nose for the ball.

There is an increasing tendence in college to handle secondary pass coverage man-to-man as do the pros rather than by zone which was once the varsity tradition.

Everywhere the emphasis is speed. If a really big team is specialy fast, too, that's fine. But when sleek, small, swift UCLA and Alabama applied bowl crushers on previous unbeatens Michigan State and Nebraska last Jan. 1, it didn't go unnoticed. 'Bama's Bear Bryant has long been known for his greyhound-fine clubs.

Oklahoma candidates under Mackenzie, who had seen trim Arkansas through 22 consecutive regular season triumphs as an assistant, boiled off a total of 1,437 pounds in spring practice — and gained speed as a result.

One trend which never changes is the annual shuffle of coaches. In addition to those already mention new or old faces in new places include Tom Harp, Duke; Lou Saban, Maryland; Dave Hart, Pitt; Jack Musick, Cornell; Joe Paterno, Penn State; Vito Ragazzo, VMI; Jim Parker, Citadel; Ray Nagel, Iowa; Jim Pittman, Tulane and Tom Cahill, Army.

Among the more significant player moves are those which send Indiana quarterback Gary Tofil and Penn State offensive halfback Tim Montgomery both to safety and Pitt defensive starter Mickey Depp to quarterback. Missouri's great defensive end, 6-6, 250 pound Russ Washington will do double duty at offensive tackle as will Delaware linebacker Herb Slattery.

Washington's Jerry Williams goes from end to guard and Washington State will try to solve a signal calling problem by using '64 letterman halfback Mike Cadigan there.

Duffy Daughtery at Michigan State has defensive halfback Jesse Phillips at offensive halfback, Drake Garrett making the reverse move and halfback Mitch Pruiett to defensive guard. At Dayton, Mike Wilson, 245, goes from tackle to provide the needed big fullback. Indiana speedster John Ginter switches from set back to flanker.

Broyles is performing his latest version of the Arkansas juggle featuring the move of Tommy Trantham from starting defensive halfback to split end where his work succeeding Bobby Crockett may decide the success of the Porkers' Southwest Conference title defense.

Tulane is officially an independent this year after seceeding from the Southeastern Conference. Memphis State has joined the Missouri Valley Conference but is not eligible for the football crown this fall. A flock of victims of the Air Force cribbing scandal of two years ago will appear as University of Arizona starters.

Passing will continue to be on the upswing. Syracuse showed more aerial punch when sophomore Jim Del Gaizo fired two touchdown tosses in the Varsity (32) - Alumni (7) spring game. But nowhere will it be more in evidence than at Texas Western, where Billy Stevens and Brooks Dawson shot it out with footballs in a 43-41 spring gunnery drill.

Oliva, Killebrew Hit Homers In 10th, Twins Extend Streak

BOSTON (AP) — Tony Oliva and Harmon Killebrew slugged successive homers in the 10th inning, giving Minnesota a 4-2 victory over Boston Saturday night and extending the Twins' winning string to six games.

Oliva led off the 10th against Red Sox reliever Roland Sheldon with his 21st homer of the year and Killebrew followed with his 28th.

The victory went to Al Worthington, who relieved Jim Perry in the ninth after Bob Tillman's pinch hit homer had lifted the Red Sox into a win.

Perry scattered eight hits until the ninth and led 2-1 by virtue of Cesar Tovar's run-scoring single in the seventh.

The Red Sox took a 1-0 lead in the fifth on a single by pitcher Dennis Bennett, a wild pitch, a walk and Carl Yastrzemski's single.

Minnesota, hitless until the fifth, tied the score in the sixth on singles by Zoilo Versalles, Oliva and Killebrew. The Twins moved ahead on singles by Ted Uhlaender, Versalles and Tovar in the seventh.

Costly Miscues Defeat Dolphins

JACKSONVILLE (AP) — The New York Jets, playing without their injured star Joe Namath, took advantage of costly miscues by the Miami Dolphins and whipped the new team in the American Football League, 31-14 in an exhibition game Saturday night.

A fumble, two pass interceptions and a high pass from center on a punt attempt gave New York the ball for scoring drives. The win was the Jets' second straight. The Dolphins are still winless.

Mike Taliaferro, filling in for injured Namath was unable to complete a pass on the rain-soaked field until late in the third quarter. But the Jets scored in every period.

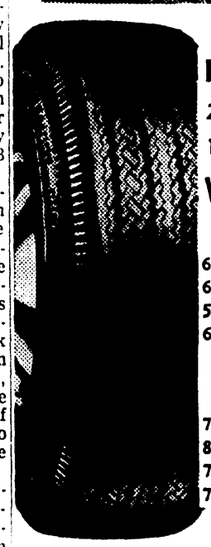

The new Miami squad was unable to cross the Jets goal line in the first half. Veteran quarterback Dick Wood, who took over for the Dolphins in the second half, scored both of the Miami touchdowns on pass-plays of 43 yards to flanker Bo Roberson and one of 27 yards to Frank Jackson.

Drainard Paulson recovered a fumble from Dolphin halfback Sam Price on the Miami 18 to set up the first score. New York fullback Matt Snell scored on the next play and Jim Turner added the extra point. Turner kicked a 31-yard field goal when the Jets got another break.

Background Of Wildlife

With Paul Martin

Dr. Leslie L. Glasgow, new director of the Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries Commission, has a background of dedication to wildlife. It is his profession. He becomes something of a rarity — an appointee to a somewhat political post who is trained for the job he is required to do.

Dr. Glasgow, professor of wildlife management at LSU since 1948, Tuesday was sworn in as the new LWLFC director, succeeding resigned Joe Hair.

"I am particularly gratified by the response from the general public on my apppointment and intend to be very aggressive in handling the affairs of the office," Dr. Glasgow said. "I will do everything I possibly can to give the people of Louisiana a good, sound wildlife program."

A native of Portland, Ind., Dr. Glasgow graduated in 1942 from Purdue University with a bachelor of science degree in forestry and wildlife management; received a master of science degree in wildlife conservation from University of Maine in 1948, and a doctorate in game management from Texas A. and M. in 1958.

He joined the school of forestry and wildlife management at LSU in 1948, and was granted his full professorship at LSU in 1964.

His dedicated interest in wise use and management of Louisiana's wildlife resources earned the Louisiana Outdoor Writers Association's "Outstanding Conservationist Award" for Dr. Glasgow in 1958.

Some of his research publications include the woodcock in Louisiana, the barn owl, nutria, effects of pesticides on wildlife populations and ecological studies of the Louisiana marshes.

We can recall no director for Louisiana who ever had the background with training for the job.

Dr. Glasgow could bring a new era to Louisiana's outdoors. He'll need cooperation from our sportsmen. May he be free of political shackles to run the commission to the best interests of us all.

Two Mallards Now

Duck hunters will get a little more shooting time this season, plus a little better bag limit now that federal regulations, which had the hunter limited to one mallard a day a year ago, will allow two mallards in the bag this season.

States are permitted to select dates for straight or split seasons, and as soon as the LWLFC selects its dates, the waterfowl hunter can begin making plans.

With a little better season promised, many blind owners will be getting busy soon getting their locations in shape.

We see by the advertisements the past several days that sporting goods dealers are already well ahead of everybody else in preparing for the season. They're dressing up their shop displays, and the ads already are offering a varity of guns, bows, ammo, decoys, hunting knives, outdoor clothing and accessories.

We're just about two weeks away from the start of the hunting season with opening of dove season, Saturday, Sept. 3, at 12 o'clock noon. Two weeks later the special teal season opens, Sept. 17, for waterfowlers

Home From Alaska

Correspondent Janice Clark at Crossett, Ark., supplies this story of big game hunters Fred Smith, Crossett, and his 18-year-old son, Dean, who are back home after a two-week trip to Alaska:

"Fred, who received his pilot's license a year ago, flew his Cesna 182 single-engine plane up more than 200 miles above the Arctic Circle, where he and his son each bagged a caribou. They gave the skin and meat to Indians who live in Arctic Village, and returned with the fur-coated antlers. Fred had to split his rack to get it in the plane, but Dean's came home intact.

"While in Alaska they also fished, and Dean realized a lifelong ambition to pan for gold. They caught many fish, but found no gold.

"In the little town of Arctic Village there was one church built of logs with a sod roof, designed with a belfry topped with a wooden cross. The door was wired shut. The two didn't disturb the wire, but looked in the window, seeing an altar cloth made of white moosehide with designs embroidered in beads.

"The little Episcopal church is the only one in the isolated village, and all the Indians living there belong to it.

"There were several narrow squeaks on the 9,000 mile flight. Several times clouds forced them to fly low, and they found themselves boxed into canyons and had to fly up through the clouds to clear mountains. Once their wings iced up, forcing them down over mountainous country where warmer air deiced them. Both Fred and Dean say the scenery alone made the entire trip worthwhile."

Some Dates To Remember

The Optimist Club's annual gun and archery safety clinic — archery is being added for the first time this year — is scheduled here for September 24-25. The Optimist Club of Greater Monroe and the Twin Ciites Optimist Club co-sponsor the event. Sheriff Bailey Grant will again be clinic master. Kit Beecher will return with his snake demonstrations.

This clinic is free to area youth. This time the youths are being urged to bring their parents. Two sessions are offered with the hope all youngsters who'll ever handle a gun or a bow or run a possible risk of contact with snakes in the wild can attend at least one session.

The Abbeville Kiwanis Tarpon and Fishing Rodeo at Intercoastal City will be on Labor Day weekend, Sept. 3-4-5. Trophies will be offered for just about every fish that can be caught in the Gulf.

Area archers, with several from Tupawek Bowmen, will participate today in the Longview, Tex., archery tournament. Tupawek archers also are planning for the Sept. 11 meet at Pine Bluff, Ark.

The Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries Commission holds its first regular meeting with new director Dr. Leslie Glasgow at New Orleans Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock, Room 226 LWLFC building.

The Outdoor Scoreboard

RAYMOND T. KUHN, West Monroe, makes his own artificial bait, "Cheniere Lure," and right now when a lot of folks are having a hard time catching Cheniere fish because the fish locations and habits have been changed by the drawdown, RAYMOND is proving the bass can be caught.

He fished Cheniere four days the past week, according to the EADS BOAT DOCK scorekeeper, taking five bass the first day, 11 the next, the 15 limit the next, and 12 on the fourth try. This 43-bass score for four trips is good enough in anybody's lake.

MILLER CHRISTIE also worked Cheniere for seven bass early in the week, one hitting six pounds.

Chalk up Black Bayou limits for BOB GREENLEE, SAM DANNA and PAUL DANNA, bass; and IVY SMITH, AMOS THOMPSON and W. A. and MRS. STEWART, crappie. The STEWARTS were back again for 70 more. Other good Black Bayou catches included WESLEY and RUBY LINER, 70 crappie; WESLEY again with CHARLIE MORRIS, 55 crappie; C. A. SMITH and J. W. WOMACK, Bastrop, 75 crappie; R. H. SPELLS and E. B. ROBERTS, 85 crappie; ALDIN "BUTCH" MARTIN, 60 bream; CHARLES RAY PAYNE, 42 bream; L. L. and MRS. DECELLE, 75 bream; STEVE JOINER, eight bass.

The Bussey Brake yield included limits for SPEEDY GOODNIGHT, Bastrop, bass; M. H. LARY, Monroe, bass; AND MRS. MARLEY PING, Bastrop, bream. Other takes were M. C. and MRS. FINLEY, Crossett, Ark., 180 bream; RAY TERRELL, El Dorado, Ark., 45 crappie; BILL TAYLOR, Bastrop, 95 bream.

Bass fishing has been slow in Lake Providence, but VACEL RAZER hooked nine.

MRS. T. L. McKEITHEN and MRS. F. T. BEAKLEY, Ferriday, took 12 bass in Lake Concordia Tuesday. MRS. McKEITHEN went back for nine more Friday morning, using a white H. and H. Bass limits were taken by PETE HATHAWAY and JAMES WHITE, Alexandria, at Concordia.

TRIG GILKEY showed four nice bass from Moon Lake here.

Lake D'Arbonne catches included limits for J. B. GREEN, West Monroe, HORACE TURNER, El Dorado, A. H. HUNT, E. E. GIBSON and DR. RIVENBACKER, Haynesville; MRS. HATTIE HAMILTON, Houston, Houston, Tex., and MRS. JOHN BETTELL, Bernice, and DONNIE TUCKER, Farmerville, all crappie.

BILL LEWIS, Haynesville, showing he's glad to be home from Viet Nam, fished out of D'Arbonne Village seven of last eight days, reported score two days, 50 bream each time.

Other good D'Arbonne catches: JACK ODOM, Ruston, 12 bass up to 3½ pounds; SAMMY McGUIRE, Simsboro, 30 bream and 25 crappie; JOHN GLORE, Monroe, 45 crappie; CALVIN and MRS. PROHRO, El Dorado, 40 crappie and 12 bass; GEORGE and MRS. COWTHRON, Arcadia, filled ice box crappie and bream; MILTON KILPATRICK, Arcadia, 65 bream; A. H. HUNT, Haynesville, and W. E. ROGER HANDY, Detroit, Mich., 20 bream, 30 crappie; LUCILLE PARRMORE and ANN BRAZZEL, Brunswick, Ga., 60 crappie, 25 bream; W. E. BROWNING, Shreveport, 60 bream; DONALD WRIGHT, Springhill, and BILLY RAY LEWIS, Haynesville, 111 bream; MAURICE DAUGHTERY and J. O. DAUGHTERY, Shreveport, 16 bass up to two pounds; T. W. JONES and T. H. Jones, Haynesville, 81 crappie.

CARIBOU TROPHY racks are shown by Fred Smith, right, and son Dean of Crossett, Ark., after a successful hunt recently beyond the Artic Circle.

Ron Brand's Single Drops Cincinnatti

HOUSTON (AP) — Ron Brand's two-run single capped a three-run rally in the eighth inning that gave the Houston Astros a 5-2 victory over Cincinnati Saturday night.

The Astros mounted their winning rally after Cincinnati's Jim O'Toole retired the first two men he faced in the eighth. Chuck Harrison then doubled to left and Dave Nicholson drew an intentional walk. When O'Toole also walked Rusty Staub, filling the bases, he was replaced by Don Nottebart.

Nottebart hit Bob Aspromonte with a pitch, forcing in the tie-breaking run, and Brand followed with a single to center scoring Nicholson and Staub.

Vikings Get Victory Over Rams, 24-10

MINNEAPOLIS - ST. PAUL (AP) — Fran Tarkenton rifled three touchdown passes, after a driving rain much of the time throttled both teams' running games, leading the Minnesota Vikings to a 24-10 victory over the Los Angeles Rams Saturday night in an exhibition football game.

Tarkenton, able to complete only nine of 21 passes because of the almost constant rain, connected with Tommy Mason on an 88-yard pass and run in the first quarter.

He later hit Tom Hall from the six-yard line and Bill Brown from the 15 in the second and fourth periods as the Vikings remained unbeaten in 14 straight National Football League exhibitions.

Fred Cox added three extra points and contributed a 46-yard field goal in the third period.

Roman Gabriel, recovered from the shock of an auto accident last Wednesday night in which Rams end Marlin McKeever lost a finger, completed 12 of 16 passes for 119 yards, but had trouble keeping Los Angeles' offense clicking consistently.

Gabriel drove the Rams 67 yards in 10 plays in the second quarter and kept the ball himself for the final yard to score Los Angeles' only touchdown.

Gabriel also directed the Rams 60 yards in the third quarter, when Bruce Gossett booted a 13-yard field goal after Gabriel's third-down pass from the seven overshot Tommy McDonald.

Bill Munson repiaced Gabriel in the fourth quarter and hit seven of 10 passes for 88 yards but failed to mount a sustained drive.

Greenville Action Cut To 36 Holes

GREENVILLE, Miss. (Special) — A downpour which plastered Greenville with two inches of rain in as many hours washed out the third round of the Greenville Golf and Country Club championship here Saturday.

Several good scores were wiped off the cards including a five under par effort by Glen Walker of Monroe.

Defending champion Clayton Cole of Monroe and John Sample of Baton Rouge are tied for the lead going into today's final round.

Both own three under 69's and today's final 18 will cut the tourney from 54 to 36 holes.

Walker was five under going into the 12th hole.

Several other Monroe golfers have performed well throughout the tournament and remain within striking distance for the championship.

Cole has won two consecutive titles here and is seeking his third.

Liston Closer To Return Bout

GOTEBORG, Sweden (AP) — Sonny Liston was a giant step closer to a possible return match with Cassius Clay Saturday after an impressive third round knockout of Amos Johnson.

Liston weighed 218 pounds for his bout with Johnson, 200, Friday night, but was much faster than he had been in July when he knocked out German Gerhard Zech in seven rounds — the first step on his comeback.

He backed the retreating Johnson into a corner in the first round and gave him a merciless two-handed beating. In the second, he opened a cut over Johnson's left eye, knocked him down for two eight-counts and the Medina, Ohio, pro was saved only by the bell. A right uppercut at 1:48 of the third ended it.

The two bouts in Sweden hav beeen Liston's only fights since he lost his two heavyweight championship bouts to Clay.

College Football Trend To 'I'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The "I's" have it for college football, 1966 style.

Texas, Oklahoma, Syracuse and Utah head the mounting converts to the tandem offensive alignment which will be so much in evidence next month.

The I of Texas, where the winged-T once was law, will be cast upon rivals to attain more deception. Jim Mackenzie, Oklahoma's new head coach, hopes it will lead to fewer fumbles and mistakes.

But, generally, the parade is underway because nothing succeeds like success.

Notre Dame just missed a perect 1964 campaign outfitted with a new I. Arkansas blitzed its regular 1965 schedule 10-0 after which Frank Broyles admitted "I adopted the I when I saw how successfully John McKay at Southern California was with it."

Syracuse's Ben Schwartzwalder, long a wing-T exponent, hopes to ride the I — and halfback Floyd Little's legs — to the eastern title. The Orange will still put the ball in play from an unbalanced line.

New coaches Mike Giddings (imported from Southern Cal) at Utah, Doc Urich at Buffalo, Jim Carlen at West Virginia, Frank Jones at Richmond and Paul Dietzel at South Carolina brought the I with them. Ohio University and Wichita are also in the migration; North Carolina State and Villanova will use more I with their T's while Princeton and Western Michigan are blending larger doses of I into the single wing.

Texas' Darrell Royal says he made the switch "for rollout purposes."

"To get four blockers in front of the quarterback, we used to have to send a tailback in motion behind the fullback," he said. "This was a tipoff that we were going to roll out. You can go either way from the I and use your fullback as a lead blocker to any place in the line."

McKenzie says the I permits a strong off-tackle attack both ways, good blocking, sends three quick receivers into the wide side of the field and, because the ball is handed off deeper in the backfield, it should result in fewer fumbles.

Wheter it's called the I, wide-I, roving-I, shifty-I or the jaundiced I, the idea is to spread defenses as thin as possible.

There will be more sprint-out quarterback passes, halfback-option throws, and sweeps off offensive formations already giving the defense headaches with an end split wide on one side and flanker on the other in many cases.

In the second year of the return of unlimited substitution, there will be more multiple offenses and a greater variety of defenses. The players have been unable to specialize and absorb more of their assigned art. Teams like Texas and Arkansas, which had kept the two-way player in 1965, are now going all the way in the division of labor.

Defenses are being retooled to get to the runner before he can turn the corner or to the passer before he can throw. Kentucky is scrapping its 4-4 for a 5-3-3 setup.

The trend toward the free-lance 'rover,' such as Big Ten champion Michigan State (George Webster) and unbeaten, untied Dartmouth (Steve Luxford) employed, is accelerating. For instance, Arizona has joined the bandwagon and Georgia Tech has switched tailback Giles Smith to the key position in its new Tech Wrecker, 4-3-4, setup. Whatever the label, the player is sort of a half linebacker, half safety man who needs speed and a nose for the ball.

There is an increasing tendence in college to handle secondary pass coverage man-to-man as do the pros rather than by zone which was once the varsity tradition.

Everywhere the emphasis is speed. If a really big team is specialy fast, too, that's fine. But when sleek, small, swift UCLA and Alabama applied bowl crushers on previous unbeatens Michigan State and Nebraska last Jan. 1, it didn't go unnoticed. 'Bama's Bear Bryant has long been known for his greyhound-fine clubs.

Oklahoma candidates under Mackenzie, who had seen trim Arkansas through 22 consecutive regular season triumphs as an assistant, boiled off a total of 1,437 pounds in spring practice — and gained speed as a result.

One trend which never changes is the annual shuffle of coaches. In addition to those already mention new or old faces in new places include Tom Harp, Duke; Lou Saban, Maryland; Dave Hart, Pitt; Jack Musick, Cornell; Joe Paterno, Penn State; Vito Ragazzo, VMI; Jim Parker, Citadel; Ray Nagel, Iowa; Jim Pittman, Tulane and Tom Cahill, Army.

Among the more significant player moves are those which send Indiana quarterback Gary Tofil and Penn State offensive halfback Tim Montgomery both to safety and Pitt defensive starter Mickey Depp to quarterback. Missouri's great defensive end, 6-6, 250 pound Russ Washington will do double duty at offensive tackle as will Delaware linebacker Herb Slattery.

Washington's Jerry Williams goes from end to guard and Washington State will try to solve a signal calling problem by using '64 letterman halfback Mike Cadigan there.

Duffy Daughtery at Michigan State has defensive haflback Jesse Phillips at offensive halfback, Drake Garrett making the reverse move and halfback Mitch Pruiett to defensive guard. At Dayton, Mike Wilson, 245, goes from tackle to provide the needed big fullback. Indiana speedster John Ginter switches from set back to flanker.

Broyles is performing his latest version of the Arkansas juggle featuring the move of Tommy Trantham from starting defensive halfback to split end where his work succeeding Bobby Crockett may decide the success of the Porkers' Southwest Conference title defense.

Tulane is officially an independent this year after seceeding from the Southeastern Conference. Memphis State has joined the Missouri Valley Conference but is not eligible for the football crown this fall. A flock of victims of the Air Force cribbing scandal of two years ago will appear as University of Arizona starters.

Passing will continue to be on the upswing. Syracuse showed more aerial punch when sophomore Jim Del Gaizo fired two touchdown tosses in the Varsity (32) - Alumni (7) spring game. But nowhere will it be more in evidence than at Texas Western, where Billy Stevens and Brooks Dawson shot it out with footballs in a 43-41 spring gunnery drill.

Oliva, Killebrew Hit Homers In 10th, Twins Extend Streak

BOSTON (AP) — Tony Oliva and Harmon Killebrew slugged successive homers in the 10th inning, giving Minnesota a 4-2 victory over Boston Saturday night and extending the Twins' winning string to six games.

Oliva led off the 10th against Red Sox reliever Roland Sheldon with his 21st homer of the year and Killebrew followed with his 28th.

The victory went to Al Worthington, who relieved Jim Perry in the ninth after Bob Tillman's pinch hit homer had lifted the Red Sox into a win.

Perry scattered eight hits until the ninth and led 2-1 by virtue of Cesar Tovar's run-scoring single in the seventh.

The Red Sox took a 1-0 lead in the fifth on a single by pitcher Dennis Bennett, a wild pitch, a walk and Carl Yastrzemski's single.

Minnesota, hitless until the fifth, tied the score in the sixth on singles by Zoilo Versalles, Oliva and Killebrew. The Twins moved ahead on singles by Ted Uhlaender, Versalles and Tovar in the seventh.

Costly Miscues Defeat Dolphins

JACKSONVILLE (AP) — The New York Jets, playing without their injured star Joe Namath, took advantage of costly miscues by the Miami Dolphins and whipped the new team in the American Football League, 31-14 in an exhibition game Saturday night.

A fumble, two pass interceptions and a high pass from center on a punt attempt gave New York the ball for scoring drives. The win was the Jets' second straight. The Dolphins are still winless.

Mike Taliaferro, filling in for injured Namath was unable to complete a pass on the rain-soaked field until late in the third quarter. But the Jets scored in every period.

The new Miami squad was unable to cross the Jets goal line in the first half. Veteran quarterback Dick Wood, who took over for the Dolphins in the second half, scored both of the Miami touchdowns on pass-plays of 43 yards to flanker Bo Roberson and one of 27 yards to Frank Jackson.

Drainard Paulson recovered a fumble from Dolphin halfback Sam Price on the Miami 18 to set up the first score. New York fullback Matt Snell scored on the next play and Jim Turner added the extra point. Turner kicked a 31-yard field goal when the Jets got another break.

U.S. Interest Rates For Borrowing Money Climbing To Near Record Levels

WASHINGTON (AP) — The tight-money picture tightened another notch this week, and the outlook is for more of the same, at least in the immediate future.

Interest rates — the price borrowers pay for money — are now at record or near-record levels, and pressure for further boosts will undoubtedly intensify before easing up. A combination of factors will make September a key month.

The Johnson administration, at this point, plans no drastic moves to roll back rates. One government source said such a switch in policy might do more harm than good, considering the delicate nature of the problem.

But the door has been left open for a possible tax increase, partly to help pay for the rising costs of the Viet Nam war, to cover extra appropriations voted by Congress, and to help dampen inflation by cutting off some of the consumer demand for goods and services.

"It's still an open question," one administration source said Saturday in emphasizing that no decisions had been made yet.

A request to Congress for a tax increase, however, is more likely to come next January, if it comes at all, when the administration is expected to seek more money — possibly $5 billion to $6 billion — for the Viet Nam war.

For the immediate future, the administration reportedly plans no further request to Congress to limit interest rates beyond what it has already proposed. And these proposals are designed mainly to make more money available to the home-mortgage market.

Some members of the Federal Reserve Board, which has repeatedly tightened credit over the past few months as an anti-inflationary measure, have publicly urged the administration to seek a tax increase to dampen inflation, contending tight money was being asked to carry too much of the burden.

One administration source said the Federal Reserve, in tightening the money picture, was convinced that any loosening would not result in greater output but only in higher prices — in other words, inflation.

This source said he agreed with that thinking.

High interest rates are only a symptom of inflationary pressures since money, like other commodities, reacts to the law of supply and demand.

The actual amount of money in circulation has risen this year, but the demand for it has grown even faster, especially to finance record business purchases of plant and equipment, expected to exceed $60 billion during 1966.

Many economists have recommended suspending the seven per cent investment tax credit on new equipment to lessen demand in this area, but Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler renewed his opposition to this approach only last week. This was after commercial banks had raised their prime interest rates for the fourth time since last December.

Prime interest is the interest rate granted to a bank's best customers, usually large corporations. It has risen from 4½ per cent last December to the present 6 per cent, a 33 1-3 per cent hike. Other interest rates are scaled upward from the prime rate.

Legislation now pending in Congress to help the hard-hit home-building industry won't bring over-all interest rates down. At least one bill would place more pressure on them.

The measure most likely to win approval would permit the Federal National Mortgage Association, Fannie Mae as the agency is called, to pump about $3.75 billion into the mortgage market.

But Fannie Mae would get this money by selling debentures and short-term notes and by borrowing from the Treasury. This means the pressures on interest rates would increase.

Another bill given a chance to pass would give the Federal Reserve Board and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. power to fix varying interest rates on different types of deposits. It also would give the Federal Home Loan Bank Board power to set maximum interest rates for savings and loan associations.

This measure is designed to help the mortgage market by cooling the interest rate war for savings between the commercial banks and savings and loan institutions. But one source said it would have little over-all effect on interest rates and would merely redistribute savings.

The main weapon in the interest rate war is the certificate of deposit (CD), a receipt for money left on deposit for a specified period, on which banks can pay up to 5½ per cent.

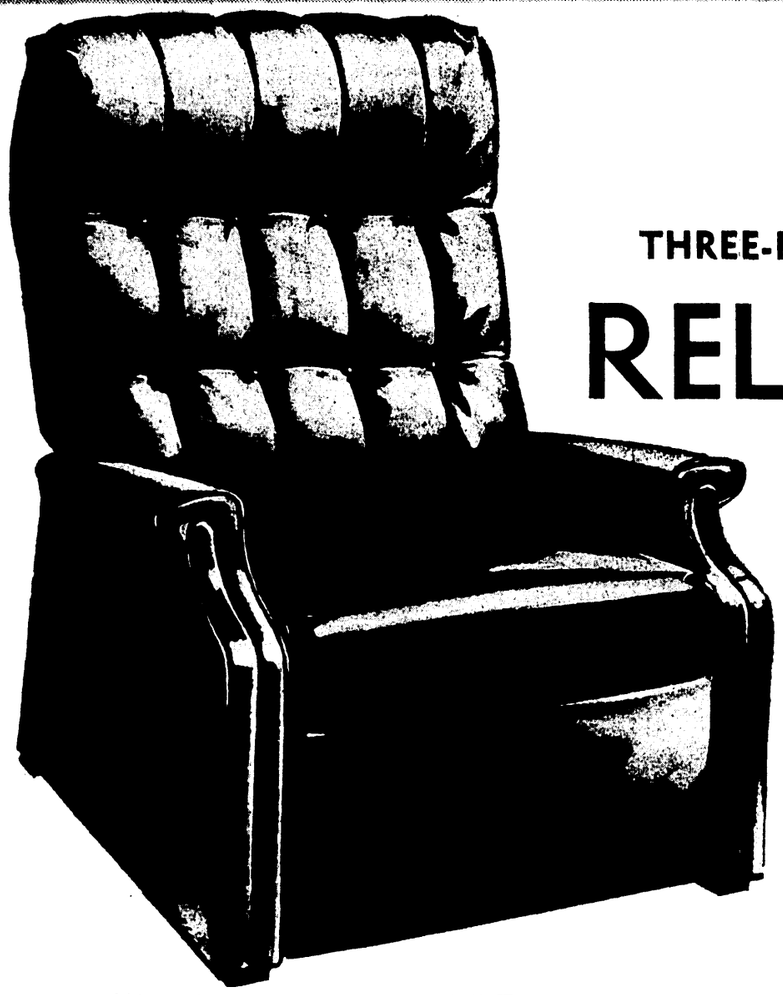

The administration is opposed to any flat 4½ per cent ceiling on CDs issued by banks as proposed by the House Banking Committee.

September is expected to be a key month in the over-all interest rate picture.

That's when the Federal Reserve Board's latest move to restrain the use of CDs goes into effect. This will increase from five to six per cent the reserves that banks must hold against CDs in excess of $5 million. It will mean that several hundred banks must set aside $450 million additional in reserves, thus reducing their lending power by this amount. The board raised this requirement from four to five per cent during July.

Also in September, the nation's 265 largest banks have coming due more than $4 billion in CDs at a time when corporations will be seeking to borrow money to pay the next installment on their taxes.

First Methodist Church Scene of Candlelight Wedding Of Paula Perry, John C. Blackman IV

Masses of pink gladioli, lilies of the Nile, Supreme daisies, stock and pink asters decorated First Methodist Church of Monroe, for the wedding Friday, August 19 of Miss Paula Winston Perry and John Calhoun Blackman IV. White pedestal jardinieres were alternated with wrought iron candelabra entwined with Southern smilax. Pink tapers burned in a candle tree on the altar flanked by spiral candelabra.

White wrought iron hurricane lamps holding pink tapers and clusters of pink gladioli and fern marked the center aisle.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John William Perry of Perryville and Mr. Blackman is the son of Mrs. Henry Bernstein of Monroe and the late John C. Blackman.

Rev. George Harbuck officiated at the double ring ceremony at 7:30 p.m.

As guests were being seated, a prenuptial concert was presented by Mrs. W. W. Wilkerson at the organ. She accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Robert Wood.

The bride entered on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage. She wore a traditional full-length wedding gown of candlelight silk organza over taffeta with Sabrina neckline edged in handrun lace. The sheath skirt was accented at the hemline with a band of Alencon lace, with deep folds at side and back forming a chapel train. She wore a cathedral length mantilla of Brussels lace, and carried a cascade of white butterfly roses, stephanotis and English ivy centered with a white orchid.

Miss Martha Perry, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. The bride's other attendants were Mrs. Harvey Perry, sister-in-law of the bride; Miss Jan Conlin, Miss Susan Sherrouse, and Miss Amanda Cobb, bridesmaids. Their dresses were of shell pink linen with floor length A-line skirts joined to Empire bodices with moss green satin ribbon. Elbow length sleeves ended in a flared ruffle of Dutch lace, and they wore short white gloves. Each wore as headdress a half-circle of pink daisies and English ivy. Their bouquets were sheath cascades of pink daisies and ivy.

The groom's cousin, Margo-Tennis was flower girl. Her dress of pale pink voile was accented at the Empire waistline with a sash of crushed green voile. She wore daisies in her hair and carried a tiny white basket with pink streamers.

Mr. Blackman named Henry Bernstein as his best man. Groomsmen-ushers were Harvey Perry, and John W. Perry, Jr., brothers of the bride; George Smelser, Randy Ewing, Edmund Spillars, Jr., Lyn McCready, Jim Theus, and Jesse Heard, Jr.

Mrs. Perry, mother of the bride, selected for the occasion a floor length dress of aqua chiffon with flowing back panel. The groom's mother, Mrs. Bernstein, wore floor length coral chiffon accented by folds of crushed chiffon at the neckline. Each wore a corsage of white Japhet orchids.

RECEPTION

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Perry were hosts at a reception at Bayou DeSiard country club honoring the newly wed couple. Hurricane lights outlined the curving drive at the club entrance, with burning luau torches reflected in the water at the bayou's edge.

Maidenhair and Boston fern with green and white caladium leaves were banked at the club entrance, with branched candelabra holding dozens of tiny votive lights. Large arrangments of pink flowers highlighted with votives stood on pedestals at each side of the ballroom entrance.

Refreshments were served from wrought iron glass top tables decorated with iron bird cages filled with stephanotis and white candles.

When the couple left on a wedding trip to the Cloister at Sea Island, Georgia, Mrs. Blackman was wearing an A-line dress of blue silk with matching coat, a blue silk cap-ette, and bone accessories. Her corsage was a white orchid.

Masses of pink gladioli, lilies of the Nile, Supreme daisies, stock and pink asters decorated First Methodist Church of Monroe, for the wedding Friday, August 19 of Miss Paula Winston Perry and John Calhoun Blackman IV. White pedestal jardinieres were alternated with wrought iron candelabra entwined with Southern smilax. Pink tapers burned in a candle tree on the altar flanked by spiral candelabra.

Some Couples Like To Fight

BANFF, Alta. (AP) — Some married couples are so immature they actually enjoy bitter domestic bickering, says Dr. R. M. Peet of Victoria, a neurologist.

"Really, they are enjoying having an enormous emotional binge together," he told a group of wives attending a general practitioners' convention here. Sometimes when a cure is proposed for a person who is "sick all the time," the marriage partner is opposed to treatment. "The other partner enjoys seeing this one sick."

MISS BARBARA GAYLE ANTLEY

Robert James Howard Claims Linda Sue Crowell As Bride

Forsythe Avenue Church of Christ in Monroe, was scene of the ceremony Sunday, August 14 which united in marriage Miss Linda Sue Crowell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil C. Crowell, of Mena, Arkansas and Robert James Howard, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Howard, Buckhorn Loop, Monroe.

V. E. Howard, uncle of the groom, performed the double ring ceremony at 3 p.m. following an organ prelude by Mrs. Jack White.

Centering the altar was a mass arrangement of white chrysanthemums with large bouquets of the same flowers on either side alternated with branched candelabra holding white cathedral candles. Preceding the ceremony the candles were lighted by Lance Haines and Nicky White.

Entering on the arm of her father who gave her in marriage the bride wore a gown of white peau de soie. Bands of Alencon lace defined the empire waistline and edged the long fitted sleeves and a deep border of the lace outlined the billowing cathedral train. A cluster of lace flower petals studded with seed pearls formed her headpiece to which her elbow length veil of illusion was attached. She wore a diamond pendant, a gift of the groom and carried a cascade bouquet of a white orchid and stephanotis blossoms.

Miss Sharon Adamson attended the bride as maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Tana McDonald and Miss Judy Howard, sister of the groom. They wore identical floor length gowns of yellow crystalline with yellow lace trim beginning at the empire waist line and extending down either side of the skirt front to encircle the hemline. Their yellow net veils were held in place by three yellow organdy roses. They carried cascades of white glamellias.

Serving as best man for his brother was Gene Howard and groomsmen were Phil New and James Street, both of Searcy, Arkansas. Lance Haines and Nicky White were ushers.

Mrs. Crowell wore for her daughter's wedding a moss green silk suit with hat in tones of brown and green, matching shoes and bag and a phalaenopsis orchid corsage. The groom's mother, Mrs. Howard, was wearing a mint green dress of Italian silk with matching bag and shoes and hat of contrasting beige shades. Her corsage was also of phalaenopsis orchids.

A reception followed in the church fellowship room. Covered with white satin and net the bride's table was centered with a silver epergne holding lighted tapers, white roses and yellow chrysanthemums. Flanking the arrangement were triple branched candelabra holding white tapers. Garlands of greenery and yellow bows adorned the table which held the silver punch bowl and tiered wedding cake at opposite ends.

Miss Cindy Watts served the cake and Mrs. James Street presided at the punch bowl. A white memory candle, encircled at the base with white chrysanthemums was displayed on the guest book table which was presided over by Mrs. Nicky White. Rice bags were presented the guests by Miss Cindy Williams and Miss Nancy Regan.

Assisting with reception courtesies were Mrs. W. C. Hines, Mrs. James Kelly, Mrs. Arthur Barker, Mrs. Charles Regan and Mrs. Bill Irwin.

Some Couples Like To Fight

BANFF, Alta. (AP) — Some married couples are so immature they actually enjoy bitter domestic bickering, says Dr. R. M. Peet of Victoria, a neurologist.

"Really, they are enjoying having an enormous emotional binge together," he told a group of wives attending a general practitioners' convention here. Sometimes when a cure is proposed for a person who is "sick all the time," the marriage partner is opposed to treatment. "The other partner enjoys seeing this one sick."

MISS BARBARA GAYLE ANTLEY

Robert James Howard Claims Linda Sue Crowell As Bride

Forsythe Avenue Church of Christ in Monroe, was scene of the ceremony Sunday, August 14 which united in marriage Miss Linda Sue Crowell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil C. Crowell, of Mena, Arkansas and Robert James Howard, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Howard, Buckhorn Loop, Monroe.

V. E. Howard, uncle of the groom, performed the double ring ceremony at 3 p.m. following an organ prelude by Mrs. Jack White.

Centering the altar was a mass arrangement of white chrysanthemums with large bouquets of the same flowers on either side alternated with branched candelabra holding white cathedral candles. Preceding the ceremony the candles were lighted by Lance Haines and Nicky White.

Entering on the arm of her father who gave her in marriage the bride wore a gown of white peau de soie. Bands of Alencon lace defined the empire waistline and edged the long fitted sleeves and a deep border of the lace outlined the billowing cathedral train. A cluster of lace flower petals studded with seed pearls formed her headpiece to which her elbow length veil of illusion was attached. She wore a diamond pendant, a gift of the groom and carried a cascade bouquet of a white orchid and stephanotis blossoms.

Miss Sharon Adamson attended the bride as maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Tana McDonald and Miss Judy Howard, sister of the groom. They wore identical floor length gowns of yellow crystalline with yellow lace trim beginning at the empire waist line and extending down either side of the skirt front to encircle the hemline. Their yellow net veils were held in place by three yellow organdy roses. They carried cascades of white glamellias.

Serving as best man for his brother was Gene Howard and groomsmen were Phil New and James Street, both of Searcy, Arkansas. Lance Haines and Nicky White were ushers.

Mrs. Crowell wore for her daughter's wedding a moss green silk suit with hat in tones of brown and green, matching shoes and bag and a phalaenopsis orchid corsage. The groom's mother, Mrs. Howard, was wearing a mint green dress of Italian silk with matching bag and shoes and hat of contrasting beige shades. Her corsage was also of phalaenopsis orchids.

A reception followed in the church fellowship room. Covered with white satin and net the bride's table was centered with a silver epergne holding lighted tapers, white roses and yellow chrysanthemums. Flanking the arrangement were triple branched candelabra holding white tapers. Garlands of greenery and yellow bows adorned the table which held the silver punch bowl and tiered wedding cake at opposite ends.

Miss Cindy Watts served the cake and Mrs. James Street presided at the punch bowl. A white memory candle, encircled at the base with white chrysanthemums was displayed on the guest book table which was presided over by Mrs. Nicky White. Rice bags were presented the guests by Miss Cindy Williams and Miss Nancy Regan.

Assisting with reception courtesies were Mrs. W. C. Hines, Mrs. James Kelly, Mrs. Arthur Barker, Mrs. Charles Regan and Mrs. Bill Irwin.

For travel when the couple left on a wedding trip to Biloxi Miss., the bride changed into a light blue three-piece ensemble with matching accessories and the orchid from her bouquet. They will be at home in Searcy, Arkansas where in September both will resume studies at Harding College. A graduate of Mena high school, Mrs. Howard is a member of Zeta Phi Zeta sorority. Mr. Howard was graduated from Neville high school and is a member of Mohican Club at Harding.

Slips Designed For Sleepwear

LONDON (AP)—Milady sleep in her underwear?

It may not be done, but the trend-setters are trying to get it done.

A local manufacturer has introduced the sleep slip.

Leaving the wearer's midrift bare, the bra part and the skirt part join just above the hips.

Designed for wearing on hot summer nights, it can also be worn with a midrift dress.

"In its small way, it is likely to revolutionize the lingerie look," said one fashion writer.

"My guess is that once you have slept in a slip, you'll prefer it to all the bows and frills."

For travelling, the sleep slip folds up as small as a headscarf, needs no ironing and will, in a pinch, do double duty as a slip beneath a dress.

'Scrubdenim' Is New Western Look For Old Favorite

The rough 'n' rugged Western look, long popular with girls out on the range has been corralled by the city folks this season . . .there's a real natural for active sportswear, "Scrubdenim."

Durable blue cotton denim has gone through many a transformation in recent years. First it was lightened to a fresh powdered blue; then it was brightened and ran the gamut of every color in the spectrum.

Next it was given a bit of stretch and expanded into an entire collection of exciting shirts, jumpers, knee-knockers, shorts, etc.

Now comes another big change for dauntless denim . . . it has been scrubbed and brushed for that aged, broken look.

It promises to lasso many a lassie, for it is swinging out all over the place. For the nautical daydreaming ranger, there's a salty navy pea coat with coordinated lace-front, hip - slung pants.

A contrasting cotton "poor boy" makes this a racy roundup.

For the city-bred cowgirl who is more likely to mount a cycle than a horse, there are roll-up jeans in bridled colors of cranberry, Loden green, white, wheat and faded blue "scrubdenim." Harnessed to tritone easy-care acrylic poor boys dyed to match . . . they head for the wide open spaces.

For dress-up, Western style: fashionably tailored jacket and skirt with floral patch pockets. . . . ditto floral print in shirt.

MRS. RODNEY WAYNE FORTENBERRY

Blue, White Theme Used For Wedding

The wedding of Miss Sheila Rae Overby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Enos L. Overby, to Rodney Wayne Fortenberry, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Fortenberry, all of Lake Providence, was solemnized Saturday, August 13 in First Baptist Church of Lake Providence.

Sunburst arrangements of white gladioli and Fuji chrysanthemums in floor baskets and a arch of candles banked with fern and white chrysanthemums formed a background setting. Three candles in brass standards outlined the setting on either side.

Rev. Myron H. Stagg performed the double ring vows at 7 p.m. following an organ prelude by David Tschabold, who also accompanied the soloist, Miss Gayle Grossman.

Mr. Overby gave his daughter in marriage. The bride wore a full length gown of white peau de soie featuring a gently shaped empire bodice with bell sleeves of Alencon lace and a wide oval neckline. A cathedral train fell from the back waistline defined by a peau bow. Her bouffant veil of silk illusion was held in place by a large peau de soie rose, encrusted with seed pearls. She carried a bouquet comprised of white carnations and a white orchid with lace.

Dressed identically in ice blue peau de soie frocks were the bride's attendants, Miss Vanice French, maid of honor and bridesmaids, Miss Jane Fortenberry, cousin of the groom and Miss Pam McKenzie. The bell-skirted dresses were styled with fitted bodices, scoop necks and raglan sleeves. Matching shoes and tiny veils held in place by blue roses completed their ensembles and each carried a single white chrysanthemum tied with a shower of blue ribbons caught up with frenched chrysanthemums.

Junior bridesmaid, Miss Cheryl Fortenberry, sister of the groom, wore an A-line frock in ice blue peau de soie with a front pleat and self bow.

Foundation Makeup Helps Camouflage Blotches, Freckles

On the occasions when your complexion is not as clear as you would like it to be, you may combat blotches, dry skin, freckles and moles by applying make-up so they will not be noticed.

When your skin if blotchy, smooth on slightly more make-up foundation than usual, concentrating on the blotched areas to form an even, all-of-one-color look. If a tiny scar offends you, blend over it, and proceed with your make-up as usual. Freckles do not necessarily have to be completely covered. Instead, softly camouflage them with a veil of make-up and add puffs of matching powder. Then, draw attention from the freckles to your eyes with the current dramatic applications of fluid eye liner, shadow and mascara.

In addition, focus attention on your lips with an attractive lip pattern brushed on in the newest color and highlighted with one of the exciting frosted tints. Make daily use of lotions and night creams to eliminate and soften dry skin.

'New' Furs Vary In Wear Strength

By FLORENCE DE SANTIS

Many younger women are hesitating about some of the "new" furs that look so delightfully youthful. They wonder about the wear qualities.

It's true that furs vary widely in their wear strength, but this is true also of expensive furs. Thus chinchilla is fragile, while sable is durable.

So in the "new," less expensive furs, rabbit is less durable than muskrat, simply because all the soft, fine-haired furs are more fragile than the long-haired furs of coarser texture.

If durability is important, ask the furrier about wear quality.

Avoid spills by placing a strip of adhesive tape around the top of a child's drinking glass. It gives him a better grip.

'New' Furs Vary In Wear Strength

By FLORENCE DE SANTIS

Many younger women are hesitating about some of the "new" furs that look so delightfully youthful. They wonder about the wear qualities.

It's true that furs vary widely in their wear strength, but this is true also of expensive furs. Thus chinchilla is fragile, while sable is durable.

So in the "new," less expensive furs, rabbit is less durable than muskrat, simply because all the soft, fine-haired furs are more fragile than the long-haired furs of coarser texture.

If durability is important, ask the furrier about wear quality.

Ah, summer, and summer's visitors. At this time of year the calendar is filled with parties for out of town guests of all ages. There's no place better to visit than Monroe; no hostesses who so enjoy a visitor to fete.

Several young women who grew up in Monroe and now live away have been in town this week and have been entertained at a number of small, informal luncheons. JEANIE WILSON (Mrs. Harry) MORESI, who now lives in New Iberia, has been here with her parents, the T. FITZHUGH WILSONS . . . .ANN FLINN (Mrs. Hall) PEYTON is home from South Dartmouth, Mass., the guest of the CLIFTON FLINNS. . . .MINETTE SMITH, who has been living in Dallas, is spending the summer with the SAM SMITHS. . .and MARILYN MUSSETT (Mrs. Bill) RHODES is here from Houston with Bills parents, the D. W. RHODES.

On Monday, LYNDA DANSBY and Minette entertained at luncheon honoring Marilyn. The party was held at the Chateau . . .Tuesday's party for the group was at Bayou DeSiard country club, when Mary Emma Wilson complimented her daughter . . . Zanona Flinn was hostess for luncheon on Thursday, also at Bayou DeSiard country club.

Members of the junior high set welcomed visiting MARY MITCHELL of Opelousas, guest of her aunt and uncle, JIBBY and LARRY FOX. Mary arrived last weekend, is to leave today. Monday evening Jibby honored Mary at a supper party at her home. Twelve contemporaries were invited for outdoor games and picnic supper. Jibby served fried chicken, baked beans, and Eskimo pies for dessert . . . . Tuesday ANN SHELTON invited Mary and ten other girls for swimming at the home of her aunt, MARY ALICE HUSTED.

On Wednesday, BETSY HOLMES and BETTY HEUER were hostesses for an all-day party. Twelve guests were invited to the Holmes home on Milton, arriving about mid-morning. Picnic lunch of sandwiches, potato chips, ice cream sandwiches, homemade cookies, and bottled drinks was served on the porch. Later the group walked to FRANCES McHENRY's for an afternoon swim.

Guests in the home of HELEN and ROY LEDBETTER have been Roy's mother, MRS. R. H. LEDBETTER, SR., of Birmingham, Alabama; and sister, JANE (Mrs. James) NORTHCUTT of Anniston; and Jane's sons, ROY, NELSON, DAVID, and REID. They arrived on Monday, were here until Friday.

Wednesday at noon, BETTY B JACKSON complimented these visitors with luncheon at her home on Forsythe avenue. The table was centered with an arrangement of crape myrtle and roses and set with cranberry china and glassware. Betty B.'s menu included chicken and asparagus casserole, heavenly salad, hot rolls, and pound cake topped with ice cream, butterscotch, and nuts.

Home again after a two week trip are ELAINE and JOE MICKEY and their children, BRUCE, JOHN, JANE, and DAWN. They spent a week at Jekyll Island, Georgia, and later toured Florida, visiting St. Augustine and Silver Springs. . . Tomorrow they expect houseguests: Elaine's brother and his family, the FRANK FICHTERS, BRUCE and DONNIE. They are to arrive tomorrow for a week's stay.

Guests in the AUSTIN MILLER home this weekend are Agnes' cousins, MRS. EDWIN LEE CLARK and her daughter, JANE, of Charleston, S.C. They arrived on Thursday, stopping over for a few days before leaving tomorrow for El Paso, Texas to attend a wedding. Yesterday morning Agnes invited a few contemporaries of Jane's to meet her guest.

Due home today are members of Lt. Joseph Bowmar Society, Children of the American Revolution, who have been attending the Southeastern Regional meeting of CAR in Mobile, Alabama. They left on Thursday, visited the Governor's Mansion and picked up passengers in Baton Rouge, arrived in Mobile that night . . . Just in time for a party, we might add. ELAINE HENRY and LOU LEMERT, celebrating their mutual birthday, invited the busload to a "cake and drink" party in their room at the Admiral Semmes motel . . . Friday's schedule included sightseeing, a workshop, and a beachcombers' party . . . Yesterday was the regional business meeting, a reception for national officers, and the annual banquet and dance.

At this time of year, a large number of new homes are being completed in the favorable weather. We hope to keep our readers informed about these in the months ahead. This week we visited the lovely new home of the KENT ANDERSONS at 2707 Pargoud Boulevard. Designed on the lines of Louisiana colonial dwellings, the house features a hip roof of asbestos slate. It is constructed of antique brick obtained by the Andersons from the interior of the old Farmerville school. Old wrought iron panels were obtained for use as a front fence, with square "posts" of the brick. Square brick columns highlight both front and rear facades.

A gallery extends across the entire front, with the columns. Flooring is also of the old brick. Dark green butterfly shutters hang at the arched windows. The double front doors are of native pine with dark walnut stain.

In the entrance hall, flooring is of cut slate squares separated by dark oak strips in basket weave. Walls are papered with a grey-green design on paler green background, used above white wainscotting of raised panelling. A gold framed mirror hangs above a Spanish bombe chest. The hall continues around the corner to the left to double doors which open into the dining room.

Wall treatment as in the entrance is used in the dining room, with floors of quarter-sawed oak. At the windows are draperies of pale celadon green antique silk edged with avocado fringe. The green is repeated in the stried velvet host chairs which are used with fruitwood dining table and side chairs. Hanging above the table is a Williamsburg brass chandelier.

Straight ahead from the entrance is the living room, panelled in a combination of birch and pine in raised panels which have been stained, wiped, and glazed to given an antique appearance. Floors are of oak, with two woven - to -measure area rugs of palest celadon with raised pile edge: a square one before the hearth, an octagon under the standing game table. In one corner is a massive plant in an antique Chinoserie jardiniere. Before the fireplace are a pale green sofa; two chairs covered in a combination of crewel embroidery and green velvet. Lovely old bronze urns decorate the mantel.

Rear wall of the living room is of glass: two pairs of double French doors which open onto the back gallery flank a fixed 12-light panel. Cornice at the window is formed by the molding which encircles the ten-foot ceiling. Hanging from beneath the cornice are draperies of pale green with avocado fringe.

To the right of the entrance are the guest room and the master suite. In the former, a wallpaper in shades of blue and green is used above white wainscotting. At the windows are white shutters in lieu of curtains. Corduroy spreads echo wallpaper colors.

One wall of the master bedroom, incorporating the open fireplace, is of the antique brick used in exterior construction; other three are painted a pale, pale, green. Against the brick hangs an antiqued gold sconce, balanced by a heavy candlestick placed at the opposite end of the mantel. Carpetting is a deeper shade of the green wall. A green Toile print is seen on the chaise lounge, in dust ruffle, pillow, and draperies. Glass curtains of palest martini hang under the draperies, and both draw over French doors which give onto the back gallery. Book shelves at each side and across the top frame the doors. Kent's desk is built into a niche between fireplace and bookshelves; disappears behind folding louvered doors. Headboard of the king-size bed is antiqued gold, with hanging fixtures at each side.

At the far end of the entrance "L" are double doors into the kitchen passageway which opens in turn to the formal dining room on the front, family dining room to the rear of the house. This passage is lined with double doored cabinets designed to hold Yvonne's china and silver; deep, long drawers for table linens and table leaves.

Cabinets in the kitchen are of fruitwood finish, with banded molding. Wallpaper above is a blue and gold print on white. This room opens into the family dining room, where furniture is of wrought iron: table with glass top, chairs with yellow cushions. One wall is filled with built-ins: stereo equipment, record storage, snack bar, household desk. The end of the room is completely filled by double sliding glass doors, over which draw draperies of loosely woven natural linen hung on brass rods.

Beyond is the family room, panelled in pine with driftwood finish. Built-in gun cabinets and trophy case frame the player piano. Flooring here is scored concrete, stained with acid and waxed. Furniture is "boy-proof", covered in washable yellows or black nagahyde. The boys' suite open from this room. SCOTT's and MARK's rooms have the same panelling, with a trace more green in the stain. Shutters are used at their windows, with colorful spreads providing a note of color.

Opening from the hall which connects family room and boys' bedrooms are also their private bath, toy closet, and stairs to the playroom. Almost the entire second floor is devoted to a long room floored with squares of black and white asbestos. Walls are white, draperies and cushions black and white ticking with red ball fringe. The furniture includes a black leather kingsize sofa, a pool table, a regulation size pinball machine, and full size snack bar. Dormers with window seats overlook the bayou.

These have been known, time out of mind, as "Dog Days"—and why? There are those who mutter something about the dog star being in ascendancy, but every housewife knows the real reason, as expressed in this ditty entitled "Work-Like-A-Dog Days":

I can't agree with Porgy's rhyme;
The sentiment is cheesy:
Who ever thought of summertime
As when the living's easy?
You seed and weed and mulch and hoe;
You clean and paint the kitchen:
There's grass to cut and hay to mow—
You're always in there pitching.
You picnic or you cook outdoors;
No cinch, preparing food;
And if you stray to ocean shores
You, too, are barbecued.
Well, Bess, if you's my woman now,
No harm I guess in axin:
Aint wintertime about a thousand times the more relaxing?

ANNOUNCEMENT is made by Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Spears Jr., 1601 Oaklawn Drive, Monroe of the engagement of their daughter, Linda Yvonne to Martin Cary Risley Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin C. Risley, 906 S. 5th, Monroe. Both graduated from Ouachita Parish high school. The bride-elect attended Northeast and her fiance was graduated from Louisiana Tech School of Engineering. A September wedding is planned following which the couple will be at home in Auburn, Alabama, where Mr. Risley will enter Auburn University for graduate study.

Household Hints

The odor of paint is lessened if a small dish of vinegar is kept in the room where the painting is being done.

Rotate pieces of silver, especially if you own a great deal. By using or displaying certain items periodically, they'll be bright when it's time for company.

To make crisp watermelon rind pickles or preserves, start by soaking the rind in lime or salt water. Use 4 tablespoons of salt per quart of water or 2 teaspoons of slaked lime per quart.

To save on the food budget, compare the relative costs of different forms of the same product — such as fresh, canned, frozen or dried.

Drawers in a chest will slide easier if the edges are rubbed lightly with a cake of soap.

If neither fresh nor dried dill is available, dill seed may be used when making pickles at home.

Patent Leather Shoes Will Glow Through Fall, Winter

Patent leather: a tannage for all seasons. That's what women will find when they see Fall '66 footwear styles in this dazzling leather texture.

Those who still think of patent leather as "strictly for spring" and "only in black" are due for a few surprises, predicts Leather Industries of America. In the past few years, advanced tanning techniques using urethane finishes have resulted in new patent leathers made to wear through the coldest wettest weather without cracking. And all in a palette of patent colors that has gone far beyond basic black — to plum, wedgewood blue, red, white, taupe, avocado, dark brown, and a smashing spectrum of other tones and tints.

Patent leather will glow through fall and winter in every shoe style from boots to barefoot sandals. Genuine patent leather, of course, has the natural moldability that all leathers have. Its pliant animal construction allows the leather to shape itself lightly to the foot, flexing and stretching easily as you walk. Furthermore, only genuine patent leather is moisture-absorbing, drawing in perspiration so that the foot does not feel hot and damp.

Daytime footwear has a lively lustre when crafted in colorful patent leather. Contoured for comfort in up-to-the-season wider toe-shapes, pert patents come in new "spat" shoe styles, low-heeled mary janes, ankle bootees, chunky-heeled pumps and graceful sling-backs. Many of the smartest combine colors, as a single-strapped mary-jane in deep brown patent leather with white patent heel and piping. Soled in leather, there's double support, double pliability.

Genuine patent — the gloss of fashion — puts sparkle into casual and dressy shoes as well. Look for pretty patent leather mules and flats for at-home wear, and patent-tie shoes and moccasins for a different kind of leather casual. Their no-crack, no-fuss finish requires only a quick flick with a damp cloth or tissue to regain their shining good looks.

When the sun goes down, patent leather lights up the evening scene in mid and high-heeled pumps and sandals. Most tastefully bare the foot — either by stressing straps, or through vamp and side openings, slings, or completely cut-away sides.

Double Ring Vows Unite Couple In West Monroe

Vows uniting in marriage Miss Peggy Louise Mahoney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David M. Albritton of Downsville.

Seven branched candelabra holding lighted tapers against a background of greenery and two baskets of white gladioli formed a setting at the altar where Rev. E. L. Tanner performed the double ring ceremony at 7:30 p.m.

Mrs. Mary Cockman of St. Louis, Mo., organist, presented appropriate music and accompanied the soloist, Miss Marsha Cockman, also of St. Louis.

The bride was escorted by her father who gave her in marriage. Her traditional white gown comprised a lace bodice with long sleeves and a full chiffon skirt. A crown of pearls held in place her tulle veil trimmed with lace. She carried a bouquet of yellow rose buds surrounded by white flowers.

Wearing yellow lace trimmed dresses in afternoon length were the bride's attendants, Miss Renee Wall, maid of honor; Mrs. Shelton Spell, matron of honor, Miss Laura Henry, Miss Carmen Cockman, St. Louis, Mo., bridesmaids and Miss Janice Ashbrook, junior bridesmaid. Their headdresses were bows and veils of yellow point d'esprite and they wore white gloves and carried yellow chrysanthemums on white satin heart shaped pillows.

A reception was held following the ceremony in the church fellowship hall. The yellow and white color scheme was carried out in the decor with a large arrangement of yellow roses forming the table centerpiece. White wedding bells and ivy decorated the reception area. Roses also encircled the all white tiered wedding cake.

The couple is at home in West Monroe.

Little Clutch Bag Appears In Fur For Costume Accent

By FLORENCE DE SANTIS

The clutch is a handy little bag, especially when it's a fold-over that can expand at need. Enger-Kress has been making them for a long time in all sorts of fabrics, colors and patterns.

For fall they have a winner in fur. Their little Grab Bags, as they call their clutches, are now in stencilled leopard black monkey fur or fluffy red fox.

They are a great accent for daytime suits in the leopard or fox, for cocktail and evening dresses in the monkey fur, and they're already being snatched up everywhere as a new delightful fad.

Patent Leather Shoes Will Glow Through Fall, Winter

Patent leather: a tannage for all seasons. That's what women will find when they see Fall '66 footwear styles in this dazzling leather texture.

Those who still think of patent leather as "strictly for spring" and "only in black" are due for a few surprises, predicts Leather Industries of America. In the past few years, advanced tanning techniques using urethane finishes have resulted in new patent leathers made to wear through the coldest wettest weather without cracking. And all in a palette of patent colors that has gone far beyond basic black — to plum, wedgewood blue, red, white, taupe, avocado, dark brown, and a smashing spectrum of other tones and tints.

Patent leather will glow through fall and winter in every shoe style from boots to barefoot sandals. Genuine patent leather, of course, has the natural moldability that all leathers have. Its pliant animal construction allows the leather to shape itself lightly to the foot, flexing and stretching easily as you walk. Furthermore, only genuine patent leather is moisture-absorbing, drawing in perspiration so that the foot does not feel hot and damp.

Daytime footwear has a lively lustre when crafted in colorful patent leather. Contoured for comfort in up-to-the-season wider toe-shapes, pert patents come in new "spat" shoe styles, low-heeled mary janes, ankle bootees, chunky-heeled pumps and graceful sling-backs. Many of the smartest combine colors, as a single-strapped mary-jane in deep brown patent leather with white patent heel and piping. Soled in leather, there's double support, double pliability.

Genuine patent — the gloss of fashion — puts sparkle into casual and dressy shoes as well. Look for pretty patent leather mules and flats for at-home wear, and patent-tie shoes and moccasins for a different kind of leather casual. Their no-crack, no-fuss finish requires only a quick flick with a damp cloth or tissue to regain their shining good looks.

When the sun goes down, patent leather lights up the evening scene in mid and high-heeled pumps and sandals. Most tastefully bare the foot — either by stressing straps, or through vamp and side openings, slings, or completely cut-away sides.

FORTHCOMING MARRIAGE of Miss Mary Frances Dukes and Charles 'Chuck' L. Reid is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. David D. Dukes of West Monroe. He is the son of Mrs. Jack Reid and the late Mr. Reid of Houston, Texas. The wedding will be an event of September 3 in the Chapel of First Methodist Church, West Monroe.

Shreveport Home Planned By Luther Glynn Tubbs, Bride

Miss Carol Ann Hartman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Lester Hartman Jr., of Farmerville, became the bride of Luther Glynn Tubbs, son of Mrs. Luther Hammons Tubbs of Bernice, in a candlelight ceremony Saturday, August 20 in the First Baptist Church of Farmerville.

Rev. Davey L. Hughes performed the double ring ceremony before an arched background of greenery and lighted tapers. On each side of the altar were arrangements of white gladioli, chrysanthemums and stock, flanked by branched candelabra holding cathedral tapers.

Mrs. Frank Yelton, organist, Mrs. K. D. Kilpatrick, pianist and Randy Gillum, soloist, presented wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a formal gown of imported silk and hand clipped Venice lace. The high rise bodice was defined by reembroidered lace medallions and featured a gently scooped neckline, and flair sleeves embellished with lace insets. A chapel train in triple tiers fell from a bow at the back waistline of the slim floor length skirt. Her veil of silk illusion was attached to a queen's crown of tiny pearls and iridescent sequins. She carried a bouquet of white bridal roses surrounding a white orchid.

Miss Patti Hartman attended her sister as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Bette Van Zandt of Alexandria; Miss Lamora Brummett of Shreveport and Miss Lynn Baughman of Farmerville. They wore identical floor length gowns of sea foam aqua crepe fashioned with high rise bodices and featuring full length lace trains. Their headdresses were silk organza roses in sea foam aqua with circular veils and they carried bouquets of white roses.

Flower girl was Miss Terri Lynn Tubbs, who was dressed identically to the bridesmaids and carried a basket of rose petals. Toby Glynn and Tony Ronald Tubbs served as ring bearers.

Wayne Tubbs attended his brother as best man and groomsmen-ushers were Robert Dean Tubbs, Sidney Earl Copeland and William Anthony McDonough.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Hartman was wearing a turquoise model of imported silk crepe and lace with matching accessories and a white orchid corsage. Mrs. Tubbs, mother of the groom, wore a dress of pale pink crepe with accessories to match and a white orchid corsage.

Following the ceremony the bride's parents entertained at a reception in the church reception rooms.

The bride's table was draped with white satin overlaid with tulle, caught at intervals with wedding bells. Centering the table was an arrangement of pink roses in a silver epergne flanked by silver candelabra holding white tapers. At opposite ends were the silver punch bowl and tiered wedding cake. Mrs. Jurd Stewart served the cake and alternating at the punch bowl were Mrs. Sidney Wynn and Mrs. Wayne Tubbs.

A seven branch brass candelabrum holding aqua tapers, entwined with English ivy and clusters of grapes formed the decor for the groom's table. A miniature school slate to emphasize the groom's profession completed the arrangement. Mrs. Jack Slade and Miss Ruth Hartman alternated at the groom's cake.

Guests registered at a table on which was displayed a memory candle, decorated with white flowers and ivy. Miss Judy Adams presided at the guest book.

Rice bags were presented guests by Misses Melaine Bennett and Sherree Sehon, dressed in floor length pastel frocks. Assisting in the courtesies were Miss Linda Upshaw, Miss Jo Ann Wiley, Mrs. David Yarbrough, Mrs. Dick Bass, Mrs. Harry Sehon, Miss Pam Sehon, Miss Kay Sehon and Miss Brenda Carol Davidson.

When the couple departed for a wedding trip to Florida the bride was wearing an oyster white fall costume suit with tiny pillbox hat and matching accessories. Her corsage was the orchid from her bouquet. Upon their return the couple will reside in Shreveport where Mr. Tubbs is a member of the Faculty at Fair Park high school.

'Fake Look' Has Flair Effect In Fall's Fashion Jewelry

Just as Fall's clothing fashion leads a double life — swingy by day, sweet by night — so does Fall's fashion jewelry. The "Fake Look" has a special effect flair — bold, bulky and very colorful — for a dash of drama. The "Real Look," on the other hand, is a style statement of ladylike allure, a modest answer to Mod. Both are musts for Fall's fashionable femme.

The big and bold in jewelry is making a tremendous fashion splash. Magnificent ropes and chains of multi-colored stones and beads, huge bangles and bracelets, and long, dramatic earrings go way out to be way "in." Oriental arm bands and slave and spiral bracelets are bright and beautiful for an exotic Autumn.

Gold-colored pieces of huge geometric patterns and shapes, and "pop" plastic are colorful and ultra-contemporary for Fall.

In necklaces there is a greater variety than ever. Ranging from chokers to long, long strands, from delicate chains to multi-stranded ropes from heirloom pendants to heavy "pendulums," necklaces are having a real fashion fling.

Bracelets too make the scene with multi-colored charms, gold-colored filigreed ornaments, and chunky, shaped stones. Favorite bracelet color combinations are gold and platinum — very rich! — and black and white, whether jet and crystal or black and white enamel.

Pins move up front with stunning style innovations. Enamel pins combined with gold in unusual motifs are rising in popularity, as are antique and heirloom designs. Whether textured, bejewelled, intricate or bulky, pins add a major dash of drama to the season's fashion.

And earrings have gone to dramatic lengths for Autumn, with designs, colors and shapes styled to stun with delight. More and more designs are available in pierced earrings as their popularity seem to know no bounds. Rings too turn a round into a rage with new big, bold and beautiful designs.

For the "Real Look" bracelet, necklaces and pins make impressive imitations of precious jewelry. Tailored gold jewelry remains a fashionable front runner. Sprinkled lightly with colored stones to provide either harmony or contrast, gold colored jewelry is ideal for Autumnal elegance. And this year silver debuts into dramatic glamour; for the first time sterling silver jewelry enters the realm of exquisite evening-wear. Spotlighting beautiful and intricate designs in pins, bracelets and necklaces, silver jewelry takes the stage this year.

GAY ACCESSORIES

If your dress is black, ACCESSORIZE it with crimson and orange. Brown or red calls for yellow and purple. And purple looks smashing with lilac and yellow. Are these 1966 combinations? Not at all. They were taken from an etiquette book published in 1894.

SYNTHETIC FABRICS

Fabrics, such as silk and worsteds, silks, nubby-faced fabrics, souffle types, checks and plaids, will be important. Synthetics and synthetic-looking wools will be very strong.

Boys Express Views Of Girl Fashions

It may — or may not — be true that women dress to impress other women. But it is fairly sure that teen-age girls dress to impress teen-age boys.

Do they succeed?

Not too often, according to a small survey by Boys' Clubs of America. The sampling is not a thorough check of the 700,000 youngsters who turn to their Clubs for fun and understanding. But it does give some insight into their thinking.

When they were queried on basic fashions, the boys came up with these comments —

Stockings: "Not those things with patterns that look like she has measles or chickenpox".

Shoes: Boots are okay, but belong to boys — really. Dirty and sloppy shoes are out. (Boys who enjoy them don't like them on their dates).

Skirt length: "Did they ever take a good look at their knees?"

Hairdo's: Surprisingly, hair pieces are okay. But, oh how they hate those rollers. "You can't say anything — but they look awful. And don't they want to look good?"

Make-Up: "Not that bleary black look" around the eyes. And not dead white nails and lips. Girls should have pink cheeks, lips, fingernails.

Tapered slacks: Okay — but not for my girl.

FORTHCOMING MARRIAGE of Miss Mary Frances Dukes and Charles 'Chuck' L. Reid is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. David D. Dukes of West Monroe. He is the son of Mrs. Jack Reid and the late Mr. Reid of Houston, Texas. The wedding will be an event of September 3 in the Chapel of First Methodist Church, West Monroe.

Shreveport Home Planned By Luther Glynn Tubbs, Bride

Miss Carol Ann Hartman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Lester Hartman Jr., of Farmerville, became the bride of Luther Glynn Tubbs, son of Mrs. Luther Hammons Tubbs of Bernice, in a candlelight ceremony Saturday, August 20 in the First Baptist Church of Farmerville.

Rev. Davey L. Hughes performed the double ring ceremony before an arched background of greenery and lighted tapers. On each side of the altar were arrangements of white gladioli, chrysanthemums and stock, flanked by branched candelabra holding cathedral tapers.

Mrs. Frank Yelton, organist, Mrs. K. D. Kilpatrick, pianist and Randy Gillum, soloist, presented wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a formal gown of imported silk and hand clipped Venice lace. The high rise bodice was defined by reembroidered lace medallions and featured a gently scooped neckline, and flair sleeves embellished with lace insets. A chapel train in triple tiers fell from a bow at the back waistline of the slim floor length skirt. Her veil of silk illusion was attached to a queen's crown of tiny pearls and irridescent sequins. She carried a bouquet of white bridal roses surrounding a white orchid.

Miss Patti Hartman attended her sister as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Bette Van Zandt of Alexandria; Miss Lamora Brummett of Shreveport and Miss Lynn Baughman of Farmerville. They wore identical floor length gowns of sea foam aqua crepe fashioned with high rise bodices and featuring full length lace trains. Their headdresses were silk organza roses in sea foam aqua with circular veils and they carried bouquets of white roses.

Flower girl was Miss Terri Lynn Tubbs, who was dressed identically to the bridesmaids and carried a basket of rose petals. Toby Glynn and Tony Ronald Tubbs served as ring bearers.

Wayne Tubbs attended his brother as best man and groomsmen-ushers were Robert Dean Tubbs, Sidney Earl Copeland and William Anthony McDonough.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Hartman was wearing a turquoise model of imported silk crepe and lace with matching accessories and a white orchid corsage. Mrs. Tubbs, mother of the groom, wore a dress of pale pink crepe with accessories to match and a white orchid corsage.

Following the ceremony the bride's parents entertained at a reception in the church reception rooms.

The bride's table was draped with white satin overlaid with tulle, caught at intervals with wedding bells. Centering the table was an arrangement of pink roses in a silver epergne flanked by silver candelabra holding white tapers. At opposite ends were the silver punch bowl and tiered wedding cake. Mrs. Jurd Stewart served the cake and alternating at the punch bowl were Mrs. Sidney Wynn and Mrs. Wayne Tubbs.

A seven branch brass candelabrum holding aqua tapers. entwined with English ivy and clusters of grapes formed the decor for the groom's table. A miniature school slate to emphasize the groom's profession completed the arrangement. Mrs. Jack Slade and Miss Ruth Hartman alternated at the groom's cake.

Guests registered at a table on which was displayed a memory candle, decorated with white flowers and ivy. Miss Judy Adams presided at the guest book.

Rice bags were presented guests by Misses Melaine Bennett and Sherree Sehon, dressed in floor length pastel frocks. Assisting in the courtesies were Miss Linda Upshaw, Miss Jo Ann Wiley, Mrs. David Yarbrough, Mrs. Dick Bass, Mrs. Harry Sehon, Miss Pam Sehon, Miss Kay Sehon and Miss Brenda Carol Davidson.

When the couple departed for a wedding trip to Florida the bride was wearing an oyster white fall costume suit with tiny pillbox hat and matching accessories. Her corsage was the orchid from her bouquet. Upon their return the couple will reside in Shreveport where Mr. Tubbs is a member of the Faculty at Fair Park high school.

'Fake Look' Has Flair Effect In Fall's Fashion Jewelry

Just as Fall's clothing fashion leads a double life — swingy by day, sweet by night — so does Fall's fashion jewelry. The "Fake Look" has a special effect flair — bold, bulky and very colorful — for a dash of drama. The "Real Look," on the other hand, is a style statement of ladylike allure, a modest answer to Mod. Both are musts for Fall's fashionable femme.

The big and bold in jewelry is making a tremendous fashion splash. Magnificent ropes and chains of multi-colored stones and beads, huge bangles and bracelets, and long, dramatic earrings go way out to be way "in."" Oriental arm bands and slave and spiral bracelets are bright and beautiful for an exotic Autumn.

Gold-colored pieces of huge geometric patterns and shapes, and "pop" plastic are colorful and ultra-contemporary for Fall.

In necklaces there is a greater variety than ever. Ranging from chokers to long, long strands, from delicate chains to multi-stranded ropes from heirloom pendants to heavy "pendulums," necklaces are having a real fashion fling.

Bracelets too make the scene with multi-colored charms, gold-colored filigreed ornaments, and chunky, shaped stones. Favorite bracelet color combinations are gold and platinum — very rich! — and black and white, whether jet and crystal or black and white enamel.

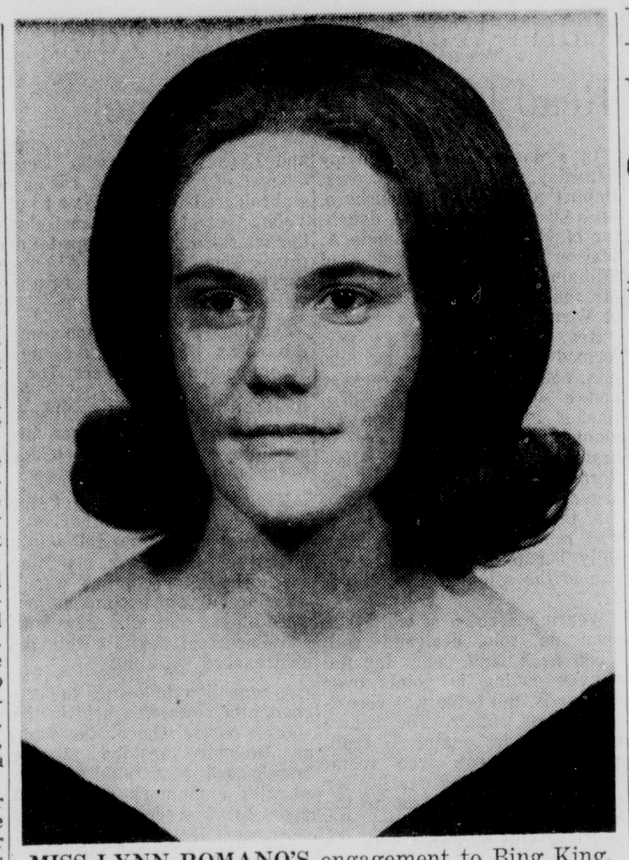

Pins move up front with stunning style innovations. Enamel pins combined with gold in unusual motifs are rising in popularity, as are antique and heirloom designs. Whether textured, bejewelled, intricate or bulky, pins add a major dash of drama to the season's fashion.

And earrings have gone to dramatic lengths for Autumn, with designs, colors and shapes styled to stun with delight. More and more designs are available in pierced earrings as their popularity seem to know no bounds. Rings too turn a round into a rage with new big, bold and beautiful designs.

For the "Real Look" bracelet, necklaces and pins make impressive imitations of precious jewelry. Tailored gold jewelry remains a fashionable front runner. Sprinkled lightly with colored stones to provide either harmony or contrast, gold colored jewelry is ideal for Autumnal elegance. And this year silver debuts into dramatic glamour; for the first time sterling silver jewelry enters the realm of exquisite evening-wear. Spotlighting beautiful and intricate designs in pins, bracelets and necklaces, silver jewelry takes the stage this year.

Giant-Size Watch Becomes Popular

Your Problems

Judgment Needed When Offering Aid To Others

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I just read that asinine letter from the man who was mad at you because you told another male reader he should not have helped the little girl in the church rest-room. Please print this letter as a lesson to all kind-hearted men who may be inclined to give a helping hand to someone in need.

My two nephews (aged 19 and 17) were driving home after having visited relatives in another city. They saw a teenage girl on the road. She seemed in distress so they picked her up. She got into the car, said she was trying to get home and had run out of gas.

The truth was that she was running away from home. The boys were stopped by the police who were on the lookout for the girl. My nephews were arrested, charged with statutory rape and spent the night and part of the next day in jail before the girl admitted that they were innocent. The boys' parents spent some mighty anxious hours before the mess was cleared up. The town, of course, is still making bets on "the true story." So you see it does pay to mind your own business. — GREENVILLE

Dear Greenville: I agree. It does pay to mind your own business, but not to the point where we allow ourselves to ignore people in trouble.

The operative word is "judgment." I am dead opposed to picking up hitchhikers (male or female) and have said so repeatedly. To ignore a cry for help, however, as so many people have done in recent years, is inhuman and indefensible.

Dear Ann Landers; The man I am in love with works with me and I see him every day. I cannot see him much at night because he is married to a slob who is so wrapped up in her children she doesn't know she has a husband.

My sweetheart has told me that he can't leave his children now and I see his side of it. Kids do need a father — at least until they are out of high school. My question is, what shall I do in the meantime? — PATIENT

Dear Patient: In the meantime you can read a lot or play solitaire or watch T. V. or go to movies.

One day you will look in the mirror and discover to your astonishment you are older and there are no marriageable men around. You'll note that your sweetheart is still living with his wife and you are still sneaking around settling for whatever you can get.

Pretty picture? No. But it's a very real one — and so a-t I'm almost ashamed to repeat it.

To solve some of the frustrations, disappointments and disillusionments of married life, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "What To Expect From Marriage," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Summer Skin Care

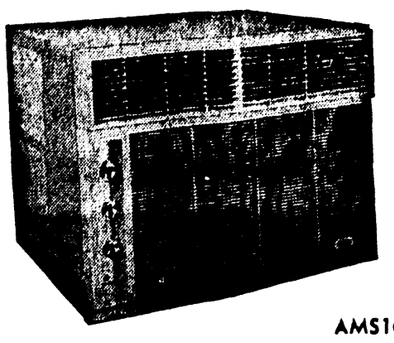

It is easy to have a smooth lovely complexion, despite the skin - coarsening effect of summer. The pores open much wider in the heat so it's essential that they have free movement to open and close without being clogged. Protect from cosmetic pigments, dust, and powder by smoothing on your oil of Olay. This will also protect the complexion from harsh sun rays and will give the skin a cool, milky bloom even on the hottest days. Your druggist can supply you with oil of Olay for your personal needs.

The bride's table was covered with a white damask cloth and featured crystal appointments with the bride's bouquet as a centerpiece. Miss Gail Bass presided at the punch bowl and Mrs. Kaline Patten served the cake. The groom's table was covered with as white cloth and centered with an arrangement of yellow chrysanthemums flanked by brown candles in silver candle sticks. Chocolate groom's cake was served by Mrs. Ruth Tarver. Woodardia ferns formed a background for the reception area.

Giant-Size Watch Becomes Popular

In our times, the watch becomes important. You'll see new giant-size wrist watches (like grandfather's) mounted on vinyl or patent or suede in all the new hues; even, some made of matching fabric to the costume. Or in-set in the popular shoulder bag.

Your Problems

Judgment Needed When Offering Aid To Others

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I just read that asinine letter from the man who was mad at you because you told another male reader he should not have helped the little girl in the church rest-room. Please print this letter as a lesson to all kind-hearted men who may be inclined to give a helping hand to someone in need.

My two nephews (aged 19 and 17) were driving home after having visited relatives in another city. They saw a teenage girl on the road. She seemed in distress so they picked her up. She got into the car, said she was trying to get home and had run out of gas.

The truth was that she was running away from home. The boys were stopped by the police who were on the lookout for the girl. My nephews were arrested, charged with statutory rape and spent the night and part of the next day in jail before the girl admitted that they were innocent. The boys' parents spent some mighty anxious hours before the mess was cleared up. The town, of course, is still making bets on "the true story." So you see it does pay to mind your own business. — GREENVILLE

Dear Greenville: I agree. It does pay to mind your own business, but not to the point where we allow ourselves to ignore people in trouble.

The operative word is "judgment." I am dead opposed to picking up hitchhikers (male or female) and have said so repeatedly. To ignore a cry for help, however, as so many people have done in recent years, is inhuman and indefensible.

Dear Ann Landers; The man I am in love with works with me and I see him every day. I cannot see him much at night because he is married to a slob who is so wrapped up in her children she doesn't know she has a husband.

My sweetheart has told me that he can't leave his children now and I see his side of it. Kids do need a father — at least until they are out of high school. My question is, what shall I do in the meantime? — PATIENT

Dear Patient: In the meantime you can read a lot or play solitaire or watch T. V. or go to movies.

One day you will look in the mirror and discover to your astonishment you are older and there are no marriageable men around. You'll note that your sweetheart is still living with his wife and you are still sneaking around settling for whatever you can get.

Pretty picture? No. But it's a very real one — and so am I, almost ashamed to repeat it.

To solve some of the frustrations, disappointments and disillusionments of married life, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "What To Expect From Marriage," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Summer Skin Care

It is easy to have a smooth lovely complexion, despite the skin - coarsening effect of summer. The pores open much wider in the heat so it's essential that they have free movement to open and close without being clogged. Protect from cosmetic pigments, dust, and powder by smoothing on your oil of Olay. This will also protect the complexion from harsh sun rays and will give the skin a cool, milky bloom even on the hottest days. Your druggist can supply you with oil of Olay for your personal needs.

UNCLUTTERED LOOK is the decided impression created by this three-bedroom ranch's precise lines, which suggest careful attention to practical details and are an accurate reflection of the manner in which the architect has laid out the interior.

Ranch Home That Buyers Ordered

By ANDY LANG

"We want a center hall plan that permits entry to any part of the house without going through other rooms."

"We want plenty of wall space in the living room and dining room so that we can arrange our furniture properly."

"We want the fireplace in the family room, not the living room."

We don't want the stairs to the basement to be in a conspicuous place."

These comments, made to architect Fenick A. Vogel by some of his individual clients, served as the guidelines for Design G-50, created by him for House of the Week. He has taken the suggestions and placed them within the framework of an interesting contemporary ranch, using contrasts of vertical siding and stone veneer, with a long planter as a decorative accent.

A full study of this architect - designed House of the Week may be obtained by writing THE HOUSE OF THE WEEK, c-o the Monroe Morning World, Monroe, La., and enclosing 50 cents to cover cost of handling and mailing. Please specify House Plan G-49.

To the right of the center hall, so important in modern design as a traffic delineator, is what might be called the formal area of the house — the living room and dining room. The two rooms get a sense of separateness from wrought iron dividers, which nevertheless do not destroy the open flow of space in an expanse of more than 28'. Note the large amounts of wall space in both rooms in line with the requirements of families who felt that the placement of furniture was difficult with walls that are "cut up" too much.

Straight ahead from the entry foyer are the family room and kitchen, comprising the highlight area of the house. The family room is 15' by 20', the kitchen 13' by 15'. Here again the architect has used the separate-but-open type of planning, utilizing an island counter as the line of demarcation, with storage facilities between the kitchen and the dinette end of the family room.

The end wall in the family room is brick and has a fireplace with a raised hearth. Sliding glass doors lead to the rear, giving a feeling of outdoor living even when seated in front of the fireplace. A service door leads from the kitchen to the rear yard, while another door serves as an entrance to the garage. This second door is next to the laundry area, which is set off by louvered doors.

To the right of the center hall is the bedroom wing, with three rooms, two baths and plenty of closet space. One bath is, of course, accessible from the master bedroom.

What about that inconspicuous stairway? It has been cleverly located in the rear part of the garage, directly next to the kitchen door. This keeps it out of sight, yet within easy reach of both the inside and the outside, since there is also an entrance to the garage in that rear area. Going to the basement can thus be negotiated from the house or the outside, an important factor if anything has to be taken downstairs or upstairs.

As for the basement, it has been divided by the architect into two large game or recreation rooms, a utility section and a lavatory. Finishing it according to these plans can be done when the house is built or at some later date.

MOWER SAFETY

The entire state of Tennessee and a six-county area of Iowa are keys in the 1966 national Power Mower Safety campaign. The drive is sponsored by the Outdoor Power Equipment Institute in cooperation with the U. S. Public Health Service Accident Prevention Division.

The test programs will be aimed at evaluating the most effective tools and methods of consumer education toward reducing accidents.

The effectiveness of the Iowa campaign this year will be measured against a power mower accident survey taken in the same area two years ago. The counties are Cuba, Lynn, Johnson, Muscatine, Washington and Iowa.

Tennessee was chosen as a pilot area because ot the excellent record of the state Health Department in accident prevention, a campaign spokesman said.

First Kitchen Important To Newlywed

Newlyweds usually think of that first kitchen as a temporary one, so they don't want to build anything in it "because you can't take it with you," says interior designer Joseph Freitag — whose pet subject is kitchens.

Freitag believes that the first kitchen is very important psychologically. If it doesn't serve you well, it may dampen your enthusiasm for future kitchens.

For that reason, he says, a bride should incorporate as many conveniences as she can into the first kitchen, and she should try to use as many ready-made shelves and brackets as possible. These may be removed and will be suitable for the next kitchen, he points out.

Counter space may very well be the key to kitchen happiness, Freitag has decided. Many kitchens are short of counter space, so that some temporary arrangements must be made.

COUNTER USE

First — you should know what a counter is used for, he says. The main counter is a "work counter" and must be sturdy and at a conventional 36-inch height for chopping, mixing rolling and other manual operations. This is the counter above base cabinet tops and is usually the only counter supplied by the builder. If it is kept clear, we add to its useability, he points out.

An appliance counter is the answer for appliances. Install one about 10 inches deep and at a higher level than your counter top. An electric outlet should be convenient to this shelf. If there isn't one in the area, you can no doubt have one installed. The convenience will be worth it.

A shallow "ingredient' counter" is another important counter, he explains. It should be about four inches deep and about 10 inches above the work counter. This is fine for holding small things that stay out for use during cooking — salt, pepper, a butter dish, bread, a few onions, tomatoes, potatoes, small bowls of cooling or ready-for-use cooking ingredients.

An extra clean-up counter is another idea worth some thought, he says. It's a good one for stacking dirty dishes, glasses, sauce pans and dessert dishes, sauce pans and dessert dishes. You can have it by installing an eight-inch shelf right over the sink.

ADD SHELF

If you'd like something to provide service counter convenience, the kind enjoyed by restaurants, add a full depth front-to-back shelf that is about 24 inches deep and 12 inches wide. Place it eight inches below the regulation overhead cabinet, he suggests. This will hold a full tray of cups, saucers, cake plates and the cake for a complete dessert set-up. If you put an electric hot-tray on it, you can use it to keep foods warm.

All these suggestions are really shelves, Freitag points out, but if you think of them as counters, extending the counter use in your kitchen, you will learn to use them as counters.

Treat Buds Of Camellias

GARDENING

Are you, Mr. and Mrs. Gardener, interested in treating camellia buds to hasten the blooming period? Then start treating a few buds when they reach one fourth inch in diameter. Many camellia growers are using Gibberellic Acid with excellent results. I used it last year for the first time on a large pink Debutante with good results. Now is the time to start making plans by obtaining your acid. I treated my debutante last Labor Day and I had lovely large blossoms the second week of October. So call your feed and seed dealer now, to be sure you have the acid on hand when needed. Be sure to follow directions of the manufacturer.

The application is simple and safe. The greatest merit is to encourage blooming before freezing temperature arrives. Each year the pink debutante was covered with buds but seldom did I get blooms. The cold always darkened the blossoms. Last year my neighbor and I enjoyed this same plant to the fullest. This plant was large and I treated a great number of buds but let me caution you if the plant is small, treat only a few buds.

To apply gibberellic acid gently remove the small pointed growth bud adjacent to the flower bud to be treated. A drop of the solution is placed in the cup like depression where the growth bud was removed. The flower bud nearest the area where the acid was applied should begin expanding a few days after the chemical is applied.

PRE-SCHOOLERS

Mrs. Homemaker it is important to send that child to nursery school in comfortable clothes. So, for a review-learning to button and unbutton his clothes is a matter of pride with the pre-schooler. So make certain the buttons are large enough for little hands to find and handle. Also, see that the button-holes are strong enough for wear. A child must feel free and easy in his clothes. They should be comfortable and not cause too much worry if paint or mud spatters on them. Good use of elasticized waistbands and cotton knit shirt will be great aids to comfort. Keep clothes simple, the less trimmings the better. Mother's worries can, also, be lessened if she choose fabrics that will wash easily and require little ironing.

CITRUS FRUIT STAINS

If you spill orange or grapefruit juice on a fabric, sponge it immediately with cold water. A citrus fruit stain usually becomes invisible after it dries and this makes you feel no harm has been done to the fabric. But with aging or when heat is applied the stain becomes visible. It turns yellow and this yellowing is hard to remove. To remove an old citrus fruit stain, pour boiling water through the stain if the fabric is not silk or wool. If the fabric is white it may be soaked in a bleach until the stain disappears then rinsed thoroughly. Stains in colored fabrics or on silk and wool fibers can be treated by working glycerin into the stain, then removing the oily spot with a cleaning solvent. Remember, Mrs. Homemaker, you can save time and energy by attending to a citrus fruit spill quickly.

Many Plants Pretty-But Poisonous

Plants that are pretty— and pretty deadly as well — abound in our woods, our backyards, and even our homes, says Eugene E. Turner, chief nurseryman for the Louisiana Forestry Commission, in an article appearing in the current issue of FORESTS & PEOPLE magazine, official publication of The Louisiana Forestry Ass'n.

They range from the lowly pokeberry to such plants as the beautifully flowering oleander and wisteria.

Medical authorities, says Turner, last year reported 13,000 cases of children eating plants that contained some kind of toxin.

Poisonous plants may be classed into three main groups: those which produce dermatitis when touched; those which cause an allergic reaction and those which have to be chewed or swallowed to produce an adverse effect.

The article deals primarily with the latter.

A few of the poisonous plants cited are:

—Dieffenbachia, a popular foliage plant frequently found in offices and homes. The stem of the plant contains the poisonous agent crystals of oxalate, which can cause a burning sensation of the lips, tongue and mouth, and swelling of the tongue to such an extent that suffocation may result.

—Oleander, a shrub renowned for its brilliant early summer show of bloom, but which contains a deadly heart sitmulant in its stem, leaves and bloom. One half ounce of its leaves is enough to cause death to an adult, and a single leaf contains sufficient toxic material to kill a child.

—Elephant's ear, a familiar foliage plant frequently found in foundation plantings. Its leaves and roots contain raphides — needle-shaped crystals of oxalate of lime — which penetrate the tissues of the mouth and cause a severe burning sensation. The sensation, fortunately, sets in before too large quantities of the plant are eaten.

—Castor oil plant, a luxuriant, multi-hued foliage plant which can reach considerable size in one season when grown from seed. The leaves and seed contain the deadly ricin, a powerful blood poison. Two castor "beans" are sufficient to cause serious poisoning, and five to eight constitute a lethal dose for a fully grown man.

Other plants mentioned by Turner as containing poisonous agents include English ivy, elderberry, pokeberry, buckeye, cherrylaurel, poinsettia, Jerusalem cherry and mistletoe.

The public, says Turner, is on guard against such descriptively named plants as poison ivy, poison oak and poison sumac. It should be equally wary, he says, of such exotically named plants as wisteria, oleander and poinsettia.

The best attitude, he advises, is to regard all plants as one would a rose. Admire their beauty, but remember that the thorns are there.

Southern Gardener

Older Plants Often Showy

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Somehow, gardeners seem to have forgotten about the showy butterfly bushes we used to grow in the South. An old one, here and there, is about all one sees any more. This is certainly an oversight because only our crape myrtles are bigger and more showy in the summer landscape.

A great many people chop their crape myrtles down every year to keep them in bush form down at eye level. This is not too difficult to do, of course, but crape myrtles can be left alone to grow into the gorgeous small trees which are their natural form. The many kinds of butterfly bushes can then be grown to flower down low as bushes.

VARIETY

Modern butterfly bushes come in a wide variety of dazzling colors. They run from pure whites to deep violet. In between are bright reds, light pinks, lavenders and even "blues." All of these colors contrast well with the crape myrtle colors. A group of crape myrtles with butterfly bushes planted right up next to them is a feast of color all summer long. The butterfly bushes begin to flower long before the crape myrtles and, if the bushes are pruned back a little and fed about once a month, they will flower on till frost right with the crape myrtles.

In planning groups of butterfly bushes, be sure to include some white varieties in the groups. White is needed to contrast with and relieve the strong colors of buddleias. White is cool looking in the hot summer landscape, too, and will add a great deal to your color schemes with crape myrtles. Some gardens do not have room for many crape myrtles but could accommodate the smaller buddleias. These shrubs were named in Latin for Adam Buddle, a 17th century botanist.

Like all plants which flower profusely, the butterfly bushes need food. They can be pruned back slightly after each big show of spikes and then fed and watered to bring them back into bloom in a few weeks. When they are left entirely unpruned, they will, of course, develop into bigger bushes. The flower spikes may be smaller than on bushes cut back, but if a feeding program is kept up about every two weeks, the larger bushes will present one of the best shows one can have from summer shrubs.

New Stamp

Three new stamps have been issued by Sweden to commemorate the 100th anniversary of the refermation of the Riksdag, the national legislature. In 1866 a modern legislative body was designed to replace the old "four estates" system which had been in effect for many years. The 40 ore and the 3 crowns stamps show a portrait sketch of Louis de Geer, Swedish prime minister in 1866, who set up the reform tion.

Helpful Tips For Moving

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

"Louisiana Trees, Shrubs, Vines and Wildflowers," is the topic of valuable information compiled by Dwight Hall & Neil Odenwald, Extension Horticulturists, for Home and Garden Week Program for 1963. Many have had the privilege of hearing Dr. Hall and Dr. Odenwald lecture on this and many other wonderful subjects so close to the gardeners and home makers. I thought it a timely opportunity to review some of the facts given on this subject — so close behind this year's Home and Garden Week — just past, at LSU in Baton Rouge.

"It is our moral obligation to preserve our native forage yet it is to our advantage to use plants that we have at our "backdoor" which actually offers "front door" beauty in the landscape. It is important to know how to transfer a native plant from it's natural locale to the garden site. This collection and transfer of native materials to the homegrounds should be left to the experienced nurseryman. The nurserymen of Louisiana provide the plants requested by the public. This means that we are much wiser to get our native plants from this source than from the woods or natural site. We may think that the native materials are rugged because of the abundance we find them in; but, they, like all plants, require definite cultural practices.

The following tips may prove helpful —

TIPS

1. Can I provide similar growing conditions to those in which the native plant is now growing? If not, leave the plant to nature.

2. Prepare planting area. Dig holes both wider and deeper than the Native plant's root system. Add wood loam, peat or humus materials to the soil, preferably the soil type of the native plant that is to be planted. Have wood's earth or loam to work around the new plant's root system.

3. Prune root system prior to digging. It is a good idea to prune the native plant's lateral roots by making spade cuts around the plant, allowing soil to stay in place, one growing season prior to transplanting. This allows the plant to adjust to shock prior to transplanting time, as well as develop a more extensive root system.

4. To transplant — lift the native plants with a ball of earth. Because native plants send roots out over a wide area with few feeding roots near the trunk; it is important to dig native plants with a ball of earth.

5. Plant native plants immediately upon digging. Do not allow the root system to dry out. Set the plant at its natural growing level. Do not cramp the root system, but let them take their natural course. Carefully work the soil around the root system. When the hole is almost filled, firm the soil and water gently, finish filling the hole, firm the top soil, water well and mulch with leaf mold, peat or other mulches.

6. Pruning is very important. Branches should be cut back so that they do not spread beyond the tips of the roots. If a spreading growth is desired, the plant may be topped, or the top terminal growth should be removed. Evergreen trees and shrubs should be defoliated. Strip leaves off plants like Magnolia, Holly and Youpon.

7. Choose the proper size plant. Do not attempt to transplant over-large specimens.

8. Shade plant if necessary. If the plant is used to shade in its natural location, it is important to give it temporary shading by wrapping the trunk to prevent sun scald.

9. Special soil conditions may be required of specific plants to grow properly. Native plant require a loamy soil — such as sweet laurel, red bay, dogwood, sourwood, fringe tree, witch hazel, and wild azalea.

10. Correctly identify the plant prior to transplanting. It may be necessary to tag or stake the plant when it is in bloom or leaf to make no mistakes. If berried plants are desired, find plants that have berries, not all have them.

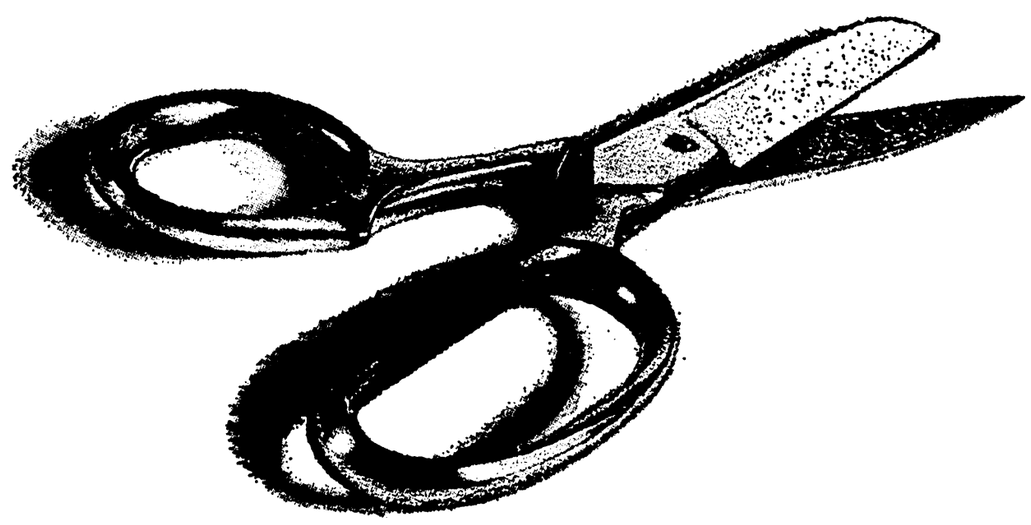

11. Time to transplant. Transplant deciduous plants in the dormant season, or when the plant is bare of foliage, (December through February). Evergreen should be transplanted from November through February, being sure not to expose root system and to completely defoliate the evergreen.

12. Native plants should receive continual attention. General maintenance such as watering, fetilization, pruning and general care should be provided for the native plant in the landscape.

If wild flowers are to be collected, collect dried seed or move plants in winter after marking the plants while in bloom. The above tips apply to all Louisiana native plants in general. Some specific plants will require special attention.

As for the basement, it has been divided by the architect into two large game or recreation rooms, a utility section and a lavatory. Finishing it according to these plans can be done when the house is built or at some later date.

First Kitchen Important To Newlywed

Newlyweds usually think of that first kitchen as a temporary one, so they don't want to build anything in it "because you can't take it with you," says interior designer Joseph Freitag — whose pet subject is kitchens.

Freitag believes that the first kitchen is very important psychologically. If it doesn't serve you well, it may dampen your enthusiasm for future kitchens.

For that reason, he says, a bride should incorporate as many conveniences as she can into the first kitchen, and she should try to use as many ready-made shelves and brackets as possible. These may be removed and will be suitable for the next kitchen, he points out.

Counter space may very well be the key to kitchen happiness, Freitag has decided. Many kitchens are short of counter space, so that some temporary arrangements must be made.

COUNTER USE

First — you should know what a counter is used for, he says. The main counter is a "work counter" and must be sturdy and at a conventional 36-inch height for chopping, mixing rolling and other manual operations. This is the counter above base cabinet tops and is usually the only counter supplied by the builder. If it is kept clear, we add to its useability, he points out.

An appliance counter is the answer for appliances. Install one about 10 inches deep and at a higher level than your counter top. An electric outlet should be convenient to this shelf. If there isn't one in the area, you can no doubt have one installed. The convenience will be worth it.

A shallow "ingredient' counter" is another important counter, he explains. It should be about four inches deep and about 10 inches above the work counter. This is fine for holding small things that stay out for use during cooking — salt, pepper, a butter dish, bread, a few onions, tomatoes, potatoes, small bowls of cooling or ready-for-use cooking ingredients.

An extra clean-up counter is another idea worth some thought, he says. It's a good one for stacking dirty dishes, glasses, sauce pans and dessert dishes, sauce pans and dessert dishes. You can have it by installing an eight-inch shelf right over the sink.

ADD SHELF

If you'd like something to provide service counter convenience, the kind enjoyed by restaurants, add a full depth front-to-back shelf that is about 24 inches deep and 12 inches wide. Place it eight inches below the regulation overhead cabinet, he suggests. This will hold a full tray of cups, saucers, cake plates and the cake for a complete dessert set-up. If you put an electric hot-tray on it, you can use it to keep foods warm.

All these suggestions are really shelves, Freitag points out, but if you think of them as counters, extending the counter use in your kitchen, you will learn to use them as counters.

Treat Buds Of Camellias

GARDENING

Are you, Mr. and Mrs. Gardener, interested in treating camellia buds to hasten the blooming period? Then start treating a few buds when they reach one fourth inch in diameter. Many camellia growers are using Gibberellic Acid with excellent results. I used it last year for the first time on a large pink Debutante with good results. Now is the time to start making plans by obtaining your acid. I treated my debutante last Labor Day and I had lovely large blossoms the second week of October. So call your feed and seed dealer now, to be sure you have the acid on hand when needed. Be sure to follow directions of the manufacturer.

The application is simple and safe. The greatest merit is to encourage blooming before freezing temperature arrives. Each year the pink debutante was covered with buds but seldom did I get blooms. The cold always darkened the blossoms. Last year my neighbor and I enjoyed this same plant to the fullest. This plant was large and I treated a great number of buds but let me caution you if the plant is small, treat only a few buds.

To apply gibberellic acid gently remove the small pointed growth bud adjacent to the flower bud to be treated. A drop of the solution is placed in the cup like depression where the growth bud was removed. The flower bud nearest the area where the acid was applied should begin expanding a few days after the chemical is applied.

PRE-SCHOOLERS

Mrs. Homemaker it is important to send that child to nursery school in comfortable clothes. So, for a review-learning to button and unbutton his clothes is a matter of pride with the pre-schooler. So make certain the buttons are large enough for little hands to find and handle. Also, see that the button-holes are strong enough for wear. A child must feel free and easy in his clothes. They should be comfortable and not cause too much worry if paint or mud spatters on them. Good use of elasticized waistbands and cotton knit shirt will be great aids to comfort. Keep clothes simple, the less trimmings the better. Mother's worries can, also, be lessened if she choose fabrics that will wash easily and require little ironing.

CITRUS FRUIT STAINS

If you spill orange or grapefruit juice on a fabric, sponge it immediately with cold water. A citrus fruit stain usually becomes invisible after it dries and this makes you feel no harm has been done to the fabric. But with aging or when heat is applied the stain becomes visible. It turns yellow and this yellowing is hard to remove. To remove an old citrus fruit stain, pour boiling water through the stain if the fabric is not silk or wool. If the fabric is white it may be soaked in a bleach until the stain disappears then rinsed thoroughly. Stains in colored fabrics or on silk and wool fibers can be treated by working glycerin into the stain, then removing the oily spot with a cleaning solvent. Remember, Mrs. Homemaker, you can save time and energy by attending to a citrus fruit spill quickly.

Many Plants Pretty-But Poisonous

Plants that are pretty— and pretty deadly as well — abound in our woods, our backyards, and even our homes, says Eugene E. Turner, chief nurseryman for the Louisiana Forestry Commission, in an article appearing in the current issue of FORESTS & PEOPLE magazine, official publication of The Louisiana Forestry Ass'n.

They range from the lowly pokeberry to such plants as the beautifully flowering oleander and wisteria.

Medical authorities, says Turner, last year reported 13,000 cases of children eating plants that contained some kind of toxin.

Poisonous plants may be classed into three main groups: those which produce dermatitis when touched; those which cause an allergic reaction and those which have to be chewed or swallowed to produce an adverse effect.

The article deals primarily with the latter.

A few of the poisonous plants cited are:

—Dieffenbachia, a popular foliage plant frequently found in offices and homes. The stem of the plant contains the poisonous agent crystals of oxalate, which can cause a burning sensation of the lips, tongue and mouth, and swelling of the tongue to such an extent that suffocation may result.

—Oleander, a shrub renowned for its brilliant early summer show of bloom, but which contains a deadly heart sitmulant in its stem, leaves and bloom. One half ounce of its leaves is enough to cause death to an adult, and a single leaf contains sufficient toxic material to kill a child.

—Elephant's ear, a familiar foliage plant frequently found in foundation plantings. Its leaves and roots contain raphides — needle-shaped crystals of oxalate of lime — which penetrate the tissues of the mouth and cause a severe burning sensation. The sensation, fortunately, sets in before too large quantities of the plant are eaten.

—Castor oil plant, a luxuriant, multi-hued foliage plant which can reach considerable size in one season when grown from seed. The leaves and seed contain the deadly ricin, a powerful blood poison. Two castor "beans" are sufficient to cause serious poisoning, and five to eight constitute a lethal dose for a fully grown man.

Other plants mentioned by Turner as containing poisonous agents include English ivy, elderberry, pokeberry, buckeye, cherrylaurel, poinsettia, Jerusalem cherry and mistletoe.

The public, says Turner, is on guard against such descriptively named plants as poison ivy, poison oak and poison sumac. It should be equally wary, he says, of such exotically named plants as wisteria, oleander and poinsettia.

The best attitude, he advises, is to regard all plants as one would a rose. Admire their beauty, but remember that the thorns are there.

Southern Gardener

Older Plants Often Showy

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Somehow, gardeners seem to have forgotten about the showy butterfly bushes we used to grow in the South. An old one, here and there, is about all one sees any more. This is certainly an oversight because only our crape myrtles are bigger and more showy in the summer landscape.

A great many people chop their crape myrtles down every year to keep them in bush form down at eye level. This is not too difficult to do, of course, but crape myrtles can be left alone to grow into the gorgeous small trees which are their natural form. The many kinds of butterfly bushes can then be grown to flower down low as bushes.

VARIETY

Modern butterfly bushes come in a wide variety of dazzling colors. They run from pure whites to deep violet. In between are bright reds, light pinks, lavenders and even "blues." All of these colors contrast well with the crape myrtle colors. A group of crape myrtles with butterfly bushes planted right up next to them is a feast of color all summer long. The butterfly bushes begin to flower long before the crape myrtles and, if the bushes are pruned back a little and fed about once a month, they will flower on till frost right with the crape myrtles.

In planning groups of butterfly bushes, be sure to include some white varieties in the groups. White is needed to contrast with and relieve the strong colors of buddleias. White is cool looking in the hot summer landscape, too, and will add a great deal to your color schemes with crape myrtles. Some gardens do not have room for many crape myrtles but could accommodate the smaller buddleias. These shrubs were named in Latin for Adam Buddle, a 17th century botanist.

Like all plants which flower profusely, the butterfly bushes need food. They can be pruned back slightly after each big show of spikes and then fed and watered to bring them back into bloom in a few weeks. When they are left entirely unpruned, they will, of course, develop into bigger bushes. The flower spikes may be smaller than on bushes cut back, but if a feeding program is kept up about every two weeks, the larger bushes will present one of the best shows one can have from summer shrubs.

New Stamp

Three new stamps have been issued by Sweden to commemorate the 100th anniversary of the refermation of the Riksdag, the national legislature. In 1866 a modern legislative body was designed to replace the old "four estates" system which had been in effect for many years. The 40 ore and the 3 crowns stamps show a portrait sketch of Louis de Geer, Swedish prime minister in 1866, who set up the reform tion.

Helpful Tips For Moving

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

"Louisiana Trees, Shrubs, Vines and Wildflowers," is the topic of valuable information compiled by Dwight Hall & Neil Odenwald, Extension Horticulturists, for Home and Garden Week Program for 1963. Many have had the privilege of hearing Dr. Hall and Dr. Odenwald lecture on this and many other wonderful subjects so close to the gardeners and home makers. I thought it a timely opportunity to review some of the facts given on this subject — so close behind this year's Home and Garden Week — just past, at LSU in Baton Rouge.

"It is our moral obligation to preserve our native forage yet it is to our advantage to use plants that we have at our "backdoor" which actually offers "front door" beauty in the landscape. It is important to know how to transfer a native plant from it's natural locale to the garden site. This collection and transfer of native materials to the homegrounds should be left to the experienced nurseryman. The nurserymen of Louisiana provide the plants requested by the public. This means that we are much wiser to get our native plants from this source than from the woods or natural site. We may think that the native materials are rugged because of the abundance we find them in; but, they, like all plants, require definite cultural practices.

The following tips may prove helpful —

TIPS

1. Can I provide similar growing conditions to those in which the native plant is now growing? If not, leave the plant to nature.

2. Prepare planting area. Dig holes both wider and deeper than the Native plant's root system. Add wood loam, peat or humus materials to the soil, preferably the soil type of the native plant that is to be planted. Have wood's earth or loam to work around the new plant's root system.

3. Prune root system prior to digging. It is a good idea to prune the native plant's lateral roots by making spade cuts around the plant, allowing soil to stay in place, one growing season prior to transplanting. This allows the plant to adjust to shock prior to transplanting time, as well as develop a more extensive root system.

4. To transplant — lift the native plants with a ball of earth. Because native plants send roots out over a wide area with few feeding roots near the trunk; it is important to dig native plants with a ball of earth.

5. Plant native plants immediately upon digging. Do not allow the root system to dry out. Set the plant at its natural growing level. Do not cramp the root system, but let them take their natural course. Carefully work the soil around the root system. When the hole is almost filled, firm the soil and water gently, finish filling the hole, firm the top soil, water well and mulch with leaf mold, peat or other mulches.

6. Pruning is very important. Branches should be cut back so that they do not spread beyond the tips of the roots. If a spreading growth is desired, the plant may be topped, or the top terminal growth should be removed. Evergreen trees and shrubs should be defoliated. Strip leaves off plants like Magnolia, Holly and Youpon.

7. Choose the proper size plant. Do not attempt to transplant over-large specimens.

8. Shade plant if necessary. If the plant is used to shade in its natural location, it is important to give it temporary shading by wrapping the trunk to prevent sun scald.

9. Special soil conditions may be required of specific plants to grow properly. Native plant require a loamy soil — such as sweet laurel, red bay, dogwood, sourwood, fringe tree, witch hazel, and wild azalea.

10. Correctly identify the plant prior to transplanting. It may be necessary to tag or stake the plant when it is in bloom or leaf to make no mistakes. If berried plants are desired, find plants that have berries, not all have them.

11. Time to transplant. Transplant deciduous plants in the dormant season, or when the plant is bare of foliage, (December through February). Evergreen should be transplanted from November through February, being sure not to expose root system and to completely defoliate the evergreen.

12. Native plants should receive continual attention. General maintenance such as watering, fetilization, pruning and general care should be provided for the native plant in the landscape.

If wild flowers are to be collected, collect dried seed or move plants in winter after marking the plants while in bloom. The above tips apply to all Louisiana native plants in general. Some specific plants will require special attention.

MOWER SAFETY

The entire state of Tennessee and a six-county area of Iowa are keys in the 1966 national Power Mower Safety campaign. The drive is sponsored by the Outdoor Power Equipment Institute in cooperation with the U. S. Public Health Service Accident Prevention Division.

The test programs will be aimed at evaluating the most effective tools and methods of consumer education toward reducing accidents.

The effectiveness of the Iowa campaign this year will be measured against a power mower accident survey taken in the same area two years ago. The counties are Cuba, Lynn, Johnson, Muscatine, Washington and Iowa.

Tennessee was chosen as a pilot area because ot the excellent record of the state Health Department in accident prevention, a campaign spokesman said.

Away From Home

Richard Enwright

Candles At The End Of Summer

On the cliffs beside the mountain road, you could see painted Indian signs. Where the road forked was a huge stone arrowhead sign which said, "Camp For Boys." The sign pointed toward a sapling - fenced lane which crept under a bower of oaks and hemlocks. Almost immediately, a sentinel appeared — freckle-faced, twelve years old and in a "T" shirt. Near a waterfall was a cluster of rustic cabins. On top of a hill nearby a small colored pole indicated headquarters. Four more painted Indian signs hung over a great frame gymnasium near the totem. From within you could hear slapping basketballs, excited feet, and the sounds of summer fun. The gym was built over the waterfall, and its lower deck formed a long dock on a lake. A tribe of canoes swirled on the surface of the water, and out on the lake's center was an island on which stood a chapel of circled log benches. At the near end of the lake, youthful Tarzans grabbed a long rope, swung far out over the water, and dropped in. The calls of boyhood drowned out the roar of the nearby falls.

Guide for the day was your son, a tall young man, who two months ago was a boy. Through him, you learned the lore of summer and enough experiences to last a lifetime.

The road climbed sharply up a hill past another cluster of cabins, an athletic field on which was a spirited game of baseball, and bright blue swimming pool. Suddenly you were introduced to the "Rat Hole." "Hole" was a cabin nestled in a glade of trees at the end of a narrow footpath. Inside were three double-tiered camp cots, several copies of comic books, "Mad," and "Sports Illustrated." Shelves were lined with at least fifteen varieties of shaving lotion. Board walls told of years past — "Manuel - Havana, Cuba, 1957," and "Charlie, Jack, John, Bob — Rat Hole — '60."

At the top of the hill, you could look out across a green table cloth valley to blue-grey mountains which walked across the horizon to the clouds. In the early mornings, the mist would climb out of the valley and struggle up the mountainsides.

Near the totem at headquarters was a huge brass railroad bell which hung in a bright red stand next to the camp flagstaff. When the sun had just peered through the cedars and mountain laurel, the bell would ring. Soon a hundred seventy-five boys stood at attention while the flag was raised. Immediately thereafter, the dining hall withstood the first of its daily tests. Bowls of cereal, platters of eggs and toast, and gallons of fresh milk disappeared as though attacked by hordes of locusts. You wondered what sort of magicians were camp directors who could satisfy ravenous growing boys.

The camper-guide told of horses, five kinds of sailing boats, and expert riflery which made anything you accomplished a generation ago seem trivial. He described exciting hikes and rock climbing. If you had jumped into the icy lake seven times before breakfast on as many days, there was the "Pothole" initiation which set new members above the lesser peoples.

On a Sunday evening as rain softly fell, the boys gathered in the gym to hear the story of God who led mankind out of the darkness into the light. And because they had heard the story, each camper lighted a candle against the night. Out of the gym they single-filed, singing a slow camp song of boys who have learned the meaning of the trees, the sky, the world, and of being together. The requiem of summer continued as they floated the lighted candles out onto the lake on paper boats.

The surface of the water was lighted as if by magic and even the branches which hung over the lake's far side felt the glow of the candles until, like the end of the wonderful summer, the flickering lights floated over the edge of the falls.

Guide To Good Reading

Visit To Public Library Rewarding

Since all schools have completed the summer sessions, most people should have some free time for reading. If you have not visited your public library lately, take this opportunity to make a call and see the many wonderful new books in our collection. There are books for every type of reader and you will surely find one that you want to read. "Pandemonium On the Patomac" is a farce which makes delightful light reading. "Nothing Ever Breaks except the Heart" is a book of short stories by Kay Boyle. They are slight in context, but some readers will enjoy them. "Forbush and the Penguins" by Graham Billing is an intelligent, sharp and arresting small novel. It is a study of a biologist stationed in Antartica to observe the habits of Penguins and his thoughts on life in general.

"The Adversary" by Jeanne Widgery has it's setting in ninth century England. It is a story of conflict between two brothers. Unfamiliar names and places make it hard to read, but there is a deep feeling here. "Catherine" by Hilda Lewis is a beautifully written story of the marriage of Catherine of Braganza and Charles II of England. Miss Lewis has given us an unforgettable picture of the period as well as their relationships. For readers of mystery stories there are three new titles; "The Big Knockover" a selection of short novels and short stories by Dashiell Hammett, who created the thin man.; "The Old Trade of Killing" by John Harris and "A Kind of Treason" by Robert S. Elegant.

There are some significant books of non-fiction offered this week. "Interpretive Reporting" by C. D. McDougall will be of great interest to newspapermen. "Diet and Live" by Joseph I. Goodman is a very splendid book on the subject of correct eating. "Incident at Exeter" by John Grant Fuller is an account of unidentified flying objects in American skies. "Practical Home Repair for Women" by Bruce Cassidy should be useful to many women. "What's Best For Your Child - and You" by David Goodman is a new book in the field of child study and care. "Retail Merchandising" by John W. Wingate should help many merchants. "The Theory of Fashion Design" is a new and interesting approach to this field by Helen Brockman.

A perfectly beautiful new book is "Camellias" by Paul Jones. It is a small book, but the illustrations of varieties are beautiful. "Designing A Garden Today" by J. E. White contains much splendid advice. "White Pillars" by J. Frazer Smith is a reprint of one of the finest books on Southern architecture. "Low Cost Homes" put out by the Arco Publishing Co. contains simple house plans, but it's best feature is th eadvice which it gives on the financial aspects of owning a home. "Lead Soldiers and Figurines" by Marcel Baldet is a beautiful book for the collector of these art objects. "Starting to Paint in Oils" is an excellent introduction by F. C. Johnston.

There are a number of new books in the literature section this week. "Best Plays of 1963-64" is an annual collection. "Analytical Writing" by Thomas Johnson is a useful book," The Smiling Phoenix" is an account of Southern humor from 1865 to 1914 written by Wade Hall. "Muzzy" is a delightful book of reminiscences of his Mother written by Charles Thayer. There are several new books of poetry; "Collected Poems of A.D. Hope", "Love Respelt" by Robert Graves, and "The Greening Tree" by Ray Smith.

"Wuthering Heights" by Emily Bronte in the Norton Critical edition will be useful to students. "Two Under the Indian Sun" is the story of Jon and Rumer Godden. "The Two Worlds of Somerset Maugham" is an excellent criticism by Wilmon Menard. "The Light and the Rock" is a selection from the writings of Dag Hammarskjold. Agent Files Damage Suit Against Jury

CHALMETTE, La. (AP) — The president of the Lake Borgne Basin Levee District said Friday night the attorney who filed a $700,000 damage suit against the district and the St. Bernard Parish Police Jury had been secretary of the levee board for three years.

"Mr. (Edgar) Quillin signed checks for 18 levee inspectors each month the first year he served in this capacity, for a total sum of $22,205 for levee inspection," said Irvin J. G. Janssen, who has been board president for eight months.

Quillan was board secretary in 1956, 1957 and 1958. He was the attorney for nine St. Bernard residents who filed the suit in state district court Thursday claiming gross negligence and squandering of public funds.

The suit claimed that tax money collected from parish residents was "squandered and used in political slush funds" instead of being spent to improve levees with the result that Hurricane Betsy flooded portions of the parish.

Janssen said there are currently no inspectors on the board's payroll and there have been none since Jan. 12, 1966 when he became president.

"Alll inspections and supervisory work is done by the two commissioners, Mr. Daniel Caluda and Mr. Maurice Vinsanau and myself. I have never collected a per diem or inspection fee since affiliated with this board and have no intention of doing so," Janssen said in a statement.

The statement asked why Quillin didn't "refuse to sign these checks and file suit in behalf of the public during those years this enormous amount of money was being used for this purpose.

"I would like to say also Mr. Quillin's board had 48 employes on the monthly payroll.

"It is too bad some people will use Hurrricane Betsy's disaster losses and the suffering of the people for a political stepping stone."

Candles At The End Of Summer

On the cliffs beside the mountain road, you could see painted Indian signs. Where the road forked was a huge stone arrowhead sign which said, "Camp For Boys." The sign pointed toward a sapling - fenced lane which crept under a bower of oaks and hemlocks. Almost immediately, a sentinel appeared — freckle-faced, twelve years old and in a "T" shirt. Near a waterfall was a cluster of rustic cabins. On top of a hill nearby a small colored pole indicated headquarters. Four more painted Indian signs hung over a great frame gymnasium near the totem. From within you could hear slapping basketballs, excited feet, and the sounds of summer fun. The gym was built over the waterfall, and its lower deck formed a long dock on a lake. A tribe of canoes swirled on the surface of the water, and out on the lake's center was an island on which stood a chapel of circled log benches. At the near end of the lake, youthful Tarzans grabbed a long rope, swung far out over the water, and dropped in. The calls of boyhood drowned out the roar of the nearby falls.

Guide for the day was your son, a tall young man, who two months ago was a boy. Through him, you learned the lore of summer and enough experiences to last a lifetime.

The road climbed sharply up a hill past another cluster of cabins, an athletic field on which was a spirited game of baseball, and bright blue swimming pool. Suddenly you were introduced to the "Rat Hole." "Hole" was a cabin nestled in a glade of trees at the end of a narrow footpath. Inside were three double-tiered camp cots, several copies of comic books, "Mad," and "Sports Illustrated." Shelves were lined with at least fifteen varieties of shaving lotion. Board walls told of years past — "Manuel - Havana, Cuba, 1957," and "Charlie, Jack, John, Bob — Rat Hole — '60."

At the top of the hill, you could look out across a green table cloth valley to blue-grey mountains which walked across the horizon to the clouds. In the early mornings, the mist would climb out of the valley and struggle up the mountainsides.

Near the totem at headquarters was a huge brass railroad bell which hung in a bright red stand next to the camp flagstaff. When the sun had just peered through the cedars and mountain laurel, the bell would ring. Soon a hundred seventy-five boys stood at attention while the flag was raised. Immediately thereafter, the dining hall withstood the first of its daily tests. Bowls of cereal, platters of eggs and toast, and gallons of fresh milk disappeared as though attacked by hordes of locusts. You wondered what sort of magicians were camp directors who could satisfy ravenous growing boys.

The camper-guide told of horses, five kinds of sailing boats, and expert riflery which made anything you accomplished a generation ago seem trivial. He described exciting hikes and rock climbing. If you had jumped into the icy lake seven times before breakfast on as many days, there was the "Pothole" initiation which set new members above the lesser peoples.

On a Sunday evening as rain softly fell, the boys gathered in the gym to hear the story of God who led mankind out of the darkness into the light. And because they had heard the story, each camper lighted a candle against the night. Out of the gym they single-filed, singing a slow camp song of boys who have learned the meaning of the trees, the sky, the world, and of being together. The requiem of summer continued as they floated the lighted candles out onto the lake on paper boats.

The surface of the water was lighted as if by magic and even the branches which hung over the lake's far side felt the glow of the candles until, like the end of the wonderful summer, the flickering lights floated over the edge of the falls.

Guide To Good Reading

Visit To Public Library Rewarding

Since all schools have completed the summer sessions, most people should have some free time for reading. If you have not visited your public library lately, take this opportunity to make a call and see the many wonderful new books in our collection. There are books for every type of reader and you will surely find one that you want to read. "Pamdemonium On the Patomac" is a farce which makes delightful light reading. "Nothing Ever Breaks except the Heart" is a book of short stories by Kay Boyle. They are slight in context, but some readers will enjoy them. "Forbush and the Penguins" by Graham Billing is an intelligent, sharp and arresting small novel. It is a study of a biologist stationed in Antartica to observe the habits of Penguins and his thoughts on life in general.

"The Adversary" by Jeanne Widgery has it's setting in ninth century England. It is a story of conflict between two brothers. Unfamiliar names and places make it hard to read, but there is a deep feeling here. "Catherine" by Hilda Lewis is a beautifully written story of the marriage of Catherine of Braganza and Charles II of England. Miss Lewis has given us an unforgettable picture of the period as well as their relationships. For readers of mystery stories there are three new titles; "The Big Knockover" a selection of short novels and short stories by Dashiell Hammett, who created the thin man.; "The Old Trade of Killing" by John Harris and "A Kind of Treason" by Robert S. Elegant.

There are some significant books of non-fiction offered this week. "Interpretive Reporting" by C. D. McDougall will be of great interest to newspapermen. "Diet and Live" by Joseph I. Goodman is a very splendid book on the subject of correct eating. "Incident at Exeter" by John Grant Fuller is an account of unidentified flying objects in American skies. "Practical Home Repair for Women" by Bruce Cassidy should be useful to many women. "What's Best For Your Child - and You" by David Goodman is a new book in the field of child study and care. "Retail Merchandising" by John W. Wingate should help many merchants. "The Theory of Fashion Design" is a new and interesting approach to this field by Helen Brockman.

A perfectly beautiful new book is "Camellias" by Paul Jones. It is a small book, but the illustrations of varieties are beautiful. "Designing A Garden Today" by J. E. White contains much splendid advice. "White Pillars" by J. Frazer Smith is a reprint of one of the finest books on Southern architecture. "Low Cost Homes" put out by the Arco Publishing Co. contains simple house plans, but it's best feature is th eadvice which it gives on the financial aspects of owning a home. "Lead Soldiers and Figurines" by Marcel Baldet is a beautiful book for the collector of these art objects. "Starting to Paint in Oils" is an excellent introduction by F. C. Johnston.

There are a number of new books in the literature section this week. "Best Plays of 1963-64" is an annual collection. "Analytical Writing" by Thomas Johnson is a useful book," The Smiling Phoenix" is an account of Southern humor from 1865 to 1914 written by Wade Hall. "Muzzy" is a delightful book of reminiscences of his Mother written by Charles Thayer. There are several new books of poetry; "Collected Poems of A.D. Hope", "Love Respelt" by Robert Graves, and "The Greening Tree" by Ray Smith.

"Wuthering Heights" by Emily Bronte in the Norton Critical edition will be useful to students. "Two Under the Indian Sun" is the story of Jon and Rumer Godden. "The Two Worlds of Somerset Maugham" is an excellent criticism by Wilmon Menard. "The Light and the Rock" is a selection from the writings of Dag Hammarskjold. Visit your Public Library and enjoy it's resources.

Agent Files Damage Suit Against Jury

CHALMETTE, La. (AP) — The president of the Lake Borgne Basin Levee District said Friday night the attorney who filed a $700,000 damage suit against the district and the St. Bernard Parish Police Jury had been secretary of the levee board for three years.

"Mr. (Edgar) Quillin signed checks for 18 levee inspectors each month the first year he served in this capacity, for a total sum of $22,205 for levee inspection," said Irvin J. G. Janssen, who has been board president for eight months.

Quillan was board secretary in 1956, 1957 and 1958. He was the attorney for nine St. Bernard residents who filed the suit in state district court Thursday claiming gross negligence and squandering of public funds.

The suit claimed that tax money collected from parish residents was "squandered and used in political slush funds" instead of being spent to improve levees with the result that Hurricane Betsy flooded portions of the parish.

Janssen said there are currently no inspectors on the board's payroll and there have been none since Jan. 12, 1966 when he became president.

"Alll inspections and supervisory work is done by the two commissioners, Mr. Daniel Caluda and Mr. Maurice Vinsanau and myself. I have never collected a per diem or inspection fee since affiliated with this board and have no intention of doing so," Janssen said in a statement.

The statement asked why Quillin didn't "refuse to sign these checks and file suit in behalf of the public during those years this enormous amount of money was being used for this purpose.

"I would like to say also Mr. Quillin's board had 48 employes on the monthly payroll.

"It is too bad some people will use Hurrricane Betsy's disaster losses and the suffering of the people for a political stepping stone."

Potpourri Of Disc Satisfy All Tastes

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Summer brings a potpourri of pop records.

An original cast album, a rarity in the summer, is explained by the revival of "Annie Get Your Gun" by the Music Theater of Lincoln Center. Ethel Merman is in it — again — and she's great. And so is Bruce Yarnell, Frank Butler to her Annie.

But the star of the show just has to be a new Irving Berlin song— "An Old Fashioned Wedding," with the two of them singing different words against each other in the style of "You're Not Sick You're Just in Love." RCA Victor.

"PETER and the Wolf" and "Young Person's Guide to the Orchestra" are played by Antal Dorati and the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra on London's clearly divided "phase four stereo."

Sean Connery narrates. He's easy to understand, not "too British" and obviously this music can't be sissy with "James Bond" taking part in it.

"Young Person's Guide" is often heard without narration on records, presumably on the theory that everybody knows the orchestra — and the music is very good uninterrupted.

But not all children do know the orchestra, and they are introduced here to sections — woodwinds, brass, strings and percussion — as well as to individual instruments.

Each animal in "Peter and the Wolf" has his own instrument and theme, too, so children may learn some more about the orchestra — at the same time they are being charmed.

"JACQUELINE Kennedy, her Speeches and Biographical Highlights," on Audio Fidelity, is notable primarily for its cover. It is a reproduction of a fine painting of Mrs. Kennedy. The back of the album has a perforated foldout of the cardboard so that the album will stand up on a table — as a picture.

Biographical details are jerkily written but are read smoothly and well by an unidentified man while strings simper in the background. Mrs. Kennedy's voice cuts in from time to time at appropriate places and less frequently John Kennedy's voice is heard. It is a bland presentation but still she emerges as a person with qualities many of us would like to emulate.

One of the strangest of the new records is "Are You Running with Me, Jesus?" on Columbia. Malcolm Boyd, an Episcopal priest who wrote some "modern" prayers and put them in a book, reads them here accompanied by Charlie Byrd on guitar.

The prayers are in big city talk — a mixture of hip, far out, slang, sociological pretentious words. At the same time they're scared cries in the night for help.

Boyd spends a lot of time in his prayers telling the Lord how things are in his immediate vicinity, much of it in earthy, shock vocabulary. He expresses anger, some of it accusingly, at the way things are, and always he cries for help. He never offers to change himself.

Currency Gives Moment Of Panic

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — John Blankenhorn has resumed sleeping nights. That $300,000 in cash he borrowed for 15 days for a movie scene is back in the bank for good.

Blankenhorn, an assistant location manager, needed genuine currency for a scene in the U.S. Mint in the film "Who's Minding the Mint?"

An armored car picked up and delivered the bills daily. Four guards stood watch. So did an overhead television camera, monitored constantly on a screen in a nearby dressing room. The money was insured against theft. The presence of the cash was a secret to all but those on the set.

The only moment of panic: One day a $100 bill turned up missing. It was located inside an ersatz money printing press, where it had gone astray.

Films Produced From TV Pilots

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — So what do you do with a television series pilot film that didn't sell?

If you're Universal Pictures, you try to expand it into a theatrical film.

When something called "Stranded" failed to find a television buyer, the firm shot additional footage to expand it to 90 minutes. They're doing the same with another, "Sullivan's Country," then plan to release them to movie houses.

Slezak Returns For Movie Role

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Walter Slezak will return to Hollywood after a two-year absence. He's accepting a film role as a Spanish police chief who thwarts a group of jewel thieves.

The return marks Slezak's 35th year as an actor. His career began in 1931 when he was signed for the juvenile lead in the film "'Sodom and Gomorrah."

He will play in "The Caper of the Golden Bulls." He has been living in Switzerland for the past two years.

Just Tells Stories

Pinter Plays Offer No Pat 'Message'

...EDITOR'S NOTE — Harold Pinter, a shy Londoner, may never be completely satisfied with his plays, but hordes of theatre goers are. He says he has no message, he just tells stories, and resents those who attribute their "meanings" to him. His latest play hits Broadway next season.

By GRANVILLE WATTS

LONDON (AP) — His plays are applauded around the world, yet British playwright Harold Pinter professes surprise at it all.

"I've never really thought of myself as a success," Pinter said in an interview. "I have never been completely satisfied with anything I've written so far."

Pinter, 35, son of a Jewish tailor, has the same deadpan approach as some of the characters in his plays.

Often accused of being obscure and difficult in his writing, Pinter describes his most famous play, "The Caretaker," as: "The story of a caretaker and two brothers."

Pressed to elaborate, Pinter said: "I have no message to give. I just tell stories. I don't care what people see in my plays. It's up to them. Everyone looks at things differently anyway.

"What I do object to is when they search for meanings and attribute their own theories to me. I see myself as a storyteller, and I don't proceed from any kind of theory."

Pinter was brought up in London's tough East End and is fascinated by tramps and down-and-outs.

"Their speech tends to be more lively and surprising," he said. "I feel a kind of sympathy towards these people."

Pinter was a bright boy at Hackney Grammar School. He won prizes for poetry and sprinting. Then he became an actor, but made so little money he took part-time jobs as a waiter and club doorman. He was actually caretaker in an apartment block for a while.

His first full-length play, "The Birthday Party," was howled off the stage of the Lyric Theater in 1958. Six years later it returned to London loaded with international honors.

Four of his plays were running in New York in 1964. His newest play "The Homecoming," is to be staged on Broadway next season.

Pinter's characters always seem to be holding something back. What is dramatic in a Pinter play is less what is happening than what might happen.

Crictic Bernard Levin has called him "master of intangible menace."

"PETER and the Wolf" and "Young Person's Guide to the Orchestra" are played by Antal Dorati and the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra on London's clearly divided "phase four stereo."

Sean Connery narrates. He's easy to understand, not "too British" and obviously this music can't be sissy with "James Bond" taking part in it.

"Young Person's Guide" is often heard without narration on records, presumably on the theory that everybody knows the orchestra — and the music is very good uninterrupted.

But not all children do know the orchestra, and they are introduced here to sections — woodwinds, brass, strings and percussion — as well as to individual instruments.

Each animal in "Peter and the Wolf" has his own instrument and theme, too, so children may learn some more about the orchestra — at the same time they are being charmed.

"JACQUELINE Kennedy, her Speeches and Biographical Highlights," on Audio Fidelity, is notable primarily for its cover. It is a reproduction of a fine painting of Mrs. Kennedy. The back of the album has a perforated foldout of the cardboard so that the album will stand up on a table — as a picture.

Biographical details are jerkily written but are read smoothly and well by an unidentified man while strings simper in the background. Mrs. Kennedy's voice cuts in from time to time at appropriate places and less frequently John Kennedy's voice is heard. It is a bland presentation but still she emerges as a person with qualities many of us would like to emulate.

One of the strangest of the new records is "Are You Running with Me, Jesus?" on Columbia. Malcolm Boyd, an Episcopal priest who wrote some "modern" prayers and put them in a book, reads them here accompanied by Charlie Byrd on guitar.

The prayers are in big city talk — a mixture of hip, far out, slang, sociological pretentious words. At the same time they're scared cries in the night for help.

Boyd spends a lot of time in his prayers telling the Lord how things are in his immediate vicinity, much of it in earthy, shock vocabulary. He expresses anger, some of it accusingly, at the way things are, and always he cries for help. He never offers to change himself.

Currency Gives Moment Of Panic

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — John Blankenhorn has resumed sleeping nights. That $300,000 in cash he borrowed for 15 days for a movie scene is back in the bank for good.

Blankenhorn, an assistant location manager, needed genuine currency for a scene in the U.S. Mint in the film "Who's Minding the Mint?"

An armored car picked up and delivered the bills daily. Four guards stood watch. So did an overhead television camera, monitored constantly on a screen in a nearby dressing room. The money was insured against theft. The presence of the cash was a secret to all but those on the set.

The only moment of panic: One day a $100 bill turned up missing. It was located inside an ersatz money printing press, where it had gone astray.

Films Produced From TV Pilots

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — So what do you do with a television series pilot film that didn't sell?

If you're Universal Pictures, you try to expand it into a theatrical film.

When something called "Stranded" failed to find a television buyer, the firm shot additional footage to expand it to 90 minutes. They're doing the same with another, "Sullivan's Country," then plan to release them to movie houses.

Slezak Returns For Movie Role

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Walter Slezak will return to Hollywood after a two-year absence. He's accepting a film role as a Spanish police chief who thwarts a group of jewel thieves.

The return marks Slezak's 35th year as an actor. His career began in 1931 when he was signed for the juvenile lead in the film "'Sodom and Gomorrah."

He will play in "The Caper of the Golden Bulls." He has been living in Switzerland for the past two years.

Just Tells Stories

Pinter Plays Offer No Pat 'Message'

EDITOR'S NOTE — Harold Pinter, a shy Londoner, may never be completely satisfied with his plays, but hordes of theatre goers are. He says he has no message, he just tells stories, and resents those who attribute their "meanings" to him. His latest play hits Broadway next season.

By GRANVILLE WATTS

LONDON (AP) — His plays are applauded around the world, yet British playwright Harold Pinter professes surprise at it all.

"I've never really thought of myself as a success," Pinter said in an interview. "I have never been completely satisfied with anything I've written so far."

Pinter, 35, son of a Jewish tailor, has the same deadpan approach as some of the characters in his plays.

Often accused of being obscure and difficult in his writing, Pinter describes his most famous play, "The Caretaker," as: "The story of a caretaker and two brothers."

Pressed to elaborate, Pinter said: "I have no message to give. I just tell stories. I don't care what people see in my plays. It's up to them. Everyone looks at things differently anyway.

"What I do object to is when they search for meanings and attribute their own theories to me. I see myself as a storyteller, and I don't proceed from any kind of theory."

Pinter was brought up in London's tough East End and is fascinated by tramps and down-and-outs.

"Their speech tends to be more lively and surprising," he said. "I feel a kind of sympathy towards these people."

Pinter was a bright boy at Hackney Grammar School. He won prizes for poetry and sprinting. Then he became an actor, but made so little money he took part-time jobs as a waiter and club doorman. He was actually caretaker in an apartment block for a while.

His first full-length play, "The Birthday Party," was howled off the stage of the Lyric Theater in 1958. Six years later it returned to London loaded with international honors.

Four of his plays were running in New York in 1964. His newest play "The Homecoming," is to be staged on Broadway next season.

Pinter's characters always seem to be holding something back. What is dramatic in a Pinter play is less what is happening than what might happen.

Crictic Bernard Levin has called him "master of intangible menace."

Applications To School Explained

RUSTON (Special) — All prospective graduate students seeking admission to the Graduate School of Louisiana Tech for the coming fall semester must submit applications by Sept. 8 to the admissions office, according to Dr. Virgil Orr, dean of the college.

Sept. 8 also was announced recently as the deadline for undergraduate students to apply for admission to the fall term for which registration is scheduled for Sept. 13-14.

Failure to submit applications by the date specified may result in the assessment of a late registration fee, Dean Orr pointed out.

Before students will be permitted to enroll as a graduate student at Tech they must meet the entrance requirements as certified by original transcripts from all colleges and universities they previously attended. In addition they must submit a score on the aptitude section of the Graduate Record Examination.

Those who have not taken this examination may do so on Oct. 29 at the testing center in Room 324 of Keeny Hall by making application prior to Oct. 14, Dean Orr said.

Registration for on-campus graduate students will be conducted at the regularly scheduled time for other students. Registration for in-service graduate students may be effected at the regularly scheduled time or at the special time of Saturday, Sept. 17, from 8 a.m. to noon.

Packets of registration material will be made up automatically for all continuing graduate students who were enrolled in the spring or summer sessions of 1966. Others should re-apply, Dean Orr announced.

International Particleboard Plant Slated

BASTROP (Special) — Plans for a new particle board plant to be located somewhere in the South have been announced by International Paper Company. The new plant will be operated by the company's Long-Bell Division.

The $6.5 million plant will have an annual capacity of 70 million square feet of ¾ inch particleboard and is planned to serve the rapidly growing building construction and furniture industries in the South, the Midwest and the East.

Raw material for the new plant will be supplied from adjacent woodlands and from wood residues to be procured from sawmills in the area, serving to improve wood utilization.

The Long-Bell Division already offers the furniture and building industries a wide range of quality wood products. In addition to particleboard, these products include, lumber, plywood, mill-works products, and a complete line of kitchen cabinets.

The division's principal plants are located in Washington, Oregon, and northern California, with other plants in Louisiana, Texas and Missouri.

Yugoslavians Report Quake

TITOGRAD, Yugoslavia (AP) — An earthquake shook the tourist-crowded Montenegrin coast Saturday causing some damage to property.

The seismological institute in this capital of Montenegro said the quake was strong and centered near Petrovac, a popular vacation town on the Adriatic. Two old houses collapsed there and walls on some others cracked, but no one was hurt.

Low Altitude Flights Set In 3 States

ALEXANDRIA (Special) — Aircraft and crews of the First Ai. Commando Wing here will soon begin flying low altitude training flights over routes criss-crossing most of Louisisna and portions of Texas and west Mississippi.

Designed to give Air Commando crews training and practice in low level navigation, the recently established routes will be used during daylight hours and after dark until 11 p.m. The flights will take place Monday through Friday each week with about four flights each day.

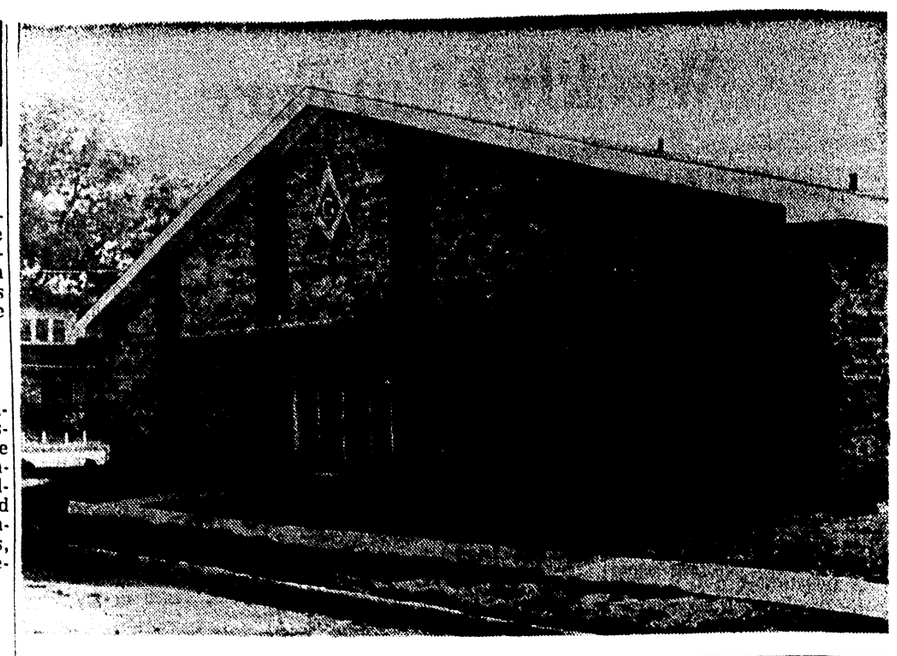

The Air Commando aircraft will be flown at altitudes ranging from 50 to 200 feet during daylights hours and from 200 to 500 feet after dark.

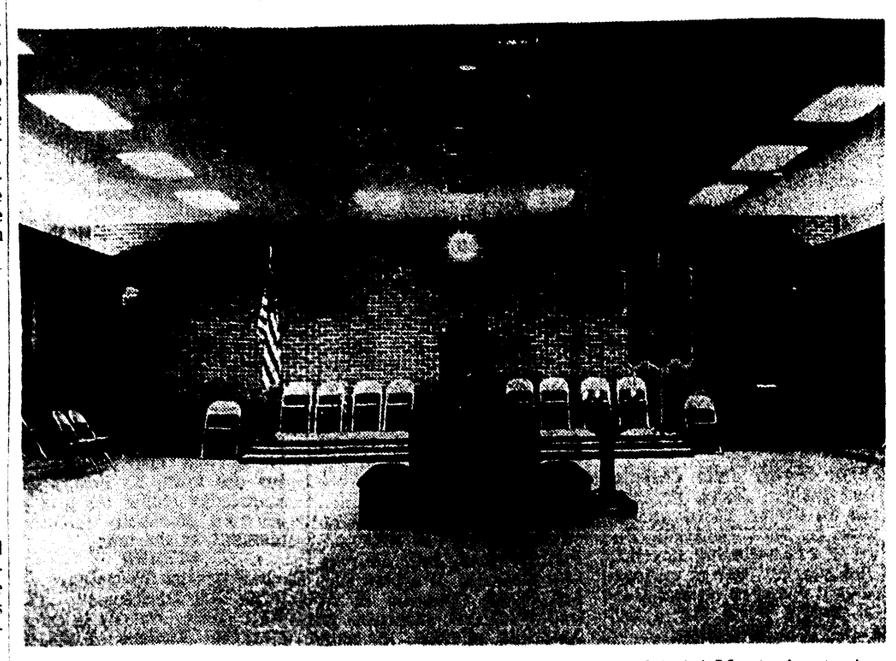

The routes planned for the tests have been selected to avoid airports, control zones, communities and the more densely populated areas in order to cause as little disturbance as possible.

All the aircraft are propeller driven and will fly at speeds ranging from 115 to 230 miles an hour. There will be no sonic booms. The flights will continue indifinitely.

The special warfare mission of the Air Commandos requires frequent low altitude operations.

The flights will be in an area extending to Lufkin, Tex., on the west to McComb, Miss., on the east to Lake Charles and Lafayette on the south and to Cloushatta and Columbia on the north.

An open house program has been planned Sunday, Aug. 28, from 2 until 5 p.m.

Harmful Side Effects

Rep. Passman, FDA Investigating Drug

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A Dixie congressman and the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) have teamed to stop a cruel hoax on arthritis sufferers lured across the Mexican border in search of relief.

The FDA blames at least six deaths and another half dozen serious afflictions in Texas and Louisiana on a drug prescribe by a doctor in Piedras Negras, Mexico.

Rep. Otto Passman, D-La., became interested in the medicament last spring when he received complaints from constituents that it was unavailable in the United States. He was asked to use his influence to get it authorized for U.S. sale.

The drug, variously known as Dimethyl Pyrazolone Sulfanilamide, Dipyrone, Novalgin, Pyralgin and Narone, has a definite therapeutic effect on arthritis. In some cases victims have been miraculously cured or the affliction arrest.

But serious side effects develop, sometimes unknown to the patient. Chief of these is the destruction of white blood cells resulting in serious damage or death.

After hearing glowing reports from constituents about the drug, Passman traced one form of it to a German firm, Farbwerke Hoechst Ag, Frankfurt, West Germany. He contacted Dr. Hubert E. Huckel, director of medical research for the U.S. affiliate of the German organization, Hoechst Pharmaceutical Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Huckel replied that Novalgin was produced and sold by his company in Europe and various other countries throughout the world, but not in the United States. He said, however, there were two U.S. products chemically identical. He listed them as Narone, produced by the Ulmer Pharmacal Co., Minneapolis, and Pyralgin (Dipyrone), produced by Savage Laboratories, Houston, Tex.

"The therapeutic results with Narone and Pyralgin should be the same as with the German product which is not available in this country. I would like to add that these products have various known and serious side effects, e.g., they may cause fatal agranuloctyosis," Huckel told Passman in reply.

Further correspondence between the lawmaker and the doctor established for Passman's benefit htat all the drugs were the same as Dipyrone.

"As far as the therapeutic use of theese preparations is concerned, I would like to emphasize that they have to be administered under strict supervision by a physician; and that the potential benefit accruing from the use of this drug must be weighed against the possibility of fatal agranulocytosis. These drugs should be used only in those conditions in which they are specifically indicated and in which other less toxic drugs have proved ineffective or are not tolerated," Huckel said.

7 Entered In Rapides Campaign

ALEXANDRIA (Special) — Seven candidates are now in the race to fill the unexpired term of the late Rapides Parish Sen. George Fay Lee, who died of a heart attack July 16 in a Houston, Tex., hospital.

Last candidate to qualify before the filing deadline at 5 p.m. Friday was Alexandria attorney Lloyd Teekell, a former state representative.

A special election to fill the state senate seat is scheduled Sept. 24. A runoff will probably result from the large slate of candidates. It is scheduled Oct. 15.

Mrs. George Ray Lee, widow of the late senator, was the first to file.

Others in the race are Alexandria attorney Fay Bradford; Cecil Blair, an Alexandria entomologist who has previously served in the Louisiana House and Senate; Alexandria attorney, Camille Gravel, former Democratic National Committeeman from Louisiana; retired salesman Robert T. Nash of Alexandria; and David George, vice president of the Rapides Parish police jury.

Soviets Set To Launch Satellites

MOSCOW UPI)—The Soviet Union plans to orbit a permanent network of satellites to give regular, reliable readings on the world's weather, it was announced Saturday.

The government newspaper Izvestia said these Sputniks would help in drawing up two charts daily on weather forecasts.

A Soviet-American agreement, signed in 1962, obligates the Kremin to pass information from these satellites to the United States.

But the Soviets began launching weather satellites only within the past year and the first data sent to the United States arrived at the U.S. Environmental Satellite Center in Maryland Thursday.

Izvestia reported Saturday on Cosmos-122, the only acknowledged Soviet weather satellite so far. It was this Sputnik that French President Charles de Gaulle saw launched June 25.

Beatle Scavenger

The fans took all the ashtrays and wastebaskets from the Beatle suite and tore two Beatle-handled towels into a 100 pieces to share as souvenirs, he said.

Applications To School Explained

RUSTON (Special) — All prospective graduate students seeking admission to the Graduate School of Louisiana Tech for the coming fall semester must submit applications by Sept. 8 to the admissions office, according to Dr. Virgil Orr, dean of the college.

Sept. 8 also was announced recently as the deadline for undergraduate students to apply for admission to the fall term for which registration is scheduled for Sept. 13-14.

Failure to submit applications by the date specified may result in the assessment of a late registration fee, Dean Orr pointed out.

Before students will be permitted to enroll as a graduate student at Tech they must meet the entrance requirements as certified by original transcripts from all colleges and universities they previously attended. In addition they must submit a score on the aptitude section of the Graduate Record Examination.

Those who have not taken this examination may do so on Oct. 29 at the testing center in Room 324 of Keeny Hall by making application prior to Oct. 14, Dean Orr said.

Registration for on-campus graduate students will be conducted at the regularly scheduled time for other students. Registration for in-service graduate students may be effected at the regularly scheduled time or at the special time of Saturday, Sept. 17, from 8 a.m. to noon.

Packets of registration material will be made up automatically for all continuing graduate students who were enrolled in the spring or summer sessions of 1966. Others should re-apply, Dean Orr announced.

Harmful Side Effects

Rep. Passman, FDA Investigating Drug

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A Dixie congressman and the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) have teamed to stop a cruel hoax on arthritis sufferers lured across the Mexican border in search of relief.

The FDA blames at least six deaths and another half dozen serious afflictions in Texas and Louisiana on a drug prescribe by a doctor in Piedras Negras, Mexico.

Rep. Otto Passman, D-La., became interested in the medicament last spring when he received complaints from constituents that it was unavailable in the United States. He was asked to use his influence to get it authorized for U.S. sale.

The drug, variously known as Dimethyl Pyrazolone Sulfanilamide, Dipyrone, Novalgin, Pyralgin and Narone, has a definite therapeutic effect on arthritis. In some cases victims have been miraculously cured or the affliction arrest.

But serious side effects develop, sometimes unknown to the patient. Chief of these is the destruction of white blood cells resulting in serious damage or death.

After hearing glowing reports from constituents about the drug, Passman traced one form of it to a German firm, Farbwerke Hoechst Ag, Frankfurt, West Germany. He contacted Dr. Hubert E. Huckel, director of medical research for the U.S. affiliate of the German organization, Hoechst Pharmaceutical Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Huckel replied that Novalgin was produced and sold by his company in Europe and various other countries throughout the world, but not in the United States. He said, however, there were two U.S. products chemically identical. He listed them as Narone, produced by the Ulmer Pharmacal Co., Minneapolis, and Pyralgin (Dipyrone), produced by Savage Laboratories, Houston, Tex.

"The therapeutic results with Narone and Pyralgin should be the same as with the German product which is not available in this country. I would like to add that these products have various known and serious side effects, e.g., they may cause fatal agranuloctyosis," Huckel told Passman in reply.

Further correspondence between the lawmaker and the doctor established for Passman's benefit htat all the drugs were the same as Dipyrone.

"As far as the therapeutic use of theese preparations is concerned, I would like to emphasize that they have to be administered under strict supervision by a physician; and that the potential benefit accruing from the use of this drug must be weighed against the possibility of fatal agranulocytosis. These drugs should be used only in those conditions in which they are specifically indicated and in which other less toxic drugs have proved ineffective or are not tolerated," Huckel said.

7 Entered In Rapides Campaign

ALEXANDRIA (Special) — Seven candidates are now in the race to fill the unexpired term of the late Rapides Parish Sen. George Fay Lee, who died of a heart attack July 16 in a Houston, Tex., hospital.

Last candidate to qualify before the filing deadline at 5 p.m. Friday was Alexandria attorney Lloyd Teekell, a former state representative.

A special election to fill the state senate seat is scheduled Sept. 24. A runoff will probably result from the large slate of candidates. It is scheduled Oct. 15.

Mrs. George Ray Lee, widow of the late senator, was the first to file.

Others in the race are Alexandria attorney Fay Bradford; Cecil Blair, an Alexandria entomologist who has previously served in the Louisiana House and Senate; Alexandria attorney, Camille Gravel, former Democratic National Committeeman from Louisiana; retired salesman Robert T. Nash of Alexandria; and David George, vice president of the Rapides Parish police jury.

Soviets Set To Launch Satellites

MOSCOW UPI)—The Soviet Union plans to orbit a permanent network of satellites to give regular, reliable readings on the world's weather, it was announced Saturday.

The government newspaper Izvestia said these Sputniks would help in drawing up two charts daily on weather forecasts.

A Soviet-American agreement, signed in 1962, obligates the Kremin to pass information from these satellites to the United States.

But the Soviets began launching weather satellites only within the past year and the first data sent to the United States arrived at the U.S. Environmental Satellite Center in Maryland Thursday.

Izvestia reported Saturday on Cosmos-122, the only acknowledged Soviet weather satellite so far. It was this Sputnik that French President Charles de Gaulle saw launched June 25.

Beatle Scavenger

TORONTO (AP) — The Beatles' departure this week was followed by a Beatle-scavenger invasion of the King Edward Hotel, Asst. Mgr. Frank Walkey reported. The fans took all the ashtrays and wastebaskets from the Beatle suite and tore two Beatle-handled towels into a 100 pieces to share as souvenirs, he said.

Net Income Record Cited

ATLANTA, Ga. (Special) — Delta Air Lines has reported that July's unaudited figures showed a monthly record net income of $7,744,000, equal to $1.21 per share. This compared with $3,858,000, or $0.61 per share in June.

C. E. Woolman, chairman of the board and chief executive officer, said that July's revenues were $40,038,000, up 28 per cent over June and operating expenses were $24,860,000, a four per cent increase.

Available seat miles, or capacity, in July were up eight per cent over June, Mr. Woolman said. Revenue passenger miles rose 31 per cent to 672 million, compared with the previous record 515 million in June when the half-billion mark was passed for the first time.

Net Income Record Cited

ATLANTA, Ga. (Special) — Delta Air Lines has reported that July's unaudited figures showed a monthly record net income of $7,744,000, equal to $1.21 per share. This compared with $3,858,000, or $0.61 per share in June.

C. E. Woolman, chairman of the board and chief executive officer, said that July's revenues were $40,038,000, up 28 per cent over June and operating expenses were $24,860,000, a four per cent increase.

Available seat miles, or capacity, in July were up eight per cent over June, Mr. Woolman said. Revenue passenger miles rose 31 per cent to 672 million, compared with the previous record 515 million in June when the half-billion mark was passed for the first time.

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

DEAR FOLKS:

When removing oleo sticks from a carton this morning, a dilly of an idea struck me. Why not use these nice, white boxes when packing sandwiches for lunch boxes for picnics (they are the exact size and shape of a sandwich) after putting the sandwiches in plastic wrap or sandwich bags? They would be especially good for sandwiches containing soft fillings, such as tuna and egg salad.

They would also be great for slices of pie or cake which often get crushed in the lunch box or bag.

I would suggest leaving the wrapper on the box to keep it from becoming soiled, and to hold the box together—opening only one end. This way it could be used again and again.

If you cover some of the cartons with scraps of leftover adhesive-backed paper, they will be even more serviceable and look nicer in your lunch box.

Heloise

LESS TOIL WITH FOIL

DEAR HELOISE:

For those who like to have something individual for their tables and patios...

Know those beautiful beverage bottles in which we like to insert candles and let drip all over the sides of the bottle till they make a conversation piece? Well, sometimes the bottle has printing on it, or we don't have enough candles to cover it. I covered a bottle with foil, and THEN put the candles in.

Not only does this match our silverware and look nice, but I don't have to wait until I can find umpteen candles. Now I think I am a brain to think of that, don't you? Abe G.

MAGNET PINS THEM ALL

DEAR HELOISE:

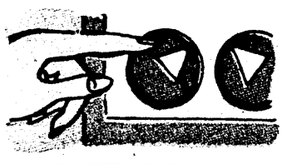

Here's a hint for all who sew:

I bought a magnet and placed it on my sewing machine. Whenever I finish using straight pins, I just place them on the magnet, and they stay there until I am ready to use them again or store them in the pin box.

Sure saves picking up pins that always drop on the floor.

Mrs. Helen Schmidt

IT'S A PERFECT COLOR!

DEAR HELOISE:

We have a color TV set, and with five children, and my dusting, the knobs sometimes get out of adjustment. The serviceman told me to cut very small triangles of tape and place them on knobs — pointing to the proper adjustment — so I could tell at a glance which knobs were out of kilter.

Billie J. McDaniel

If you have a hint, problem or suggestion you'd like to share ... write to Heloise in care of this newspaper. 8-21

COTTON UP TO THIS!

DEAR HELOISE:

I wish to recommend a method for removing grease stains from cottons.

I apply any kind of talcum powder to both sides of the spot and rub it into the spot thoroughly with my fingers. I let it stand overnight, then wash as usual.

Mrs. P. T.

Here's another thing that works very well:

Before washing the garment with the powder rubbed into it, brush out the excess powder with any clean brush, such as a toothbrush, etc.

I also suggest that you rub the powdered, soiled spot with a little soap or detergent, using that old toothbrush again, before you launder it in the usual way.

I know it works, because I've tried it.

Heloise

Rx FOR THE R.N.

DEAR HELOISE:

This little hint is for nurses and aides who love the really stiff starched cap that stands up like Queen Elizabeth's crown.

Wash and bleach your cap thoroughly and let it dry completely BEFORE dipping it in the starch solution you use.

By using this method, all the starch gets into the fibers of the material while dry instead of being water-soaked.

Then lay the cap down on a plasticized counter or table top and rub it with your hands until it is perfectly straight. After it dries, you will agree that this is a wonderful method.

This certainly beats sending it out to be cleaned, and sometimes having it come back crooked. Nurse

DON'T DUST THIS OFF!

DEAR HELOISE:

For ladies who prefer loose face powder:

If you like to put your powder in a pretty box or glass jar, a piece of your famous nylon net placed on top of the powder makes the perfect sifter so the loose powder won't fly away. It also is a wonderful filter to prevent getting too much powder on your puff.

Or you can cut a round piece of net to put in the top of your powder container or compact. It's always clean and so easy to replace.

BABY'S PICNIC SPOONS

TOP SHELF IDEA

DEAR HELOISE:

I can't stand to see an untidy linen closet.

I covered the lid and bottom part of empty, two-pound cheese boxes with pretty adhesive-backed paper.

I put all my medicines, salves, etc., in the boxes and placed them on the top shelf of the linen closet (out of the reach of little hands). Presto, my closet is as neat as can be—not a lot of tubes, boxes, and little medicine bottles cluttering up the shelf. I can take a box out, pick out what I want, and return the box to the shelf. in construction circles that McCloskey & Co. was to get the contract regardless.

"The argument of the General Services Administration that this unusual procedure was followed in an attempt to save $97,000 for the American taxpayers is not acceptable.

"All government contracts should be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder, and I have long been a critic of the administration for not seeking competitive bids on more government work. However, if this process is to work successfully each responsible bidder must have assurance that he will have an equal chance to obtain the contract and not be the victim of any backstage political maneuvering.

"The procedure followed here, where these bids were opened in secret and then one bidder being allowed to change his bid, is indefensible. In my opinion this contract as awarded to McCloskey & Co. should be called and awarded to J. W. Bateson & Co., who was the low bidder."

West Germany's Air Force Chief Resigns In Row

BONN (UPI) —Lt. Gen. Werner Panitzki resigned as inspector of the Luftwaffe (air force) today after accusing the political leadership of doing too little for the safety of German military pilots.

Panitzki, now 55 years old, has been inspector or chief officer of the Luftwaffe since 1962.

His resignation came in the wake of an interview he granted last weekend to the Neue Rhein Zeigung of Essen, a newspaper which normally opposes the Christian Democratic government of Chancellor Ludwig Erhard.

The air force difficulty in coping with the supersonic, American designed F104G Starfighter, which is the backbone of German defense, stems from the failure of the political leadership to give the Luftwaffe the tools needed, Panitzki alleged.

Instead of developing weapons system management commands Panitzki said, Defense Minister Kai-uwe Von Hassel had divided responsibility among a variety of offices. The result, he said, was delays of up to two years in the installation of improvements in the aircraft's safety systems.

Panitzki said that since he became inspector, he had regularly made proposals for improving Starfighter management but that neither the ministry for defense nor parliament had done anything to ease the Luftwaffe's problems.

The Starfighter program has been under fire for several years, with press and parliamentary critics claiming the loss of 61 of the nuclear strike fighter-bombers since they were introduced in 1960 as too high.

One formation of the B52s bombarded a Viet Cong base only 45 miles east of Saigon. Another wave of the eight-engined jets struck an enemy training and resupply camp 120 miles southwest of Saigon.

A lull continued in the ground fighting. Only small, scattered patrol actions were reported today.

GRENADE TOSSED

In the city of Gia Dinh, near Saigon, a terrorist threw a grenade today at a military Jeep, and four U.S. servicemen were wounded, none seriously. A Vietnamese woman passerby also was wounded. The terrorist escaped.

Sunday, B52s also hit two enemy target areas — a suspected Viet Cong division headquarters near the Cambodian border 70 miles northwest of Saigon, and a North Vietnamese troop concentration area two miles south of the demilitarized zone between North and South Viet Nam.

While the B52s were hitting the Communists in the south, U.S. fighter-bombers continued their daily attacks on Communist supply and transport facilities in North Viet Nam Sunday, the U.S. military command reported today.

American pilots flew 102 missions over North Viet Nam Sunday, hitting at four missile sites around Hanoi, six oil storage depots and other targets.

Fliers reported they damaged three of the four surface-to-air missile sites attacked. One site was nine miles south of the North Vietnamese capital and another was 10 miles southwest of Hanoi.

The [illegible] also claimed they damaged or destroyed 15 bridges, 26 supply buildings, 64 trucks, seven antiaircraft gun positions, 28 boxcars and 15 barges.

Navy pilots from the carrier Franklin D. Roosevelt struck a rail yard just outside the city of Thanh Hoa in North Viet Nam and reported the area was engulfed in flames and a thick column of black smoke rose to 8,000 feet as they departed.

They destroyed 10 railroad tank cars and two storage buildings and cut rail lines in three places, a spokesman said.

Air Force planes hit a supply area at Dong Hoi on the coast about 50 miles north of the demilitarized zone. Pilots said they saw four large secondary explosions, an indication that ammunition or fuel stores had been hit.

Britain Reports North Viets Defy Laos Agreements

LONDON (AP) — Britain today released a report indicating the presence of North Vietnamese troops in Laos last year in defiance of the 1962 Geneva agreements.

The report was made by the Indian and Canadian members of the International Control Commission. The Polish member of the commission refused to participate.

The Soviet Union, as cochairman with Britain of the Geneva conference, refused to release the report. The British released it over Soviet objections.

The incident involved an attack on the Laotian army officer-cadet school on March 8-9, 1965. The commission report was based mainly on the evidence of nine prisoners taken during the attack, which was eventually repulsed.

The commission found that all the prisoners were North Vietnamese conscripts. Some had been issued arms and ammunition in North Viet Nam, and had carried them into the area of the officer-cadet school at Dong Hene.

of Shreveport, formerly of Monroe.

Other survivors include a brother, J. D. Dawkins of Garden City, N. Y.; three grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

BEGIN SPRAYING

Four planes, seeking to eradicate the Culex mosquito, bearer of the killer disease, began spraying at dawn.

They can operate for only a little more than two hours because the spray does not fall if temperatures go above 80 degrees.

The three other planes arrived Sunday. The crews still were in combat gear, for they had been first marked for defoliation work in Viet Nam.

Two of the planes were grounded today while crewmen installed nozzles.

As high winds Sunday halted spraying for the second day in a row, three more cases of the disease were reported and another death was blamed on encephalitis.

"We are counting five deaths now," said Dr. Hal J. Dewlett, city health director. He placed at 81 the number of persons who have contracted the illness commonly known as sleeping sickness.

The spraying campaign was initiated Friday after health officials said the disease had reached the epidemic stage. Flights the next two days by Air Force C123s had to be canceled because of weather.

The planes, which spread a mosquito-killing insecticide, malathion, can spray only when the temperature is below 85 and the winds are light.

A leak developed on a hose on board one of the three planes Friday. Air Force Sgt. Donald Ross, 38, of Langley, Va., accidentaly swallowed some of the highly concentrated insecticide.

"We are 100 per cent for implementation of teachers' pay raises but we feel that other personnel should be allowed proportional raises," Hall said.

The Ouachita board agreed last week to take no action on a sales tax proposal for the Fifth Congressional District, a move that eliminated the parish from the proposal and in effect, killed the sales tax since Ouachita would have contributed over 50 per cent of all taxes collected.

AUTHORITY

School boards were given legislative authority to act on a sales tax in the 14-parish district, primarily to fully implement salaries for school teachers and bus drivers.

But the tax act came under fire here after last minute legislative amendments cut in the City of Monroe for some $900,000 of surplus revenue over salaries. According to sales tax figures furnished by the State Department of Revenue, this was more than the city and parish school boards combined would receive. And additional provision that was tacked on the last minute cut both Monroe-based school boards from any of the revenue overage which was approximately half of the over $5 million expected to be collected.

The other 13 parishes split surplus funds over salaries for school teachers and bus drivers three ways, with a third, each going to municipalities, school boards and police juries.

"We feel that Ouachita Parish should be treated as fairly as other school boards in the district," Hall said.

Hall noted that he still had [illegible] area legislators to revise the bill in the November special session, to be called by Gov. John McKeithen for reapportionment of both state houses.

"This idea is basically sound," Hall said, "and I still have hopes for a sales tax bill that the Ouachita Parish board can live with."

Dirksen Predicts School Prayer Amendment Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is going to get a chance to vote before Labor Day on a proposed school prayer amendment, Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois said today.

Dirksen told an informal news conference that he plans a move to substitute for a United Nation Childrens' Funds resolution his proposal to amend the Constitution to provide for voluntary prayers in the schools. It would have the effect of overturning a Supreme Court decision against such prayers.

The resolution he will seek to supplant would designate Oct. 31 as United Nations Children's Educational Fund Day.

The prayer amendment has drawn strong opposition in Senate Judiciary Committee meetings, on the grounds that it would infringe on the traditional separation of church and state. Dirksen said he will make no further moves toward prying it out of committee.

Smith said that the giving of any property, supplies or money to hostile powers is covered by the Trading with the Enemy Act and is subject to a 10-year prison sentence and $10,000 fine. The treasury administers that act.

"To extend the scope of existing law to cover such matters as advocacy and solicitation might involve difficult questions of infringement upon the constitutional rights of our citizens in the launching of naval vessels, the Coast Guard has authority to declare certain areas off limits under penalty of 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

He said the treasury has issued one license permitting the shipment of $240 to the International Committee of the Red Cross and said it was granted to Mary Bernier of the Viet Nam Relief Fund, San Carlos, Calif.

Two other inquiries were received, he said, but neither person has applied for a license. They came from Rodgers T. Dennen, Whitman College, Walla Walla, Wash., and Lois Lee Rathbun, Santa Barbara, Calif.

Smith said letters saying it was illegal to send goods to North Viet Nam or the Viet Cong without a license have been sent to the Medical Aid Committee, Berkeley, Calif.; the chairman of the Committee to Aid the Vietnamese, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Mich.; and Stanford Committee for Medical Aid to Viet Nam, Palo Alto, Calif.

He said treasury officials visited the offices of the May 2nd Movement in New York with similar information.

Orbiting Satellites To Stalk Animals

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Biologists may not have the stamina to swim behind whales, romp through African jungles chasing elephants or stomp around frigid Arctic regions after polar bears. But they have found a friend to do it for them — an orbiting satellite.

Stalking animals will become one of many chores for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's versatile Nimbus weather satellites, starting with Nimbus 3 to be launched late next year.

Biologists and conservationists want to know more about migratory habits of beasts to prevent animal species from becoming extinct and help them learn what secret migratory sense steers animals to destinations hundreds of miles away. They want answers to questions like:

How do migrating sea turtles find Ascension Island? Where do certain animals go which disappear for months at a time? Do animals navigate by the Sun, stars or perhaps magnetic waves?

The navigation system used by whales or sea turtles could be used to steer submarines. Whatever guides ducks and geese southward in winter and north in summer may be useful to aircraft. The caribou's system may aid guidance methods for land vehicles.

Biologists working with the Smithsonian Institution plan to attach special electronic packages to large land animals when Nimbus 3 orbits the globe. The devices are to beam signals that will permit the satellite to plot the animals' location at least twice daily to an accuracy of 1 ½ miles.

Plans call for the packs to be attached first to large animals, such as elephants, whales, turtles, caribou and polar bears. Each pack weighs about 25 pounds, but researchers for NASA's Goddard Space Flight Center said they may eventually be reduced to about two pounds so biologists can get information in migratory habits of smaller animals as well.

Man Pinned In Plane Wreck For Six Days Is Found Alive

MIDDLETOWN, Conn. (AP) — For six days, injured John T. Emmanuel, sat pinned in his seat in a wrecked plane.

Trucks sped by on Interstate 91, only a short distance away. Search planes buzzed overhead, their pilots unable to see the wreckage under the trees.

Beside Emmanuel, 39, lay the body of his friend, Richard C. Grimaldi, 32, who had been piloting the single-engine plane back to Hartford after a weekend holiday at Block Island, R.I.

A week ago this morning, the Cessna went down, bounced off the rocky face of Mt. Higby and fell into the woods at the bottom of the cliff.

As the days passed, Emmanuel sat trapped in the crumpled cockpit.

An air-sea search for the plane was pressed by the Federal Aviation Agency and the Coast Guard. They abandoned the search Thursday, but a number of private pilots and Connecticut authorities continued the hunt.

There was no clue to the whereabouts of the four-seater plane, state police said, until authorities received a report from truck driver John Faulkner. He told them he had seen a flash of something at the foot of the mountain in the rear view mirror of his truck while he was driving south on Interstate 91 last Monday morning.

After hearing days later about the lost plane, Faulkner gave searchers information which enabled them to pinpoint the spot where the plane might have gone down.

On Sunday, a State Aeronautics Department helicopter flew low and spotted the wreck beneath the heavy foliage at the foot of the cliff.

Searchers hiked through the wooded Mt. Higby area to the plane, where they found Emmanuel alive.

"We did not give up hope," said Emmanuel's mother, Mrs. Thomas H. Emmanuel of Hartford. "We knew we'd find him alive."

The survivor was suffering from malnutrition, exposure, and shock. He was in serious condition, but conscious and able to speak.

Emmanuel was brought out with some difficulty. The small helicopter that found him couldn't manage it. A bigger helicopter from Suffolk (N.Y.) Air Force Base finally managed the job after making three passes at the site.

Along busy Interstate 91, cars pulled over to watch as the helicopter deposited its burden gently in a field where an ambulance was waiting to speed Emmanuel to Meriden Hospital.

The body of the pilot, a Newington resident was to be removed today.

The only member of the Emmanuel family who had not gone through an ordeal of waiting and hoping against hope was Emmanuel's 2½-year-old son, Tom.

The boy was told only that his father was away on a trip and was expected back any day.

That day finally arrived.

Cost Of Living Rises In July

WASHINGTON (AP) — The cost of living rose four-tenths of one per cent in July because of higher transporation costs, and a slight rise in food prices. The food price rise was not as large as usual in July.

Food prices usually go up in July by 1.4 per cent but last month's increase was 0.4 per cent.
